WATERS MOVES TO SEND BONUS SEEKERS HOME

Camp in Every State New Plan.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—The end of the bonus expeditionary force as a national unit was seen tonight when Walter W. Waters, national commander, announced plans for setting up individual bonus camps in each state for veterans from that state.

Waters said he had telegraphed the governors of every state which had sent a large number of bonus seekers to the national capital to arrange for such camps. He claimed a "favorable response."

Once these havens are ready the men will be advised to leave Johnstown, Pa., and go home to their state camps, he said. Meantime, he advised them to "sit tight."

Maryland Denies Refuge.

The Waters announcement came shortly after he had been bluntly informed by Gov. Ritchie of Maryland that he would not permit the bonus army to carry out its plans for settling in Maryland until congress meets again. Waters at once issued a statement advising the Johnstown force of 9,000 men, women and children to disband and go home. Later he superceded this order with the one telling the men to stick tight while he arranged bonus camps in their individual states.

The B. E. F. commander was a dejected man when he returned from Annapolis tonight after a conference with Gov. Ritchie. At this meeting the governor advised Waters that he could not permit the bonus army to go through with its original plan of concentrating its scattered forces at the Anne Arundel county camp donated by Mrs. Maud Edgell. The governor said such settlement would be in violation of the state's health and sanitation laws and therefore could not be permitted.

Waters Admits Defeat.

On arriving at the bonus headquarters Waters immediately threw up the sponge.

"I find," he said, "that the Maryland project cannot be carried on with the approval of the state. I am prevented by legal technicalities from settling members of the bonus army on this property. I have been advised that the same restrictions exist in other states. If I did go ahead with the project it would be in direct violation of existing laws of Maryland."

Apparently the leaders at Johnstown did not agree with Waters, for a few hours after the first statement was issued the national commander announced a change of plans.

"Since my return from Annapolis," Waters said, "I have been assured by responsible persons that property can be placed at my disposal in every state in the Union to care for veterans in that state who are bonus expeditionary force members without opposition from constituted authority. In the meantime I am advising the men at Johnstown to sit tight until definite arrangements for them can be completed."

RESENT WATERS' ORDER

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—The mud spattered and rain soaked army of bonus seekers encamped outside this city heard with incredulity which soon turned to sullen resentment and open defiance Commander Waters' first order that they disband and return to their homes. His second order to "sit tight" until individual camps in their home states were established calmed them somewhat, but there still was a strong undercurrent of resentment against the commander.

Leaders were vociferous in demanding that the B. E. F. carry on. R. B. Ellison, national contact man of the veterans, who spends his days and nights in the leather upholstered elegance of Mayor Eddie McCloskey's office in the city hall, referred to Waters' "treason to the cause."

William Andrews, who hobbles about on crutches, his khaki shirt adorned with medals, vowed that before he quit "they'll have to carry me and my men out feet first." He commands the Chicago unit—400 strong.

Mayor Would Defy Ritchie.

Mayor McCloskey was equally defiant and he said:

"I'll tell you what, if Waters will deed the Maryland property to me I'll lead the men there myself and defy Gov. Ritchie. Defy him, do you hear? Defy Gov. Ritchie."

EIGHT HOUR GUN FIGHT WAGED BY PICKETERS

BULLETIN.

Terre Haute, Ind., Wednesday, Aug. 3.—At 3 o'clock this morning all roads leading to the mine were barricaded by pickets. They stopped all cars and pedestrians, turning them back with the announcement "the roads are closed." The territory surrounding the mine was filled with people throughout the night. Only one shot was fired since 11 o'clock. It was learned this morning that County Prosecutor Charles G. Whitlock was deliberately fired upon twice, bullets missing him by inches.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—One man has been shot and killed, three more are reported slain, and eight others are known to have been wounded in a gun battle between sixty besieged nonunion miners and an overwhelming attacking force of union men near Pimento, ten miles south of here. One woman is among the beleaguered band.

At 11 o'clock tonight, after more than eight hours of fighting, the attackers had pressed in closer upon the band of defenders. The union miners were described as being in a mood intent upon finishing them and duplicating the Herrin tragedy of 1922 in which twenty-three imported miners were slain.

The situation obviously was out of control of local authorities, but no promise of troops was offered by Gov. Harry G. Leslie, to whom two pleas for the military—with planes—had been made earlier.

Picket Believed Slain.

The man known to be dead was Taylor Kellar, 24 years old, of Linton, Ind. He was believed to have been among the pickets, although it was not definitely established he was one of them. He was shot in the head and died while being taken to a hospital.

The men reported slain were said to have been miners. Four of them were known to be wounded, as well as an equal number of the attackers. The plight of the beleaguered men was intensified by lack of medical aid, the pickets refusing to permit ambulances and other help to the mine property.

Fighting started shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon. A single shot allegedly from the ranks of the picketing union miners, signaled the flareup. An answering shot came from the mine, and within a few minutes firing was general, with members of both armies seeking shelter behind trees or shacks and other protection. At the time the attacking force, which concentrated about the tipple, or superstructure of the mine, numbered an estimated 4,000 men.

Heed Injunction for Time.

No casualties occurred during the first hour, and fighting was interrupted for a while shortly afterward by a sudden rainstorm. The end of the downpour found the besiegers back to heavy strength. Tonight their numbers were augmented by sympathizers and spectators.

As the fight continued, sporadically for the most part, the attackers moved closer, bit by bit, but did not, until 9 o'clock tonight, venture upon mine property. This caution was doubtless engendered more through respect of a federal injunction than by fear of bullets. As the battle progressed, with four pickets being shot down, the attackers became bolder, and many of them skirmished from the vantage of the forested protection of the mine property proper. Firing virtually ceased at 11 p. m.

One of the wounded pickets was Grant Swans of Jasonville, who was struck in the leg and brought to a hospital here. The other three men were wounded about the limbs and arms, it was said. The wounds of the four besieged miners were not definitely known, but a mine company representative said that one of the men had been hit in the side and another in the leg.

Defendants Reserve Fire.

The exact status of the men in the mine could not be determined because the telephone wires had either been

Missouri Has Hot Primary; Wet Leading

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Col. Bennett C. Clark, son of the late Speaker Champ Clark, and an outspoken wet, was leading a field of five in the Democratic primary senatorial race tonight, although an avalanche of votes for Charles M. Howell in Kansas City threatened to make inroads on his plurality.

Howell, the candidate of the T. J. Pendergast organization in Kansas City, forged ahead of Charles M. Hay, a veteran dry, when the first 12 precincts in Kansas City were tabulated.

Dry Is Far Behind.

The vote in 357 out of 4,195 precincts in the state, including 7 in St. Louis, was: Clark, 12,302; Howell, 10,065; Hay, 9,106; Col. J. W. Byrnes, 753; and Robert H. Merryman, 263.

Dewey J. Short, former congressman and a candidate from the Missouri Ozarks, went ahead of Henry W. Kiel, former mayor of St. Louis, when Republican senatorial returns from 258 precincts were tallied. Kiel had been conceded a favorite at the outset. The vote was: Short, 4,114; Kiel, 3,631; Robert J. Kratky, St. Louis lawyer, 1,096; B. F. Benzell, 1,000; Blodgett Priest, 460, and Pearl Abernathy, Negro, 478.

Wilson Ahead for Governor.

Francis M. Wilson, Pendergast candidate for governor, had pushed up a formidable plurality over State Senator Russell L. Dearmont in the Democratic governorship race, with the addition of 12 Kansas City and 7 St. Louis precincts.

The vote in 362 precincts gave Wilson 21,046; Dearmont, 12,273; Childers, 712; Delk, 236.

Secretary of State Charles U. Becker and Lieut. Gov. E. H. Winter, seeking the Republican nomination for governor, were still running almost neck and neck, with Becker maintaining a small lead.

Paulen Ahead in Kansas.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Returns from 238 precincts out of 2,676 in Kansas for the Republican nomination for United States senator:

Paulen, 8,523; Getty, 4,294; Mercer, 4,003; Isely, 3,161; Harley, 1,366; Fuller, 731; Dunne, 651.

Alf M. Landon lead over Lacey Simpson for the Republican nomination for governor on the basis of returns from 392 or 2,676 Kansas precincts. The vote showed:

Landon, 24,070; Brady, 4,709; Simpson, 14,941.

Returns from 356 out of 2,276 precincts in Kansas for the Democratic nomination for governor gave:

Woodring, the incumbent, 13,429; Muir, 5,574; Eggers, 1,523.

Returns from 356 precincts for the Democratic nomination for United States senator:

McGill, 11,650; Little, 5,863.

W. P. NELSON, LONG BUSINESS LEADER IN CHICAGO, DIES

William P. Nelson, 73 years old, former wealthy Chicagoan, died yesterday at his Montecito home, Santa Barbara, Cal., after an illness of several months. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Cudahy Nelson. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mr. Nelson was born in Chicago. He entered the interior decorating firm of his father in 1880. Five years later the concern became the W. P. Nelson company. Mr. Nelson withdrew from the firm in 1907. Six years earlier he had founded and became president of the American Wall Paper company of Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Mr. Nelson was a member of the University club, the Chicago Athletic club, the Mid-Day club, the Onwentsia Country club, and the South Shore Country club. Some time ago he and Mrs. Nelson donated a California redwood forest to the state.

Grimm Takes Up Manager's Duties Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 2.—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs since Sept. 23, 1930, is through. Charles Grimm, captain and first baseman, is the new manager of the Chicago National leaguers.

The change took place within an hour after the Cub team, headed by President William Veeck, arrived here from Brooklyn, where the Brooklyn team this afternoon defeated Lon Warneke, the league's ace pitcher, for the second time in two successive games.

The public announcement of the change in management was made by Mr. Veeck in the presence of Mr. Hornsby.

Hornsby a Free Agent.

Mr. Veeck said: "Rog and I have just concluded a conference. The outcome is that Rog is leaving the club but will be paid his full salary, his contract running to Dec. 31, 1932.

"We have asked waivers on Hornsby as a ball player and they have been given. He is a free agent.

"Charley Grimm is now manager of the Cubs. He will be in full charge when the players take the field against the Phillies tomorrow."

When asked if any specific incident had brought about the breach Mr. Veeck continued:

"There has been no quarrel, has there, Rog?"

No Quarrel, Hornsby Says.

Whereupon Hornsby, long known for his brusque frankness, laughed with some embarrassment and replied:

"I guess we won't call it a quarrel. Only big differences of opinion about the ball club and the way it should be handled."

While things happened rapidly after the team reached Philadelphia—the home town of William Wrigley Jr., late owner of the Cubs, where Mr. Wrigley first grew dissatisfied with Joe McCarthy, Hornsby's predecessor—the announcement was not a surprise to the members of the team or to other members of the Cub party, but it will be a surprise perhaps to the general public.

There recently have been many whisperings that all was not well between Veeck, the man whom Mr. Wrigley characterized as the "best baseball executive in America," and Hornsby, of whom Mr. Wrigley frequently spoke as the "smartest baseball manager and player that ever lived."

Veeck Travels with Club.

Ears started perking up when Veeck came east with the Cubs the first swing around the circuit, in June. In former years he would linger for a series or two and then would rush back to office affairs at home. This time he has stayed with the team.

While Veeck's varying of precedent relative to staying with the team on the first trip led to guesses that Hornsby would not be back next year, incidents on the present trip have brought highly private prophecies that Hornsby might leave in some such precipitate manner as he did tonight.

Disagree on Team's Merit.

The crux of the whole situation has appeared to be that Veeck believes the Cubs to be a better ball team than Hornsby believes it to be.

Close friends of Hornsby say that Rogers considered Riggs Stephenson the one happy surprise on the Cubs team. Hornsby had not expected Stephenson to have a good year, but since the veteran outfielder has been leading the team in hitting Hornsby is said to have called him the one outstanding offensive ballplayer on the team.

It is known that Hornsby was encouraged with the advancement of Bill Jurges and Billy Herman, young

Johnson May Be Named to Bench Today

President Hoover is expected to appoint United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson to the federal District bench today or tomorrow, according to word from Washington last night. Long expected here, the recess appointment will be subject to confirmation by the senate in the short session in December.

The advices from the capital also predicted that Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, Johnson's ace prosecutor, will be named by Mr. Hoover to fill his chief's place, subject to confirmation by the senate. Mr. Green has the support of Senator Otis F. Glenn and the Washington reports indicated that Senator James Hamilton Lewis is also favorable to his appointment.

Mr. Johnson's appointment to the bench at this time would please his friends, for it was feared that since Judge James H. Wilkerson's appointment to the Circuit bench has not been acted upon by the senate the prosecutor's elevation might be delayed.

Praised for Tax Convictions.

It has been known for some time that the President looked favorably upon Mr. Johnson's work in the income tax prosecutions. He has sent a dozen politicians and gangsters to the penitentiary for evading their federal taxes. Chief among them was Al Capone. When Mr. Hoover dedicated the remodeled Lincoln tomb at Springfield in June, 1931, he called Mr. Johnson to the governor's mansion and there congratulated him upon his work. The prosecutions have been 100 per cent successful thus far, the last defendant to be convicted being Chris Paschen, former city building commissioner.

Appointed by Coolidge.

Mr. Johnson was appointed United States attorney by President Coolidge in 1927 upon recommendation of Senator Deneen. He was reappointed by Mr. Hoover in 1931.

Mr. Green holds the post of solicitor of the bureau of internal revenue and is serving as a special assistant on Mr. Johnson's staff, where he has borne much of the brunt of the recent tax prosecutions.

Should Mr. Green's appointment follow Mr. Johnson's elevation it is believed likely that William J. Froelich will be chosen as Green's first assistant. He was sent for from Washington to assist in the Al Capone case.

SCHOOLS RAISE $2,244,000 TO PAY EMPLOYES

Expect to Send Out Checks Friday.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

School teachers and other school employes will have another pay day in cash as soon as the legal arrangements can be completed. The distribution of the checks probably will start Friday. This is a fulfillment of the promise of Mayor Cermak before he sailed for Europe on July 26.

V. S. PETTERSON.

The pay roll to be met will be for the last half of March and will be distributed among school employes as follows:

Regular teachers	$1,707,564.72
Civil service	378,735.99
Building	54,466.78
Playground	18,497.88
Total	$2,244,145.37

Two million dollars was provided by four loop banks, which agreed to buy that amount of school board educational fund 1931 tax anticipation warrants held in the city's aggregate of funds. The sale was arranged by Deputy Controller V. S. Petterson, acting in place of City Controller Szymczak, who is in New York striving to create a new market for Chicago tax warrants.

Allotment of Warrants.

The bank officials said they had been ready to carry out their agreement with Mayor Cermak for eight days, and had been waiting for the city to determine which warrants it desired to sell. According to the agreement, the Continental Illinois bank will take $880,000 of the warrants, the First National $820,000, the Northern Trust $160,000, and the Harris Trust $140,000—an aggregate of $2,000,000.

These warrants, which the banks bought at par, could have been purchased in the open market for $1,600,000 to $1,680,000, according to yesterday's quotations of the investment houses. Thus the banks paid between $320,000 and $400,000 more for the warrants than they would have brought in the open market in order to "indicate sympathy, good faith, and a real concern for the governmental institutions," as one banker phrased it.

Meet Bankers Today.

This banker added there is a limit to the amount of tax anticipation warrants which the banks can absorb at par. That limit probably will be disclosed today, when President Lewis E. Myers of the school board and Trustees Orville Taylor and Joseph P. Savage will confer with the bankers in accordance with the arrangement made yesterday.

It is understood that the bankers have surveyed the situation carefully and have arrived at a tentative maximum of warrants which they will agree to purchase. It has not been disclosed, however, whether they have decided the specific warrants they will buy, although it is known that they will insist upon marketable warrants.

Reject 1932 Tax Warrants.

In view of the opinion of the law firm of Chapman & Cutler, security specialists, on the decision of the state Supreme court upholding the "N. S. F." checks law, the bankers frankly told Deputy Controller Petterson yesterday they could not purchase the 1932 tax warrants of the schools' educational fund.

They accepted 1931 educational warrants for 2 million dollars. The school building and playground funds have sufficient cash to provide for their pay rolls. Therefore there is a shortage in cash of $171,000 to pay employes of the educational fund. This will be provided by the city by the purchase of additional school tax warrants after the council meeting on Thursday.

At that time the ordinance providing for the issuance of 1932 education warrants becomes effective.

Warrants to Be Reissued.

The $2,000,000 of 1931 educational warrants to be handed to the bankers are now in warrants of $100,000 each, bearing 4 per cent interest. These must be reissued at 6 per cent, and the warrants put in denominations of $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $20,000. The total number of warrants will be 333, and the engraving company has promised to have them completed Friday.

It is understood that the banks will hold these warrants until the 1931 taxes are payable, and then turn them into the county collector in payment of taxes. In no other way can they realize the full $2,00,000 paid for the warrants.

Between Jan. 1 and March 15 of this year the school employés were paid in cash. Since March 15 they have received nothing. On last year's pay roll, however, the board still owes $5,428,340 to teachers and employés. It is now planned to pay these obligations in 1931 tax anticipation warrants, which are now quoted at a discount of 16 to 19 per cent.

The distribution of these warrants is contingent upon the city council meeting next Thursday, but it is expected that the distribution of the warrants will also be started on Friday.

If these two programs of salary payment go through as scheduled, there will still be owing school employés about $12,200,000, and it has been estimated that the school board pay rolls for the remainder of the year will total $18,185,000. Therefore, the school trustees this morning will urge that the bankers purchase at least $31,-$35,000 in tax warrants.

The Bankers' Position.

All of the information available yesterday indicated that the banks will explain that they cannot purchase tax warrants for half of that amount. One informant said that the banks could not absorb from all the local governments more than a third of the amount of warrants which the school board alone needs for salaries and wages. If that estimate proves correct, and the money received from warrants is distributed equitably among the local governments, then the bankers will not promise cash to the schools for more than one more pay day this year.

This explains why City Controller M. S. Szymczak has gone east to find new buyers for Chicago's tax anticipation warrants.

President Myers pointed out last night that the schools must have cash for certain supplies, such as coal, in addition to the money required for salaries and wages. While one pay day is at hand, and perhaps another is in prospect, the outlook for further cash salaries for teachers appears gloomy.

$8,088 JUDGMENT ENTERED AGAINST BANK IN TAX SUIT

Judge Craig A. Hood, hearing suits against delinquent 1930 personal property taxpayers in the Circuit court, entered a judgment yesterday of $8,088 against the I-C Bank and Trust company, 1538 East 53d street.

Attorney William Grace gave notice of appeal on behalf of the bank. He had previously attacked the right of Lee La Rochelle, special attorney for the county, to prosecute the tax suits. He questioned the right of the county board to hire a special attorney for a percentage of the penalties, holding that the state's attorney should try such cases. Judge Hood overruled his objection.

G. T. Kernahan, partner in the Ravenswood pharmacy, 4557 Ravenswood avenue, obtained a reduction of the store's personalty tax from $1,238 to $241, including penalties, after he had presented an income tax return stating that the average value of merchandise and fixtures was $8,400 in 1930, as compared with the $18,000 personalty assessment. He complained that the tax was still too high.

"You have been treated too well in previous years," Judge Hood replied.

Kernahan agreed to pay within two weeks.

CANAL WORKERS MAY BE PAID FOR A MONTH TODAY

A month's pay will be distributed this afternoon to 980 employés of the sanitary district if the board's sale of $250,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants to the banks is approved by Chapman and Cutler, security experts. The pay roll was approved by the district trustees at last week's meeting.

The pay checks will be for the last half of April and the first half of May. Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, announced at the regular meeting that the banks would take $250,000 worth of 1931 warrants.

The trustees failed, however, to pass an ordinance changing the interest on their 1931 tax anticipation warrants from 4 to 6 per cent in order to make them acceptable to the banks. Notice of a special meeting was sent out on Monday, and six trustees, headed by Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district, assembled yesterday and adopted the ordinance. Certified copies of the ordinance were sent to Chapman and Cutler, who will announce their opinion to the banks today.

BAIN TELLS HIS STORY AS COURT CROWD GLARES

erday from the witness stand before Judge John M. O'Connor by Bain himself. He is a defendant, with his two sons and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, on charges of conspiracy growing out of the failure last summer of his chain of twelve banks. Judge O'Connor is hearing the case without a jury.

Bain was a voluble and self-composed witness as he was guided through his story by Attorney Francis X. Busch. Frequently he beamed over his voluminous white mustache at the crowded courtroom. The spectators did not return his smiles.

Their behavior has indicated previously that most of them are among the depositors who lost $13,000,000 in the crash of Bain's banks. They met his smiles with the same fixed glare which most of them have kept fastened on the 73 year old defendant throughout the trial.

Tells Why He Was Banker.

Two points Bain made early in his recital and returned to frequently. The first was his explanation of why he built up his banking chain. By his account he was a man who couldn't say no when urged to help his neighbors.

The second explanation disclosed the close relation between his banking and his real estate operations. One of the principal charges of the prosecution is that Bain real estate was grossly overvalued to justify loans obtained from and bond issues floated by Bain banks.

"I had always been associated with real estate men and contractors," he said of his early days, and later: "Our real estate business has always been a subsidiary of the bank, and insurance the same way."

Defense Indicates Strategy.

An indication of the plan for the defense of Bain came when Attorney Busch asked him whether, as chairman of the directors or president of his various banks, he entered actively into the details of their management. The ex-banker replied that he did not. He said later that never did he receive any fee in connection with the organization of any of the banks.

Bain told first of coming to Chicago from Scotland in the late '80s, and of working as a journeyman plumber.

"I moved to the south side, then," he said, "married and became a master plumber. I established offices at 6317 Laflin street about 1890. Three years later I moved to 1509 West 63d street. I opened a real estate office at which I worked at night, and continued my plumbing business by day."

He quit plumbing to give all his time to real estate in 1894. There was a real estate boom on the south side following the election of President McKinley in 1896, he said, and he began to build and rent cottages on his lots.

He Becomes a Banker.

Up to 1906 he had built some 300 cottages in the West Englewood district, and in the same time had placed loans aggregating $2,000,000 on such properties. It was in 1906, too, that he first became a banker. He had four partners.

"We established a private bank at 1637 West 63d street," Bain said. "My net worth at that time was about $50,000, and all my partners were worth at least that much. I had often been solicited by business men in the community, whom I had accommodated with loans and aided in financial transactions, to start a bank."

That note cropped out every time he told of founding or obtaining control of another bank. Always he did so, he said, because he had been urged to do it by business men in the community or because directors of an existing bank had solicited his partnership.

Describes His First Panic.

Bain told how he weathered his first panic, that of 1907.

"Our deposits in 1907 were about $200,000, and then the panic came, if you remember." He beamed upon the younger men about him.

"After the panic our deposits had shrunk to $50,000, but we were always able to finance ourselves. We took our real estate loans down to the Chicago Title and Trust company and they gave us up to 70 per cent on them. Then, too, most of our depositors worked in the stockyards, where they were paid in cash instead of in the clearing house scrip that was used that year."

Bain told how the private bank became the West Englewood State bank, and eventually, after a merger, the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank. Deposits increased from one to four million dollars. The capital stock was increased to $500,000, and then, in 1930, to $750,000. Bain mentioned that former Senator Charles S. Deneen became his attorney about 1918.

He related how he expanded his interests to other banks. He organized the Chicago Lawn State bank in 1921, after being "solicited to do so by members of the community." He bought into the West Lawn State and the Chatham State. Directors of the Auburn Park State, including Mr. Deneen, urged him to buy some of their stock and become president, and he did, he said.

Says He Saved a Bank.

Then Bain reached the story of one bank which he said he saved from failure by investment of his money. It was the Milwaukee-Western State bank, and the event took place in February, 1928, he said.

"At that time the bank was in difficulties," he went on. "I was asked by the directors to buy in and endeavor to help them. The Cook County Bankers' association also solicited me to take an interest.

"I was called to a conference in State Auditor Nelson's office, and there I refused to go in. The following Sunday I was called to the Union League club. The directors of the clearing house association, the bankers' association and the bank were there.

"They urged me to save the bank. The bankers' association agreed to put in $50,000 if I would do the same. I agreed. The Wednesday after Washington's birthday I was informed that the bank wouldn't open unless they got my $50,000 to open with. I put it in. The association also sent a check. Later they wanted me to acknowledge an indebtedness of $50,000 to them. I told them it was their baby, but finally gave them back their money, increasing my interest to $100,000."

Later, Bain said, he obtained control of stock of the Armitage State bank and merged the Milwaukee-Western with it.

SZYMCZAK OUTLINES CHICAGO FINANCES TO NEW YORK BANKERS

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Chicago's city controller, M. S. Szymczak, today met representatives of important investment banking houses here today in the Bankers club and explained Chicago's financial condition to them. Among those present were officers of the Chase Harris Forbes corporation, National City company, and Lehman Brothers.

Mr. Szymczak admitted after the meeting that he had not been able to get any pledge that the bankers would take 1932 tax warrants of the city and board of education, but asserted a belief that he had cleared up a number of mistaken ideas about Chicago finances and had put his hearers in a more favorable frame of mind.

"These gentlemen did not know," the controller said, "that we reduced our municipal budget 24 per cent this year and our board of education budget 19¼ per cent. They seemed surprised to learn that Chicago had never defaulted on its bonds or interest and that we have retired all our 1928 corporate warrants held by the public and most of those issued against 1929 taxes."

The Chicago controller will go to Albany tomorrow to confer with the state controller on methods of handling state finances. He will then go to Boston to address bankers there.

Commander of Bonus Army Moves to Send Veterans to Camps in Their Home States

visit from Washington police seeking stolen government property added to the discomfort and worry of the bonus marchers today, but their numbers continued to increase.

A little matter of 32 stolen tents brought five members of the District of Columbia police department and Deputy United States Marshal J. G. Lowers to Johnstown. The tents, valued at $4,032, disappeared with the bonus marchers after the forced evacuation at Camp Marks in Washington last Thursday. They were the property of the District of Columbia National Guard, loaned to the bonus army.

The search revealed eight tents which the police identified as stolen, but they made no attempt to take them away from the campers. Replevin actions will be started.

9,000 Now at Camp.

The population of the camp tonight, according to the official count, amounted to about 9,000. Of that number 314 were children and 285 were women. There was considerable illness among the marchers, many of whom were suffering from the effects of exposure, improper nourishment, and fatigue.

Anxiety among the townsfolk regarding the danger of a possible epidemic increased during the day when H. B. Lowrey of Tampa, Fla., was taken to a hospital suffering from what doctors said appeared to be paratyphoid. The hospital also is caring for five other veterans.

The veterans' war chest is growing slowly, swelled by a $100 contribution from "W. G. McAdoo of Los Angeles, Cal."

HONOR HUSHKA AT BURIAL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Silent throngs stood under leaden skies in Arlington National cemetery today to watch William J. Hushka, slain Chicago bonus marcher, buried with military honors as a coroner's jury in Washington declared his killing by police was justified.

Borne to his grave by comrades in arms, Hushka was laid to rest as a squad of Fort Myer cavalry fired a salute over his sepulchre and an army bugler sounded taps.

Hushka was shot through the heart by a policeman's bullet in the bonus battle of last Thursday. Today in death he was accorded every honor due a veteran of the nation's service.

Family at Grave.

Fifty cars, filled with veterans, followed Hushka's body to its last resting place. To the roll of muffled drums his flag draped casket was taken from its hearse at the gates of Arlington and borne on the shoulders of eight buddies, some in khaki, some in rags, to the tent covered grave. Hatless and coatless, Walter W. Waters, commander of the bonus army, marched at the head of the column.

Nine cavalrymen with rifles at salute stood along the edge of the open grave. Hushka's 10 year old daughter, Loretta; his divorced wife, Mrs. Frances Krivenko, and his brother, Charles Hushka, all of whom came from Chicago for the interment, stood at the foot of the grave. From its head a Catholic priest, the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, rector of Immaculate Conception church, recited the requiem high mass.

Coroner Clears Police.

It took a coroner's jury only a few minutes to decide that Policeman George W. Shinault had no choice but to fire the bullet that pierced Hushka's heart when the veterans resisted eviction from their huts with brickbats. In the same verdict the jury exonerated Policeman Miles Znamenacek for shooting Eric Carlson, 38, formerly of Rockford, Ill., and Chicago, in the same affray. Carlson, shot through the back when Znamenacek fired at random into the fighting mob, died today.

Superintendent of Police Pelham D. Glassford, whose job is in peril because of his handling of the bonus army, told the jury emphatically that he believed Policeman Shinault was justified in shooting Hushka. He declared the policeman had clubbed off half a dozen enraged veterans when Hushka rushed at him as he was getting up from the ground. It was then, Glassford declared, that Shinault took deliberate aim and killed the Chicago veteran.

Veteran Flashed Gun.

Stephen Armstrong, a spectator, declared he saw a veteran pull an automatic and aim it in the general direction of the battling police just before they brought their own guns into play. The witness was not sure the veteran fired because at that point shooting began from the police lines and he ran across the street. It was the first definite testimony that the bonus marchers had displayed firearms.

Policeman Znamenacek shot Carlson as he rushed to the assistance of Shinault, who was surrounded by angry veterans hurling brickbats at him. The testimony was to the effect that Shinault did not take deliberate aim at any particular veteran, but fired into the mob when he feared Shinault would be killed.

Jesse C. Duke, counsel for the American Civil Liberties union, represented the bonus army at the coroner's jury inquiry. William H. Collins, assistant United States attorney, fought for a verdict approving the police actions.

Fourteen Veterans Released.

The department of justice "red hunt" sustained a setback today when 14 of the 15 veterans who were arrested in a raid on an alleged communist meeting immediately after the street battling was over were ordered released from the district jail by District Attorney Leo A. Rover. The men were held under the technical charge "for investigation." Rover said all of those released had proved their American citizenship. The lone man detained, Havanes Mackloodian, a Chicagoan, is still under investigation.

IMMEDIATE BONUS PAYMENT DEMANDED BY INDIANA LEGION

Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Noisily expressing its sentiment, the Indiana state convention of the American Legion today unanimously adopted a resolution demanding immediate cash payment of the veterans' bonus. A resolution recommending the emergency hospitalization of veterans be centered in the county and other hospitals in each community rather than in special veterans' hospitals also was adopted, as was a recommendation that text books in the state be investigated for their "consistency" with Americanism.

William O. Nelson, Anderson, was elected state commander, and Evansville was selected as the 1933 convention city.

Mrs. Sylvia Pitman, Boonville, was elected president of the auxiliary. Other officers named were: Vice commander northern district, J. E. McCurdy, La Porte; vice commander southern district, Maurice Barr, Princeton; treasurer, Howard Robinson, Franklin; judge advocate, Wilbur Donner, Greencastle, and chaplain, the Rev. Father S. J. Ryder, Fort Wayne.

HUSHKA RITES HERE

While William Hushka was being buried with military honors yesterday in Arlington National cemetery, Chicago veterans gathered for memorial rites in Harrison park, 18th and Wood streets. Hushka, a former service man, was shot in the bonus army rioting in Washington last Thursday.

Represented at the memorial services were 16 posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, two posts of the American Legion, two posts of the Polish Legion of American Veterans, and Schley Naval camp of the United Spanish War Veterans.

The service men formed around the flagpole. The flag was raised and then lowered to half mast. A wreath was placed on a relic field piece of the world war and a rifle salute was fired. The speakers were Congressman A. J. Sabath, Henry A. Marquard, Illinois department commander, and Henry A. Cohen, past commander, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The sounding of taps concluded the ceremony.

VICTIM FROM ROCKFORD

Eric Carlson, second service man to die in Washington as the result of the recent bonus rioting, enlisted in the army at Rockford, Ill., two weeks after war was declared. He served 18 months overseas with headquarters company of the 86th field artillery in the Third division and was gassed and shell shocked. At the close of the war he came to Chicago and was a member of the Lake Shore post of the American Legion, since dissolved.

HOOVER CHARGES HALF OF BONUS ARMY NOT VETS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Crosscup Pishon post, one of the largest posts of the American Legion in New England, today announced receipt of a letter from President Hoover saying that less than half of the bonus army ever served under the American flag.

About the same time the announcement was made State Representative William C. Dolan of Boston sent letters to the American Red Cross at Washington and to Mayor Curley asking that assistance be given the bonus army quartered at Johnstown, Pa.

The letter from the President read: "I would be glad if the veterans throughout the country could know the character of the men claiming to be their representatives who have been in Washington since the adjournment of congress. It is the impression of our government services that less than half of them ever served under the American flag."

The letter was in response to a telegram sent the President by the post commending him for preserving order during the recent disturbance at Washington.

WIDOW POLLAK IS REVEALED AS OLD GIRL OF GANGSTER

Met Her Husband Through "Dingbat" Oberta.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Investigation disclosed yesterday that pretty Dorothy Pollak, who is in the county jail for killing her husband, was popular among the men of her neighborhood before her marriage. Johnnie (Dingbat) Oberta, gang chief, was one of her earliest sweethearts, it was learned, and as "the Dingbat's girl" she was widely recognized. Oberta, taken for a ride and slain in March of 1930, was a swashbuckling young politician and partner of Joe Saltis in the beer business.

HARRY P. GABEL.

Dorothy had nothing to say to reporters in the county jail yesterday. In Bohemian National cemetery Joe Pollak, the mate she shot in a dispute at their home, 1936 Garfield boulevard, last Wednesday night, slept beneath wilting flowers in his new grave.

Move for Early Trial.

In the Criminal court building across the plaza from the jail, the state's attorney's staff was preparing to speed the wheels of justice and seek a quick trial and a prompt conviction for the chic young wife of the middle aged alcohol merchant.

Her attorney, W. W. O'Brien, expedited matters when in a conference in the state's attorney's office he flatly refused to permit the prosecutors to interrogate his client. He will not place her on the stand when the coroner's inquest is resumed, he added, nor introduce any witnesses in her behalf. State's Attorney Swanson's men expressed satisfaction at his decision.

Instead of waiting until Saturday to reconvene the inquest, delayed to allow further investigation, the prosecutors had the date moved up to tomorrow. If the defendant is ordered held by the coroner's jury Frank Mast and Harry P. Gabel, the prosecutors in charge, expect to present the case to the grand jury on Friday for an immediate indictment.

"Cold Blooded Murder."

"Then," said Assistant State's Attorney Mast, "we shall get the trial scheduled for the earliest possible date—and ask for the death penalty. From our investigation and that of Assistant State's Attorney Michael Ostrowski, this appears to be a cold-blooded murder. Some years ago there was an epidemic of such murders by good looking women, until finally a couple of convictions put an end to it. We don't want another series and we intend to make an example of this woman."

Two star witnesses expected by Mast and Gabel to help them in prosecuting Dorothy, are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cebulski, friends of the slain man. The husband had worked for Pollak, delivering his alcohol and driving his car. The wife, mother of three children, was accused by the widow Pollak of having broken up her home. It was less this charge than her appended comment that "I wouldn't have cared if she'd been pretty, but she isn't," that aroused the Cebulskis.

They conferred yesterday with Mast and Gabel and repeated their explanation that it was Frank, not Julia Cebulski, whom Pollak sought when he paid his frequent calls at their home. They are ready and willing to testify against Dorothy, they said.

Both Foreign Born.

Scanning the personal histories of the dead man and the woman who killed him, investigators found much to interest them. Both Pollak and his wife were foreign born. He was a Bohemian Jew, 49 years old, who came to this country from Austria. He had been in the liquor business for the past twenty-seven years, "on the legit" until the eighteenth amendment was passed. Thereafter he operated as an independent partner of Joe Saltis. He handled the alcohol, "Polack Joe" the beer.

Pollak had never been arrested, though he had been called into the federal building more than once for questioning. Around his old neighborhood of 47th and Ashland, they talk openly about the one murder with which he is credited.

Victor Franskiewicz, handsome young politician and undercover hoodlum, was found dead in a Cicero alley in October of 1931. A coroner's jury said "murder by persons unknown." But the neighborhood said that the tough youngster wrote his death warrant when he hijacked a supply of Pollak's alcohol. He ignored Pollak's ultimatum, "the money or the stuff back in a week." So he went for a one way ride.

Known as Lone Wolf.

Known as something of a lone wolf, Pollak appeared to have a weakness for pretty women. His first wife, said to be still living in that vicinity, is remembered as "a humdinger of a blonde." But along came Dorothy Myerz, and Pollak divorced the blonde for the slim and dashing brunette.

As a matter of fact, they refer to her as Vicky in the drab neighborhood of 21st place and Robey street, where she grew up. She was brought to this country by her parents from Poland when she was five. She is 26 now, and it has been many a year since her father's roof was home to her. Somewhere along the road she traveled so swiftly the Vicky was dropped and the Dorothy evolved.

Never Lacked Attention.

With a modicum of education, no lack of sophistication, and pretty nearly a maximum of good looks Dorothy never lacked for masculine attention. Dorothy came to know Joe through "Dingbat" Oberta, whom Pollak had initiated into ways of making money quickly and easily. In time Dorothy, the "Dingbat's" one time girl, and Pollak, his one time employer, were married. That was three years ago.

But when Joe's affections showed signs of wandering [or when Dorothy decided that they did], they quarreled, were reconciled, and quarreled again. In the midst of the final quarrel she whipped out an automatic pistol and, according to her attorney, surprised even herself with the marksmanship that felled "poor Joe" with a bullet through one eye. There can be no doubt it was a surprise to Joe.

But there is recompense for Dorothy. She may be indicted for murder. But, at least, she's famous.

LEAVE FOR SUMMER CAMP

Alexander Stillman, recovered from injuries received in plane crash near Gary, Ind., and his mother, Mrs. Fowler McCormick, about to leave Chicago for northern Quebec.

To Fly Back

Alexander Stillman, 22 years old, who was injured in a plane crash at Gary two weeks ago, and his mother, Mrs. Fowler McCormick, the former "Fifi" Stillman, left last night over the Michigan Central railroad for Montreal. From there they are to fly to Camp Gauchette in northern Quebec, where young Stillman is to spend two weeks recuperating from his injuries. Mother and son expect to return to Chicago in Alexander's new Bellanca plane, the gift of his father, James Stillman, New York banker, which is being flown to the northern woods camp.

PROWLER FINED $200.

Wilford Clement, 40 years old, 3904 South Whipple street, who was arrested while prowling in the basement locker room at the Chicago Athletic club, 12 South Michigan avenue, was fined $200 yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green.

5,000 WELCOME GERMAN FLYERS ON ARRIVAL HERE

Von Gronau and Aids Will Remain 3 Days.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German aviator who has flown the Atlantic three times by the northern route, arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon and was given an enthusiastic greeting by 5,000 persons gathered on the lake front in Grant park.

The captain and his aids, Co-Pilot Ghert von Roth, Mechanic Franz Haak and Radio Operator Fritz Albrecht, swooped down on the lake shortly before 2 p. m. They had winged in from Detroit, where a broken water line on one of the two motors of their huge aerial boat, the Groenland Wal, had delayed them since Saturday.

Ship Is First Concern.

After a perfect landing the ship was taxied up to the ramp at 8th street. Although there were insistent demands that the crew debark and be properly greeted by the officials, politicians and representatives of German societies present, the methodical captain let it be known that the welfare of his ship was his first concern.

Accordingly, he and his helpers remained on board. The Groenland Wal was towed by a coast guard cutter, commanded by Capt. John O. Anderson, to the station at the mouth of the Chicago river and there made safe against damage before the Germans would consent to return to the ceremonies.

A Formal Greeting.

Again at the ramp forty-five minutes later, Capt. von Gronau was formally greeted by United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer, Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki, Dr. George Schaller, German vice consul; City Greeter George D. Gaw and Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder. Capt. C. W. Connell, representing the war department; Capt. H. L. Kumpfer, for Maj. Gen. Parker of the Sixth corps area, and Capt. George H. Weideling, leading delegations from the German societies.

Following the singing of a song by a choral society, the four Germans were loaded into Greeter Gaw's car and taken to the city hall. The flyers had had no lunch and appeared weary, but listened patiently to an address of welcome by Ernest J. Kruetgen, acting in the place of the absent Mayor Cermak.

Taken to Hotel Home.

The audience room was crowded. Having heard the speech both in German and in English, Capt. von Gronau responded briefly, expressing his thanks for the reception. The flyers were then taken to the Bismarck hotel, their home during their stay in the city.

Capt. von Gronau announced that he would spend today with his crew going over the Groenland Wal. He will leave on Friday for Milwaukee. Later the party will fly to Winnipeg, where there will be a halt for fishing in Canada's streams. A flight to Vancouver and a hop to Japan are expected to follow.

"But there is nothing certain about our movements," the flying captain added. "It is pleasant to take your time. We would prefer to have just a quiet welcome wherever we go, without formality. But every one is so kind to us."

Last night a reception was held by German societies in the Lincoln Turner hall. Some 400 crowded into the room. Corporation Counsel Sexton delivered a second welcoming address and Congressman Fred A. Britten told the flyers he hoped they would bring a case of real beer without fear of the law when they return again. The aviators then toasted Chicago in near beer.

The Groenland Wal and its crew had a rather difficult passage from Detroit. A start was first made at 9:55 a. m., but it was discovered soon afterward that the broken water pipe was still defective. The captain returned to Detroit, had repairs made and took off again at 11:45 a. m.

It had been the Germans' intention to fly direct from Ottawa to Chicago, but the break caused the change of plans. The ship left Germany on July 22, and after stops in Iceland and Greenland landed safely without untoward incident in Canada.

Capt. von Gronau, who has been in Chicago three times in three years after similar flights, asserted that he was still enthusiastic about the northern passage as a route for mail planes. He recommends the establishment of landing stages in Canada, Greenland and Iceland.

The captain is the son of Gen. Hans H. O. K. von Gronau, who was in command of the German army that advanced almost to Paris in the early part of the world war. The general is now in retirement. The son is an instructor in a German flying school on the Baltic.

OLDOWAY SKELETON NOT OLDEST HUMAN, SCIENCE DISCOVERS

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The celebrated Oldoway skeleton, which had been believed by some scientists to be the oldest known specimen of true man, finally was proved today to be nothing but an archaeological mistake.

A definite announcement was made before the congress of Pre-Historic sciences that the Oldoway man is one of a much later period than the rough million year old fragments among which the skeleton was found. The relative newness of the skeleton was established by an analysis of the contents of its bones and then comparing the results with an analysis of the surrounding fossil beds.

The antiquity of the Oldoway man has been suspected ever since Prof. Hans Reck of Berlin found the complete skeleton lying almost unharmed in a bed shattered grounds at Oldoway, Tanganyka, in 1913. Last winter Lewis S. B. Leakey, British archaeologist, examined the Oldoway fossil beds and said "almost beyond question" the skeleton was the oldest complete homo sapiens ever found. But his conclusion was disputed by many scientists, including Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, Prof. Elliott Smith, and even Sir Arthur Keith, who had been an admirer of Leakey's work as an archaeologist.

ON HONEYMOON

[Oxford Studio Photo.]

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Cumming Dakin, who played the "blessed virgin" in the motion picture Passion play, "King of Kings," and Duncan Alan McNab, English etcher, are en route to Europe tonight on their honeymoon, following their marriage here last Wednesday.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Victor Cummins, society matron of New York and Southampton, L. I., announced the marriage today. The couple sailed Saturday. With them were Mrs. McNab's two small sons, Grenville and Francis Dakin.

Mrs. Dakin and Frank Elliott Dakin, actor and stage director, were divorced in Los Angeles in December, 1927.

McNab is the son of Mrs. Duncan Knox McNab of London, England, and the late Capt. McNab, British naval officer, who was killed in the world war.

SOPRANO SINGERS OF NORTH SIDE TO COMPETE TONIGHT

The soprano singers living on the north side of Chicago will compete tonight in the first vocal preliminary contest of The Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The contestants will meet at 7:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Edgewater Beach hotel, 5349 Sheridan road. Three of the city's leading vocal teachers will act as judges.

The other northside vocalists, contraltos, tenors, baritones, and basses, will compete Thursday night. Winners on the north side will then compete with singers from the west and south sides and from the six chosen, two will be selected to represent Chicago against those coming into the city from Chicagoland towns. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded the "best man singer" and the best woman singer" in Chicagoland.

One of those chosen as winner in the finals will be presented Saturday night, Aug. 20, in Soldiers' Field at the festival concert.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 2.—The Theater Francais, one of Canada's most widely known theaters in the days of melodrama, was destroyed by fire today. The theater, now a movie house, was swept by fire at noon hour. Three hundred patrons moved quietly out of the building. Thirty firemen were overcome by smoke. The loss was estimated at $500,000.

The history of the Theater Francais dates back to the early days of Montreal. At one time the theater had the reputation of possessing the largest stage of any legitimate house in the world. During the days of its triumph, a man in the gallery fired at the villain, missed him, but knocked three feet of plaster off the top of the proscenium arch.

ILLINOIS RELIEF BOARD CRITICIZED ON EIGHT POINTS

Legislators Make Report of Investigation.

Eight major criticisms of the manner in which charity is dispensed in Illinois were leveled at the Illinois Emergency Relief commission last night by a legislative subcommittee.

The criticisms, made in the guise of "recommendations," are contained in a report of the subcommittee of assemblymen which listened to complaints of the commission's work and to the defenses offered by seasoned social workers who are directing the relief.

The subcommittee is a division of the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditures, which was authorized by the general assembly in 1931, and is headed by Senator Richard R. Meents of Ashkum. Signing the report with Senator Meents were Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago, Representative Alexander Wilson of Cairo, and State Auditor Oscar Nelson. They made their report to Senator Martin C. Carlson of Moline, chairman of the legislative commission, who made it public last night.

Eight Recommendations Made.

The following recommendations were made as to the relief commission's work:

1. Salaries should be reduced and standardized.
2. Not more than one member of a family should be employed in relief work.
3. Consideration should be given to the payment of rents.
4. Relief to distressed families should be made more quickly.
5. No relief commission worker should be given a vacation with pay. [This practice was discontinued last week.]
6. More thorough investigations of cases applying for aid should be made so that help may be given on a more equal basis.
7. A program should be devised to provide work for able bodied persons.
8. Clothing, coal, groceries, etc., should be purchased from neighborhood merchants "if practicable."

Social Workers Give Answers.

A detailed answer on each of these points was made last night by Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities, one of Chicago's veteran social workers. Wilfred S. Reynolds, secretary of the relief commission and director of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, and Joseph L. Moss, director of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, also replied to portions of the report. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the commission, could not be reached.

The legislators' report began with a tabulation of salaries paid to relief agents, including superintendents and supervisors, social workers, stenographers, clerks and other clerical help. All salaries are paid from state funds.

Supervisors' salaries range from a top figure of $333.33 a month downward to a minimum of $71.50 in all the agencies working with the Relief commission, the United Charities, the Catholic Charities, the Jewish Charities, the Salvation Army [Chicago], the county Bureau of Public Welfare and the Unemployment Relief service, a branch of the county organization.

Social workers' salaries rise from a minimum of $75 a month to a maximum of $233.32. Stenographers are paid from $50 to $166, and clerks and clerical help from $35 to $300.

Recommend Standardizing Pay.

"Your subcommittee found much discrepancy in salaries for the same class of work," said the report. "Therefore we recommend that the salaries be standardized and in many cases reduced."

Mr. Moss said that only one person, the head of the Unemployment Relief service, receives the top salary of $333.

Mr. Hunter prefaced his remarks on this point by saying that he believed the legislators were sincere in their desire to help the situation. He appeared before them at the hearings, he said, and was impressed by their "desire to help." They were extremely sympathetic, he added.

"But these recommendations contradict themselves," said Mr. Hunter. "They ask more speed in case work and in the same breath ask reduction and standardization of salaries. One reason for the delay is that there are not enough people working for us. You cannot distribute $100,000 each day to more than 100,000 families without cost. If you don't pay sufficiently you waste money."

The subcommittee reported that it found several cases where more than one person from the same family is employed as a relief worker and is drawing pay from the state. "This practice we most earnestly discourage and condemn," the report said. Mr Moss said that he did not believe that more than six cases of this type exist.

The relief commission's policy of not paying rents for needy persons was criticized by the subcommittee as "working a hardship on the property owners, who in numerous cases are unable to pay their taxes and in many cases are forced to evict the tenants in order to gain possession of their property."

"We recommend," said the report, "that consideration be given to the payment of reasonable rents, and we suggest that perhaps a plan could be worked out whereby rent money could be paid to the county treasurer to apply on taxes."

"In the years before the depression," said Mr. Hunter, "we found in the United Charities that rent payments constituted about 20 per cent of our expenditures. In this crisis the figure would be higher—about 25 per cent—I believe, and that would mean that we would need more money."

On Speeding Up Relief.

On the matter of speeding up relief, the legislative report said: "In the average uncomplicated case, we found it takes four weeks to make an investigation of a family which has applied for relief. We suggest that some plan be arranged whereby a report of an investigated family can be made in a shorter time."

"Relief," replied Mr. Hunter, "is given immediately if an emergency exists. Investigation may continue for some time but immediate wants are taken care of."

Mr. Reynolds said that in many instances where an individual applies to the commission and is in absolute want, help is given instantly.

Mr. Moss said that the same policy exists in his bureau. "Where no immediate emergency is felt," he said, "our investigations generally require about two weeks."

Points to Friday Meeting.

In connection with the subcommittee's recommendation that work be provided for able bodied persons, Mr. Hunter called attention to the meeting scheduled for Friday when the relief commission will consider ways and means of doing this.

Concerning the last suggestion, that groceries, coal, and other supplies for destitute persons be purchased in neighborhood stores whenever practicable, Mr. Moss said that large contracts for certain commodities made for chaper prices, but added that for every $5 spent wholesale $10 is spent retail.

The subcommittee report closed with a tabulation to show that in Cook county the salary overhead item is more than 9 per cent of the total relief expenditures, whereas in downstate counties salaries constitute about 6 per cent.

In reply to this Mr. Hunter said that the costs of furnishing relief to the poor in a large city would necessarily be greater than in smaller communities — transportation, salaries, rent, and other expenses being higher.

DECLARES ILLINOIS IS DOING ITS BEST TO MULTIPLY JOBS

Commenting yesterday on the proposed White House unemployment conference to discuss, among other things, the five day week and the six hour day, James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, said that a majority of manufacturers in Illinois are already "staggering" employment to provide work for as great a number of people as possible.

"We have given careful consideration for several years to the present objectives of the Washington conference," said Mr. Donnelly. "Information developed through our members as well as through the Illinois Industrial council indicates that a great majority of the manufacturing industries of Illinois are dividing available work among the maximum number of employés in every feasible manner.

"It has been believed impractical to standardize the working hours for all types of manufacture. The number of hours per day as well as the number of days per week during which a particular industry operates are necessarily dependent on the conditions in that particular industry.

"Wherever efforts have been made to standardize working hours and conditions in industry by legislation or governmental regulations, unnecessary and severe hardships have been occasioned to both employé and employer."

$3,000,000 AT HAND

The federal government's check for $3,000,000—representing the first relief advance made to Illinois by the Reconstruction Finance corporation—will probably be indorsed by Gov. Emmerson and turned over to the relief commission today.

U. S. TO ATTEND WORLD PARLEY ON ECONOMICS

Bars Any Discussion of War Debts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—State department officials today announced that the United States will attend the international monetary and economic conference called by the league of nations following the conclusion of the Lausanne reparations and war debts parley. Officials said, however, that war debts and reparations are banned as subjects at the approaching meeting.

A formal note conveying the American acceptance of the league invitation was transmitted to the British government late today. This communication stated that the United States government would be glad to attend the conference providing war debts and reparations were not included among the subjects to be discussed. It was also that this country would name two experts to aid in the preliminary examination of the financial and economic questions to be considered.

Time and Place Not Set.

Neither the date nor the place where the conference is to be held has been settled. It has been generally assumed that the conference would be held in London although reports have been circulated that it might be held in the United States. Indications are, however, that the conference will be held in a nation signatory to the league of nations covenant. The date for the conference may not be set until after the conclusion of the imperial conference at Ottawa where the British dominions are struggling with the problem of bringing back prosperity.

Two of the announced major objects sought at the coming conference are a revival of international trade and the restoration of currencies to a healthy basis. The silver question in its various phases will be on the conference agenda. Other subjects to be discussed include prohibitions placed on imports and exports, trade quotas, and other barriers to trade, monetary, and credit policies, the level of prices, the movement of capital from one nation to another, tariff policy, and producers' agreements.

Hard to Keep War Debts Out.

Notwithstanding the promise on the part of the powers sponsoring the parley that the question of war debts and reparations will not be discussed, many senators believe it will be impossible to keep the war debts owed this country by the allies out of the picture. In this connection it is pointed out that this parley will represent the first major international meeting held since the Lausanne conference, when agreement was reached to settle the German reparations problem by cutting the gross amount paid by Germany to a fraction of the amount she would have to pay under the Young plan.

It was recalled that secret agreements entered into at that time provided that the terms of the reparations agreement would not be binding until after an agreement had been reached cutting the debt owed by the allies to the United States. Indications are that the conference will be held at a time when at least some of the debtor powers will be carrying on diplomatic correspondence with this county in an effort to have their obligations to this country scaled down.

In accepting the league invitation the United States agreed to be represented on the committee of the council of the league of nations, which is charged with the task of convoking the conference.

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH

BORAH HAS HIS PLAN; BUT TRY TO FIND IT OUT!

Silent on What He'll Do in Campaign.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, passing through Chicago yesterday, declined to disclose just what he is going to do in reference to the presidential campaign. In short, emphatic sentences he turned down every possibility suggested to him by newspaper men.

He was on his way to Minneapolis where he is to speak tonight. The first question from his interviewers touched on that subject and sufficed to bring from the senator a snappy reply.

"Will your speech be political?" he was asked.

"Not a party speech," he replied.

"What are you going to do about the national campaign?"

"I have decided but haven't announced that yet."

Position Same as Before.

"Are you going to support the Republican national ticket?"

The reply came without a second's hesitation and the emphasis was on the last word. It was:

"I haven't put in yet."

Then he amplified, but only briefly:

"My position is the same as I stated it on the floor of the senate immediately after the national convention. I said then I would not support Hoover on this platform."

He was asked whether that decision was because of the prohibition straddle plank.

"Not entirely," he answered. "I don't think any more of the economic and agricultural plank than I do of the prohibition plank. On prohibition the Democrats at least say in their platform what they think."

He Won't Go Democratic.

"Then will you support the Democratic ticket?"

"No. That's not possible."

"Will you take part in a third party movement?"

"There is no third party so far as I'm concerned. I am not in contact with any third party movement."

The next question was whether he would refrain from taking any part in the fall campaign. It seemed to surprise him that anybody should ask it.

"I shall take an active interest in my state election," he said, "but stopped there.

During his brief stay in Chicago Senator Borah did not visit the Republican national headquarters in the Palmer house. He said upon his arrival that he would not visit there and would hold no political conferences in the city.

Canadian Police Swing Clubs on Jobless Demonstrators

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 2.—Scenes of violence were witnessed here today when police reserves were called out to disperse a demonstration of 500 Red delegates to the "workers' economic conference." Heads were cracked as the police swung clubs when the demonstrators refused to disperse, and many arrests were made.

The trouble began when the Reds attempted to hold a meeting in Market square and permission was refused. They then moved to a park in Sussex street, where soap box orators began to harangue the crowd. The police tried to persuade the demonstrators to move on. The Reds refused. The police then charged and after a sharp struggle succeeded in running the crowd down the street.

Bennett Rejects Demands.

The riot followed the rejection by Premier Bennett earlier in the day of a series of demands by the National Conference of Unemployment councils for relief of the jobless. The premier told the jobless delegates that the government is doing everything it can to assist the needy, even though that task is primarily the function of the provinces.

The unemployed delegation received hard boiled treatment from the prime minister. There were seven of them, and when they arrived at Mr. Bennett's office they were met by three husky sergeants of the Canadian mounted police with big revolvers conspicuously strapped on their hips.

The spokesmen of the unemployed were George Winslade of Toronto, Mrs. Allen Wilkinson of North York, and J. B. McLaughlin, a miner from Nova Scotia, who has been in Russia. It soon developed that Mr. Bennett knew all about McLaughlin's trip and connections.

Clashes with Spokesman.

Winslade made a long statement, and when he came to the unemployed "demands" Bennett said:

"That's a hard word. Won't you say suggestions? That would go a long way further with me."

Winslade refused to modify the word, and when he had finished Bennett went through the demands one by one and turned them down contemptuously. He told the delegates that the embargo on soviet Russian goods would not be lifted in any circumstances and engaged in an interchange of statement and contradiction with McLaughlin about conditions in Russia.

"You couldn't talk to the Russian government the way you have talked to me today," Bennett said.

He told how Russia had ruined an asbestos company in Canada by underbidding and declared Russia was trying to do the same with the Canadian lumbermen and wheat farmers.

Refuses Jobless Insurance.

Regarding the demand for an unemployment insurance act, Bennett said:

"This government won't pass any such act."

On the demand for the repeal of certain repressive laws and the release of prisoners convicted under them, the premier declared the laws would not be repealed nor the prisoners released.

"This country is British and law abiding," he said. "No prisoners will be released until they have served their time, and if you or they break the laws the whole machinery of government will be used to smash you."

Mrs. Wilkinson tried to say something about starving children, but Bennett stopped her, and said that if her child was starving he would see that it was fed.

The delegates were ushered out in a daze by the big policemen, and when asked what they thought of it could only reply: "Hell, we're going to lunch."

FLEET OF THIRTY BOATS ARE BEING BUILT FOR FAIR

A fleet of thirty boats will be used to carry passengers along the shore at the World's Fair next year, according to the announcement of exposition officials yesterday. The boats are now under construction at the plant of the Truscott Boat company at Benton Harbor. They are designed on modernistic lines and each will carry 40 passengers.

Exposition executives were hosts yesterday to a delegation of eighty business, professional and agricultural leaders of La Salle county, who talked over plans for a county exhibit next year. L. C. Carroll, executive secretary of the Ottawa chamber of commerce, acted as spokesman.

"La Salle county is one of the largest producers of agricultural and industrial products in the entire country," Carroll said. "It is the home of Starved Rock park, with its wealth of historic lore and tradition. An exhibit from our county would interest the nation."

Rufus C. Dawes, president of the fair, informed the delegates that it had not been planned to include county exhibits at the exposition. The board of directors, however, will take up participation by La Salle county and other counties desiring to enter.

CANADA REFUSES TO 'SELL OUT' ITS OWN INDUSTRY

Will Not Sacrifice It for Sake of Preference.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 2.—Canada will not sacrifice any efficient industry for the sake of preference for her natural products in the British market, and all Canadian industry is efficient. Canada still stands by her demand for a preferential duty on wheat entering Britain. Canada still asks for the exclusion from empire markets of Russian products so long as Russia continues her present method of unfair competition.

These three facts emerged from an interview with Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada this afternoon. Mr. Bennett began by saying his job was to make the British imperial economic conference a success and not to enlighten the public.

Then to counter the substantiated reports that acute differences of opinion amounting in many cases to irritation have developed between the delegates, he quoted a "most experienced delegate" as saying that never had he seen a conference at which the spirit had been so excellent as this one.

Jarring Note Admitted.

"That is true," said the premier. "Occasionally there has been a jarring note, but that was to be expected. Up to the present moment nothing has occurred in the conference that is different from what I would ask for if I had the making of it."

Mr. Bennett revealed that neither Britain nor Canada had exchanged in documentary form a full list of their proposals for concessions to each other. The matter has been discussed verbally, he said.

"Certain documents have passed," he said, "but the matter is still in the discussion stage."

Mr. Bennett said he believed the conference will result in a number of bilateral treaties or agreements between various nations of the empire and that the full conference may bless them all in some sort of comprehensive resolution.

Empire Bank Is Urged.

One of the questions now under discussion by the committee on money and finance is the establishment of an empire bank to handle the clearance of trade balances between the countries of the empire. Questioned on the specific matters of wheat and lumber, Mr. Bennett replied:

"In my opinion it is desirable there should be a preference on wheat. Lumber is one of those commodities whose fluctuating price is made possible by unfair competition from one country, and I maintain that the products of unfair competition should be excluded from the empire markets.

"Regarding textiles, the position is simple. In so far as it is possible to encourage any importations from countries of the British empire into Canada without impairing efficient Canadian industry it will be done, and the Canadian cotton industry is one of the most efficient in the world. The fifth largest cotton mill on the American continent is in Canada, and we have not attained the position of the third largest exporting country in the world without having a thoroughly efficient industry in all branches."

Mr. Bennett's optimism is not reflected by the British delegation, which is trying to fill a complete picture from the inadequate data in their possession. They hope to receive Bennett's final proposals tomorrow and are ready to submit their own proposals the following day.

Definite Cleavage Noted.

Despite Mr. Bennett's statement it is very apparent that the British and their dominions do not love each other.

There is now a definite cleavage between the British, Australians and New Zealanders on one side and the Canadians and South Africans on the other. The Australians are supporting Britain because they hope to get some solid benefits from the mother country in the way of guaranteed loans.

The British in turn are passing through a stage of intense irritation at the Canadians and South Africans and particularly the former over the delay in producing their list of 8,000 articles on which Canada is ready to grant preferences to Britain.

The British are also irritated over the delays caused by holidays and junkets. The work of the conference was halted officially last Saturday. The conference was resumed today but will be interrupted again on Thursday for a junket to the opening of the Welland canal. This holiday will last until next Monday.

The committee on industrial standardization met today, discussing a proposal for the establishment of a bureau of empire standards in London, whose duty would be to work for the establishment of common weights and measures and other standards throughout the empire and to prevent as far as possible delays in trade owing to differing standards. It might also try to assimilate empire with foreign standards. No decision was reached.

$10,000,000 RELIEF LOAN ASKED OF BOARD BY PENNSYLVANIA

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania, appealed to the board of the Reconstruction Finance corporation today for an immediate loan of $10,000,000 for use in meeting the relief needs of his state. He told the board that the state's minimum requirements up to April 1 next were $40,000,000.

After Gov. Pinchot had spent two hours before the board, Chairman Atlee Pomerene asked him to return Thursday with more definite data regarding the needs of Pennsylvania. He asked also that representatives of the state senate and house appear at that time. Board officials advised the governor that they wanted to hold the loans to each state down to the minimum.

"We have 1,250,000 persons totally unemployed," Gov. Pinchot told the board. "In addition we have 800,000 working on half time. This represents more than half the working population of the state."

TWO DYING OF INJURIES.

Coldwater, Mich., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Malcomb Fera and Dick Dabalan, Philadelphia, Pa., were probably fatally injured when their car collided with a machine said to belong to Mrs. Ruth V. Scheel, Cairo, Ill.

R. F. C. CALLS ON ALL GOVERNORS TO LIST NEEDS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Fred C. Croxton, assistant to the directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation today called upon all governors of states seeking federal relief funds to accompany their applications with a statement showing estimated relief needs for each of the remaining calendar months of 1932.

The request for this information was contained in an "emergency relief bulletin" detailing the exact procedure and red tape which must be followed by each state before loans will be granted. This document emphasized that funds loaned by the corporation would be "supplemental to local and state governmental funds and private contributions which can be made available."

According to Mr. Croxton, the federal loans are to be made "only as a last resort in case funds from such sources [as mentioned above] are inadequate." In his bulletin, Mr. Croxton asks that states in need of relief funds furnish the finance corporation with: [1] a list of the municipalities and other political subdivisions within the state for which funds are required; [2] the estimated total amount needed for direct relief, including cost of administration from all sources for each of the remaining calendar months of 1932; [3] the estimated amount available or which can be made available for direct relief during the balance of the year from local governmental funds, private contributions, state funds, national agencies and from other sources.

Ask $300,000 of U. S. to Build Sewage Plant

Niles, Mich., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—The Niles city council voted to ask the Federal Reconstruction Finance corporation for $300,000 to finance the building of a sewage disposal plant. The city group is confident of having the money granted since the state welfare committee which must pass on the appeal is headed by F. J. Plym, Niles manufacturer.

SLAYER RETURNS TO CRIME SCENE AND IS CAPTURED

On an August evening two years ago Sam Siciliana, 23 years old, stepped out of his home at 1004 Cambridge avenue for a stroll with his wife, Josephine, and her father, Sam Cutrara. They were met by John Collura, who had been a neighbor of Cutrara in Palermo, Italy.

He asked to see Siciliana alone. They walked away a few steps. Four shots sounded. Mrs. Siciliana turned to see her husband fall to the sidewalk mortally wounded. Collura fled. Police, searching for him on a charge of murder, were told that he had returned to Palermo.

Yesterday Collura returned to the scene of the crime. Mrs. Siciliana saw him enter a soft drink parlor at Oak street and Cambridge avenue, next door to her home. She called Chicago avenue police and Sergt. Hugh Smith led a squad in search of him.

Collura ran to the roof of the building and tried to escape into a window of the building occupied by the widow. He was pursued, however, and captured. Police said he had returned from Italy a few days ago.

STATE TROOPERS TAKE UP SEARCH FOR GIRL'S BODY

Authorities Convinced She Was Slain.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ludington, Mich., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Ten miles inland from this small lake port, Michigan state troopers were poling up the waters of the Sable river and its swampy tributaries this evening in search of the body of Evelyn Sanford.

The tall, shy girl of 17 years with the winsome smile disappeared Saturday night and Capt. Earl J. Hathaway, commander of the troopers on the case, is convinced that she fell a victim to rape and murder.

Taking over the case at noon today from Sheriff George L. Colyer, Capt. Hathaway had his troopers round up all of the dozen persons who had seen or talked with the girl within a few hours of the time she vanished on a homeward stroll from the village of Freesoil to her father's farm, half a mile away.

The captain transformed the ramshackle village hall into police headquarters where he gathered in all lines of the present investigation. Hundreds of friends and neighbors of the Sanford family are participating in the hunt.

Village Eccentric Questioned.

Chief among those held for questioning was Francis [Rusty] Nash, a bachelor of 32, who lives in a boarded up house, shuns his neighbors and has a fondness for collecting daggers and firearms.

Nash vanished from his accustomed haunts early Sunday, some hours before Evelyn's disappearance became generally known, and did not reappear until twenty-four hours later.

In explanation he offers the not unreasonable excuse that in every police case the village has hitherto experienced, he was the first to be picked up. In this instance, Nash said, he hoped to avoid suspicion by keeping out of sight.

Find but One Clew.

Dread now grips the countryside. A systematic thirty-six hour search of the swamp lands has disclosed only one clew—a few strands of blonde hair on a twig and heel prints in the soft moss, where on Saturday night a wayfarer heard a scream in passing.

The fear is that Evelyn's body may have been cast into Mud lake, a swampy pool close by the scene of the footprints, where cattle and horses have been known to lose footing, sink and never reappear. With the continued absence of any reassuring message by telephone, telegraph or mail, her parents have about given up a hope they earlier entertained that their daughter might have wearied of farm life and gone away voluntarily.

Transformed by Prohibition.

A case such as this has been a long time in the making, farmers and townsfolks are saying tonight. Within the last two years distillers have been cooking a peculiarly vile brand of corn whisky back in the swamps, while their associates in the trade have been erecting dance pavilions or transforming farm houses into roadhouses on the country lanes.

The license permitted at these hidden resorts has been pretty rank, particularly this summer, according to reports. Boys and girls from Ludington, Manistee and from the smaller towns and farms, have established a weekend custom of loading their cars with whisky and ginger ale, driving to these resorts and spending hours on the dance floor or spooning in the cars.

At one such place last Saturday night some of the girls, copying the wiles of the taxi dancers of Chicago, appeared on the dance floor in brassiers and step-ins. The daring innovation created a sensation and the hall enjoyed a big play the following night.

The fantastic story of a night traveler, who said yesterday that he saw a group of youths making sport of a girl whom they had stripped nude in the woods, has been verified.

State troopers, tracking down the story, found a girl in the village of Wellston who said she had gone riding with five boys, who disrobed her, formed a circle about her, and jeered at her shame, explaining that such was their habitual sport on Saturday nights.

Kidnapers Seized with Victim Waiting for Ransom in Bank

Richmond, Va., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Two youths, holding a capitalist and an orphanage superintendent as captives, were trapped by police in a Richmond bank today as they sought to collect $7,500 in ransom money.

Delivery from their captors came to George N. Davis, 65, of Richmond, and R. K. Robertson, superintendent of the Davis-Stuart orphanage, as they stood under threat of pistols in the bank, following an all night ride from Lewisburg, W. Va., where they were kidnapped.

The two youths gave their names as Jack Liggett, 25, of Charleston, W. Va., and William Craft, alias Paul Whittington, 21, of Wheeling, W. Va. The two were held on charges of attempting robbery with pistols, an offense punishable with death in Virginia.

Bank Officer Calls Police.

The arrests were made in the midst of the noonday rush at the First and Merchant's bank, where Davis was a depositor, while posses scoured the mountainous region between Lewisburg and the Virginia border for trace of Davis and Robertson.

Fred G. Mitchell, vice president of the bank here, had been warned that Davis might be in trouble and appear here. He notified police who arrived at the bank while Davis was stalling his kidnapers, who were seeking to force him to make a withdrawal of $7,500 from his account. When accosted the youth turned their guns from Davis and Robertson to the officers and police weapons were drawn but the arrest was made without gun fire.

Davis said the boys duped him into leaving his country home near Lewisburg and going to a hotel in town for an interview regarding his private affairs, asserting they were representatives of the internal revenue office at Richmond. Later Davis and Robertson started for the Davis home to be met at the gate by the men, who forced their way into Robertson's car after firing once into the air and with the threat that they would "bump me off if I did not come across with $10,000."

Outwits Captors in Bank.

Davis said another car, which he believed was heavily armed, possibly with a machine gun, followed them as they started toward Richmond, but he lost track of it before reaching this city. En route he said he decided to play a waiting game, hoping to get the men into the bank, and told them all of his ready cash was here. After some argument they compromised at $7,500.

While stalling in the bank Davis told them his balance was only $6,000. While he pretended to negotiate a loan police, who had been summoned by bank authorities who recognized Davis, pounced upon the youths.

Both Davis and Robertson were almost exhausted by their experience, and after Davis sent a message to his invalid wife, in Lewisburg, who did not know what had become of him, they sought rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis formerly were permanent residents here.

41 POLICE CHIEFS TELL SWANSON OF TRAFFIC "FIXING"

He Gets "Lowdown" on Enforcement.

BY HAL FOUST.

J. V. MILLER.

State's Attorney Swanson yesterday convened a meeting that had received advance notice as his opening gun in a war on speed traps. Assembled in his office were forty-one chiefs of police from Cook county municipalities surrounding Chicago, several of them targets of recent complaints by motorists.

The prosecutor explained the state vehicle code, defined a speed trap and issued a mild warning against abusing automobile drivers. The chiefs of police discussed "ticket fixing," stop signs and through streets, appointed a committee and adjourned.

"The purpose of this meeting," said the state's attorney after the hand shaking was over, "is to eliminate the so-called speed trap if possible without any drastic action."

"Too Many Big Shots."

When he had finished a detailed explanation of the motor vehicle code, Joseph V. Miller, chief of Glenview, said:

"The trouble in traffic enforcement is that there are too many big shots. After stopping somebody going too fast in a little old car the driver says he knows Cermak or Swanson or somebody. A policeman can't tell whether to make the arrest or not."

The state's attorney smiled.

"I guess I've been sold up and down the county," he said.

"The best thing we could do," Chief Miller continued, "would be to declare a thirty day moratorium on fixing."

Chief Harry McGinnis of La Grange thought Chief Miller was too general in his references to tearing up tickets.

"I haven't fixed a ticket in two years," he declared.

A Lot of Grief.

In a few minutes Chief Benjamin Barsema of Oak Park took the floor.

"It's true that the chief hasn't fixed a ticket in two years," he said affably, "but there are others who take care of the fixing. It would save a lot of grief for policemen everywhere if a ticket really meant that a motorist had to appear in court."

The Oak Park chief then damned the multiplicity of unnecessary stop signs and traffic lights in his village.

"Every time some one dents a fender," he said, "he'll run to a trustee and get a stop sign or a light installed at the corner. Some one won't see an unilluminated sign, another driver will place too much confidence in the sign—and there's a crash. In Glen Ellyn, without a through street or a stop sign, the village has the lowest accident record in Illinois."

Too Many Run Lights.

Chief Charles M. Holmes of Niles Center continued on the subject of lights.

"That's our main trouble," he said, "too many folks running the lights. On speeding charges you won't find more than one case in a hundred in my village where the driver was doing less than fifty miles an hour."

"No one has ever complained about arresting those who run through the red light," Mr. Swanson commented.

"Just what is a speed trap?" said Chief A. H. Leeseberg of Melrose Park, getting back to the subject of the meeting. Motorists in the last two years have frequently complained about Melrose Park police.

"A speed trap," replied the state's attorney, "is a place where police are looking for technical violations, looking to make arrests where the violations are of no consequence. It is a place where the police and the justice of peace are interested in the amounts of fines and costs and not in the justice of complaints; a place depending upon revenue from the arrest of motorists."

Code Protects Traffic.

Earlier in the meeting Mr. Swanson had explained that the motor vehicle code was enacted to protect traffic, that its enforecement was purely a matter of common sense, and that no village was with authority to enact ordinances conflicting with the state code.

"The only provision of the law warranting an arrest," he said, "is when the speed is faster than reasonable and proper considering the condition of the road and of the traffic. The wide roads radiating from Chicago invite speed. Because a realty subdivider has erected lamp posts and because an idle subdivision has been incorporated, doesn't mean that a village officer should hold traffic to a speed limit2 fitting a builtup area with cross traffic and pedestrians."

The committee appointed to survey conditions and draw some conclusions from the parley consists of Chiefs Holmes, Miller, Leeseberg, Barsema, and Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston and Chief J. J. Shupryt of Calumet City.

LEGAL POINTS ARE RAISED IN VOTE CONTEST

Judge Thomas J. Lynch indicated yesterday that he attaches importance to two legal questions not yet disposed of in the contest between James Simpson Jr. and Ralph E. Church over the Republican nomination for congress from the 10th district.

One of the questions is whether a precinct election clerk may perform the duties of an election judge without authority beyond that conveyed by another judge in the same precinct. This issue was raised in testimony showing that Hathorn W. McCulloch, a son of Frank H. McCulloch and Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulloch, both well known in Democratic politics, was appointed a clerk in the 3d precinct of the 7th ward of Evanston, but acted as a judge on election day, initialing most of the 321 ballots cast. On this basis, Urban Lavery, counsel for Simpson, contended that such ballots were invalid.

The second legal question was raised when Lavery challenged the validity of several hundred ballots cast by affidavit, contending that voting by affidavit was prohibited by the legislature of 1929. The court continued the case yesterday and will hear legal arguments next Monday.

HEIRESS, 34, WHO WED YOUTH OF 18 ASKS ANNULMENT

Mrs. Florence O'Shea Foley, 34 years old, reputed heiress to a $500,000 fortune, filed a bill for annullment yesterday in the Supreme court against Chris Foley, 18 years old, a chauffeur. Mrs. Foley lives at the North Park hotel, 1937 North Park avenue.

She and Foley eloped to Valparaiso, Ind., on Sept. 18, 1931, and were married. Mrs. Foley charges that Foley perjured himself in obtaining the marriage license, by stating that he was more than 18 years old when he was actually only 17. She asks the annullment on grounds of fraud.

On Oct. 11 last year Mrs. Foley was found in a semi-conscious condition in her room in the hotel where she now lives. She was removed to a hospital, where physicians diagnosed her condition as coming from an overdose of a sleeping powder. Foley was held for a day by police, but released at his wife's request. He told police at that time that he had quarreled with his wife shortly after their marriage, and that she had left him.

PENNSYLVANIA FOR ENDING LAME DUCK CONGRESS

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania legislature today completed ratification of the proposed amendment to the federal constitution to eliminate the "lame duck" session of congress. The amendment would provide for the meeting of a new congress in January instead of March, with the inauguration of the President in January instead of on March 4. The house passed the ratification resolution today. It previously had been passed by the senate.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's ratification of the "lame duck" amendment to the constitution today made it the 14th state to complete action.

FISHER DEFENDS COURT'S DELAYS IN BANDIT CASE

Explains Probation for Holdup Pair.

JUDGE FISHER.

Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court yesterday defended the court procedure in the case of the three bandits who held up Miss Marie MacLaughlan, 17 years old, and her mother last May 2 in their restaurant at 9131 South Western avenue. Judge Fisher put two of the bandits on probation after the complaining witnesses had appeared twenty-five times in court. The third robber was sent to St. Charles reformatory by the Juvenile court.

"What's all the excitement about that case?" Judge Fisher inquired. "Everything that happened in that case was in open court."

"Why was probation granted to two of the holdup men, Alex Johnston and Allen Reynolds, who pleaded guilty to the robbery?" he was asked.

"Because they asked for it," replied the judge, "and because the complaining witnesses agreed to it and the state's attorney recommended it."

Miss MacLaughlan and her father, J. D. MacLaughlan, have asserted that they finually acceded to the request for probation because they were tired of the many continuances in the case. Assistant State's Attorney Daniel Covelli declared the state's attorney's office had no control over the granting of probation.

Tired of Continuances.

"Why the many continuances?" Judge Fisher was asked.

"I didn't know there were as many as has been stated," he replied. "The record shows that the indictments were returned on May 27, the robbers were arraigned June 3, were brought up for trial June 13, and pleaded guilty on June 22.

"The case was continued several times after that on the appeal for probation made by the defendants. The complaining witness didn't have to appear to give evidence after the plea of guilty. Several continuances were caused because I was unable to get to my courtroom.

"At other times I waited to see what the Juvenile court would do to Charles Harrington, who, the complaining witnesses said, was the real criminal and leader in the holdup. The Juvenile court appeared to be waiting to see what I would do in the case. That caused much of the delay."

A Query to Judge.

"Didn't the many continuances weary the complaining witnesses so that they finally agreed to the probation out of sheer exhaustion?" Judge Fisher was asked. "They state that such was the case."

"That might be the case in some hearings," said Judge Fisher. "But the defendants were promptly found guilty here and the continuances were on the plea for probation. The complaining witnesses were through after the finding of guilty.

"In cases of the sort, I do not usually allow probation but in this case Harrington appeared to be the real culprit and when he was sent to the reformatory, I yielded to the pleas of the other defendants who presented evidence showing they had previous good records."

McLaughlan and his daughter expressed bewilderment at the outcome of the case after they made 25 trips to court from their home.

CHILDREN FIND TWO SLAIN MEN BY INDIANA ROAD

Hijackers Are Blamed for Double Killing.

Seymour, Ind., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Three children playing along the highway five miles south of here late today stumbled upon the bodies of two men lying concealed in the weeds. Each had been shot eight to ten times. All marks of identification had been stripped from the clothing.

Coroner W. A. Bickmeyer theorized that the men were rum runners who had been hijacked of their load of contraband and slain by the hijackers. The road near which the bodies were found is U. S. Highway 31, the main route between Indianapolis and Louisville. One report was that the men were known in Louisville as bootleggers and alcohol runners, but no certain identification was made last night.

Killed Early in Day.

The men had been killed early this morning, about twelve hours before the bodies were found, Coroner Bickmeyer said. Both were about 35 years old. One man was 5 feet 11 inches in height, weighed 165 pounds, and had brown hair and blue eyes. The other was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 160 pounds, had light hair and blue eyes.

A ring and a watch charm bearing the emblem of the Eagles lodge worn by one of the victims were the only means of identification found. The men were well dressed. In the socks of one of the victims $100 was found. The police were also checking a Panama hat bearing the label "Sims," which was found near the bodies.

Shot Many Times.

The men had been slain by steel jacketed bullets. They had been shot many times in the chest and head. No traces of a struggle were found near the place where the bodies were found, and the authorities reasoned that the killing probably took place many miles away and the bodies were carried to the spot where they were thrown out.

$400,000 INHERITANCE LOST BY WIDOW DUE TO HER REMARRIAGE

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mildred E. Sonn, widow of Sidney M. Sonn, Westchester real estate developer, lost a $400,000 bequest in his will because she remarried, it was disclosed today in an appraisal of the estate.

Mr. Sonn, who died Sept. 25, 1930, provided that if she remarried she was to get only $50,000 and an annuity of $15,000. The estate was valued at $2,303,189 gross and $1,458,216 net, of which $1,748,073 was in securities, mainly in realty bonds.

The Misses Margaret, Helen, and Sidney Hope Sonn, daughters, benefited from the reduction in their mother's bequest, since they receive the income from the residuary estate.

Berlin Rejects Complaint of Poles on Flag's Removal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

The complaint was rejected because, it was held, the garden was extraterritorial.

DEATH OF SEIPEL SAVES LIFE OF AUSTRIA CABINET

Successor's Vote Beats No-Confidence Motion.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 2.—With a revolver bullet, fired by an unemployed worker eight years ago still in his lung, Msgr. Ignaz Seipel, Austria's great priest-politician, passed quietly away at the village of Bernits, near here, at 7 o'clock this morning. He was 56. Physicians ascribed his death to diabetes and complications of the lung, due to the presence of the bullet.

Seipel's death, by one of those weird turns of fate, saved the government of his Christian Socialist party from defeat in parliament today. Had he lived eight hours longer Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' government, which Seipel still helped to direct behind the scenes, would have fallen over the question of the recent loan extended by the league of nations.

Saved by One Vote.

The government needed Seipel's vote in parliament to defeat a no confidence resolution introduced by the Pan-Germans and backed by the Socialists. Under Austrian law, deputies cannot vote by proxy. Seipel's severe illness prevented him from attending parliament.

Less than an hour after Seipel's death, Chancellor Dollfuss appointed a local banker, John Wancura, to take his seat. Wancura hurried to parliament, arriving just in time to vote for the government. That vote saved the cabinet's life, the count being deadlocked 81 to 81.

The vote presaged, incidentally, the eventual rejection of the league loan later this week, for while the tie vote saved the cabinet today the government must obtain a majority to put the loan across.

Chancellor Three Times.

Msgr. Seipel was chancellor of Austria three times. After steering the nation through the dark inflation days of 1922 and putting down the Socialist revolution of 1927, he retired from his third chancellorship on April 3, 1929. Though a sick man, he continued to help guide his country's destinies behind the scenes. He was the real power and brains of the Christian Socialist party, which has ruled Austria for ten years.

He was a bitter enemy of the Socialists, who control Vienna. He was a stanch defender of the republic, although some day he had hoped to see the return of the Hapsburgs. He was a minister in Emperor Carl's last cabinet, and remained a close friend of former Empress Zita to the last.

Seipel's body was brought to Vienna tonight and placed in the military casino. Friday the body will repose in the Cathedral of St. Stephan. Burial will be with full state honors in Vienna city cemetery, where the Socialists, who opposed him in life, gave him a special grave of honor.

BRITISH INVENTOR ASKS U. S. TO PAY FOR STEEL HATS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The United States commission investigating the claims of British inventors against the United States government in respect to war inventions began its sitting in the offices of the privy council today.

The steel helmet was among the inventions on which claims are made. The basis for all claims is that America used the inventions of the world war either directly or through the medium of the British government.

The commission consists of Lieut Col. Joseph McMullen, presiding; Charles Rugg, Harvey Bundy, and Commander Robert A. Lavender. Francis Bruce McMullen is counsel for the United States.

Flyer's Murder Trial Starts

Capt. W. N. Lancaster, former British army aviator, who went on trial at Miami, Fla., yesterday, charged with killing Haden Clarke, and Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, aviatrix and fiancee of Clarke, who will be a witness for Lancaster. [Acme Photo.]

JURY COMPLETED TO TRY FLYER AS SLAYER OF RIVAL

Miami, Fla., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—A jury to try Capt. W. N. Lancaster, British aviator, charged with the murder of Hadin Clarke, fiancé of Mrs. J. M. Keith Miller, Australian flyer, was completed this afternoon. Lancaster is accused of killing Clarke out of jealousy, and trying to make the death appear as a suicide.

Before selection of the jury started James Carson and James Lathero, defense attorneys, asked continuance of the trial due to the absence of Dr. Percy Dodge, chairman of the Clarke autopsy commission, a defense physician and a necessary defense witness. This motion was denied by Judge H. F. Atkinson.

Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke, mother of the slain man, was not present in the courtroom because of illness. Her eldest son, Dr. Beverley Clarke, New York, accompanied prosecution officials. Mrs. Keith Miller and Capt. Lancaster sat close to their attorneys and both appeared pale and nervous.

BRAZIL DEFEATS REBELS IN BATTLE ON MOUNTAIN TOP

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, April 2.—Battling 6,000 feet above sea level atop Mantiqueira mountain, the 11th infantry dislodged Sao Paulo rebel forces, taking the Mantiqueira tunnel today, according to a government communique.

The fighting raged for twenty days over rough, inaccessible terrain for possession of the tunnel, which is 3,000 feet long, traversing the mountain. Its capture will enable the government to take heavy artillery through.

Fighting continues around the village of Paraque, a few kilometers from Cruzeiro, the final objective of the present government drive. Cruzeiro is an important railway junction linking three states, and is said to be well defended by the Paulistas. Military critics hold that its capture would have great military importance.

PARAGUAY SENDS FRESH TROOPS TO FIGHT BOLIVIA

Women Ask to Enlist for Service in Chaco.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The government today ordered a battalion of newly recruited troops into the heart of the disputed Chaco territory, over which Paraguay and Bolivia are near war.

The battalion was recruited at Concepcion by Marshal Lopez, and received orders to proceed to the Casado sector of the disputed jungle country. It was there that Paraguay has charged Bolivian soldiers had attacked several Paraguayan forts or outposts.

The Mennonite colony, which protested against fighting in their vicinity, is also in the Casado region.

The government today proposed to restore the Order of Merit, a decoration of valor, dormant since Paraguay was at war with Uruguay, Argentina and Brazil in 1865.

Uruguayans Offer to Serve.

Eight hundred Uruguayans today sent Paraguay an offer to serve in its army.

Patriotic fervor mounted rapidly today. A group of women at Concepcion asked permission to enlist and receive military instruction. College professors started financing an ambulance corps. Recruiting officers refused to take scores of minors.

The government heard through unofficial channels that four wealthy Argentines with interests in this country were planning to donate thirty military airplanes to the Paraguayan army.

Minister of Interior Abente Haedo, seeking his missing 17 year old son today, found that the youth had enlisted as a sailor aboard a gunboat.

Bolivia to Mobilize.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Aug. 2.—(AP)—A general mobilization of Bolivian forces at any moment was said in responsible Bolivian quarters tonight to be a possibility following similar action by Paraguay.

The foreign office announced receipt of two telegrams from Jose Matos, president of the league of nations council, urging a peaceful solution of the Chaco boundary dispute with Paraguay.

It declined to say what reply would be forwarded to Geneva, but a high official said that the Bolivian answer would be the same as that given to the note from neutrals at Washington, in which Bolivia flatly declared for an immediate settlement of the fundamental question of the Chaco territory, else it would resort to war.

Military preparations proceeded apace today. Reports from Santa Cruz said the Red Cross had been completely organized. La Paz provided another 15,000 Bolivianos to the defense fund and the total for Sucre province was raised to 1,000,000 Bolivianos.

Neutrals Join for Peace.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Fourteen Latin-American governments were asked by neutral negotiators today to join in a note calling upon Paraguay and Bolivia to cease all warlike activities.

At the same time representatives of the five neutral powers, the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Colombia, and Uruguay, dispatched a reply to Bolivia's note of yesterday in which she announced she would settle the Chaco dispute "even by the force of arms," asking whether Bolivia would submit the question to arbitration and suspend hostilities "on the basis of possessions (in the Chaco) maintained by Bolivia and Paraguay on June 1, 1932."

DR. EASTMAN FILES PLEA TO RUSH TRIAL ON MEDICAL CHARGES

Dr. Lewis K. Eastman, owner of the Keystone hospital, yesterday filed a petition in the Superior court for a writ of mandamus to compel the state medical board to bring to an immediate trial charges of blackmail and malpractice pending against him. He charged that, although the attorney general's office was permitted to present evidence against him at a hearing before the medical board last April 26, he was not permitted to defend himself.

The bill charged that after the hearing the case was continued upon the motion of the attorney general's assistants, who obtained leave to withdraw certain charges against the physician and to substitute others later. The new charges have not been made, Dr. Eastman charged, and the delay is injuring his professional reputation.

Last June 4 Mrs. Violet Moretti, 1322 North La Salle street, and her husband, Eugene, told state's attorney's officers that their charges of attempted blackmail and malpractice made against Dr. Eastman at the medical board hearing were false. They said that their stories had been coached by Dr. Clifton K. Timmons, staff surgeon at the Illinois Masonic hospital, who was then arrested. Later Dr. Timmons was freed in the Municipal court when the state's attorney announced that there was no credible evidence against him.

11 Year Old Girl Saves Another from Old Well

Pana, Ill., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Ruby May Clay, aged 11, living near Dugout school, Shelby county, today saved 10 year old Marine Hudson. The Hudson girl fell down an abandoned well into 15 feet of water. Wrapping her legs around the old pump stock, the Clay girl lowered herself head downward and when the drowning girl came to the surface she grabbed her and pulled her to the platform. Mrs. Clay, called by a third girl, pulled them out.

POLITICAL FOES RIOT IN GERMANY; MANY WOUNDED

Disorders Spread Despite "Last Warning."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Violence continued to mar Germany's political scene today, two days after the reichstag election, and despite the "last warning" of severe punishment issued yesterday by Franz Bracht, Chancellor Franz von Papen's minister of interior in Prussia.

Casualties occurred in seven cities as political enemies clashed, but no deaths were reported.

The day also brought forth denials from representatives of both the present government and Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, that the latter is dickering with Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, "strong man" of Von Papen's cabinet, for a place in the government.

Hitler to Fight It Out.

It had been reported that a Hitler representative was on his way from Munich to talk things over with Gen. von Schleicher.

These denials strengthened the opinion of many political experts that Hitler, as he indicated yesterday, has decided to fight it out with Von Papen for the post of chancellor in the next government lineup. Von Papen today, however, left for a short vacation. The reichstag is not scheduled to meet until Aug. 29 or 30.

In today's outbreaks of violence the reichsbanner auditorium at Liegnitz was damaged by a hand grenade, while at Goldberg a county judge's home was riddled with bullets.

Riot in Four Towns.

Hydrochloric acid was used at Marienburg on the residences of three city officials. Clashes between Hitlerites and communists occurred at four towns. Many were wounded.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, a Hitlerite organ, said today that the Von Papen government was responsible for the bloodshed, since it has become evident that it is not able to "protect National Socialists from communist terrorism."

Move to Scale Down Debts.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Throughout the past political campaign in Germany there was a strong disposition among the spokesmen of the parties of the right to follow up the German success in practically wiping out reparations at Lausanne by promising the votors some further scaling down of German debts.

The loudest voices were those of Nazi orators, who called for a total ending of German "tribute," but Dr. Alfred Hugenburg, for the Nationalists, called not only for a reduction in the interest rates on German loans but for the far-reaching liquidation of all German indebtedness through the conversion process.

The foundation for this undoubtedly was laid at Lausanne, where the German delegation, in fighting to wipe out political reparations, did not hesitate to use the argument that Germany was unable to meet both reparations and private debts, and any payment on the former account must be at the expense of the latter, which, in any event, might have to be scaled down.

Now the only German debts remaining, other than the Young and Dawes loans, which admittedly are untouchable, fall into three categories—the short term private loans lumped under the "standstill" agreement reached in Berlin last January, service on which is being maintained out of the proceeds of Germany's export balances; other short term indebtedness by German subsidiary corporations to parent organizations in other countries, or by German corporations in mutual business dealings with allied concerns outside, and long term loans incurred by states, municipalities, and industries under definite agreements providing for amortization.

If you use cheapened soap flakes you must expect to pay—and PAY!

VIOLET PATTEN WHEELER
—business woman from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M., flying across country to lecture women's conventions and to petition various civic bodies. She enjoys puttering about in her beautiful Lake Forest gardens . . . hunting with her husband and sons . . . playing tennis and golf. "American Family Flakes is one reason why I have so much freedom," she declares. "It saves me endless shopping and cleaning supervision."

PENNIES saved and dollars wasted . . . that's the tragedy of laundering with impure soap flakes! Often you find such flakes in monster packages—puffed up to make them look like bargains. Just as often they contain free lye and other harsh ingredients; and it's heartbreaking to see the havoc they can bring to dainty colors, finely woven fabrics! But such flakes hold no terrors for the women who manage Chicago's best appointed homes. These women insist on a soap that's absolutely safe . . . refuse to entrust their precious washables to any but American Family Flakes.

"We have delicate gauze glass curtains, bright-flowered linen hangings and French lingerie that have come through innumerable American Family Flakes baths with every thread and color as fresh as the day they were bought," says Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, civic leader and home manager par excellence. "Even my chiffon stockings wear amazingly long.

"American Family is such a good cleanser, too, that we use it for all our household cleaning. It's the purest soap I know. Makes lovely suds . . . leaves glasses and china sparkling."

Why risk your table linens and laces . . . your sheets and towels . . . your woodwork, tile and linoleum in flakes of doubtful character when American Family is absolutely pure, absolutely safe—and the most economical soap flakes you can buy? It will save you many precious dollars . . . in longer life from all your washables. It will save you hours and hours of needless rubbing. It will keep your hands always soft and smooth. Kirk's American Family, you see, was created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region. It makes double the suds of ordinary soap flakes . . . and it's the double-suds that makes the difference.

PARDON OFFICER BLOCKS LIBERTY FOR FRED PALM

Opposes Parole of Life for Pint Prisoner.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Another disappointment in a long series encountered by Fred Palm, Lansing's erstwhile "life for a pint" law victim, in his protracted fight for freedom, was disclosed today when it was announced that Ray O. Brundage, commissioner of pardons and paroles, has submitted to Gov. Wilber M. Brucker a recommendation that Palm be not paroled at this time.

FRED PALM.

Brundage has been making an investigation of Palm's case at the behest of the governor, who received a petition for clemency filed by A. Stanley Copeland, Buffalo, N. Y., Liberal. Copeland forwarded a letter written by Palm in which the prisoner claimed that his plea of guilty was entered to protect his wife from arrest, and he denied that any explanation was made by officers that his admission of guilt would make him a habitual criminal according to the new code.

In his report to the governor, Brundage includes a statement of William Knapp, Lansing patrolman, who contends that Palm was fully cognizant of the law's penalty.

3 HELD TO JURY AS BOOTLEGGERS TO LEGIONNAIRES

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Three men, alleged to have operated an elaborate bar in a Kokomo hotel during the American Legion state convention, were bound to the federal grand jury today on charges of violating national prohibition laws.

They are Don Golding and Hanley Orem of Kokomo, said to have received $35 each to act as bartenders, and Herman Albrecht, also of Kokomo, who, it is said, hired them.

Three federal prohibition agents who arrested Golding and Orem are said to have encountered difficulty in leaving the hotel with the prisoners. A crowd of 1,000 persons gathered in front of the building in protest. Tear gas was used to disperse them. Albrecht was arrested later.

The agents seized 872 pints of Canadian beer and 58 pints of whisky.

Three Gunmen Take $1,600 in Hotel and Stroll Away

Three gunmen took $1,600 yesterday in a daylight robbery of the Belvidere hotel, 4655 Lake Park avenue. They escaped by strolling casually through the lobby of the hotel, occupied by a number of guests, to the street. David Zisook Jr., part owner of the company which operates the Belvidere and several other south side hotels, was counting the money in the hotel office with three employés. Two of the bandits entered the office, ordering the group away from the table where the money lay, scooped it up, and walked out with the third robber who had been watching the lobby.

NEW SUSPECT HELD IN LIQUOR SLAYING; PASTOR ACQUITTED

Palatka, Fla., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—A. M. Clemons was in the county jail here today charged with the murder of John W. Malone during a raid of a liquor still near here last December and for whose slaying Earl H. McGaha, Christian minister, who led a sheriff's raiding party, was acquitted after a Circuit court trial.

Clemons, who has been the object of a search by the sheriff's office for several weeks was arrested when he hailed a sheriff's deputy for a ride at Madison and was driven to the county jail.

Officials refused to divulge the nature of the evidence against him, but claimed to have a good case.

McGaha at his trial claimed his shotgun was discharged as he fell in the underbrush. Malone was shot as the raiding party closed in.

During the trial McGaha maintained that some one else was hidden about the still at the time of the raid, while the defense attempted to show that the line of shot through the underbrush could not have come from the point where the pastor was stationed.

McGaha has since left the city, leaving a trail of small worthless checks. Located in Georgia, the pastor refused to return and could not be extradited for the offense.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN HANGING.

A verdict of suicide while despondent over ill health was returned yesterday by the coroner's jury which investigated the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Jarvey, 29 years old, 4435 North Winchester avenue, who hanged herself Monday.

CZARNECKI FINDS A KEY TO THIS ALIEN PROBLEM

Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki yesterday auctioned off five large snakes to the Field museum for 50 cents. He threw in nine lizards for good measure and bade the lot a glad farewell.

The snakes, lizards, and 10 salamanders arrived a week ago from Germany. They were consigned to Rudolph Patsig, 8418 North Talman avenue, formerly a statistician for F. B. Keech & Co., grain brokers at 231 South La Salle street.

Mr. Patsig did not call for his reptiles and search revealed that he is in Germany and his wife is on vacation somewhere in Wisconsin. Collector Czarnecki determined to sell the shipment for 50 cents unpaid duty. He found the snake market slow. While he was telephoning in search of a buyer one of his assistants burst into the office.

"You won't have to worry about the salamanders," he reported. "The snakes just ate them."

Collector Czarnecki determined on an immediate auction. The snakes, he said, were viewing his employes with a hungry look.

Camp Gasoline Stove Explosion Injures Five

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Kenneth Swearingen, 17, was severely burned and four others injured when a gasoline stove exploded at a fishing camp on the Mackinaw river six miles west of Kappa. MONASTERY BURNS AT VILLANOVA COLLEGE; LOSS NEAR $750,000

Villanova, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The monastery at Villanova college was virtually destroyed today by fire, which caused a loss that college authorities estimated may reach $750,000.

The flames started on the top floor of the four story stone building. They leveled the fourth floor, burned out the entire third floor, and part of the second. The remainder of the building was said to be irreparably damaged by water and smoke.

Twenty firemen were either injured or suffered from smoke.

The Rev. John J. Farrell, prior of the monastery, said what was left of the building probably would have to be razed.

A collection of valuable paintings was almost entirely lost. Only a half dozen pieces out of 300 were saved from the flames. The collection, presented by the family of the late Dr. John Doyle of Philadelphia, was valued at more than $300,000. Art treasures lost included rare 15th century manuscripts and sculptured pieces.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 2.—(AP)—A rainfall of 7.50 inches on Lexington and central Kentucky within a few hours today cost the lives of six persons and resulted in property damage estimated at $1,000,000. Scores searched for the bodies of Mrs. Eddie Bryant, 38, and her two sons, Jesse, 9, and Willard, 10, and Mrs. Mary Ison, 32, and her two children, Geneva, 5, and Herschel, 2.

HOW TO MAKE A MARVELOUS GLASS OF HILLS BROS COFFEE—iced

Prepare Hills Bros. Coffee in your regular way. Then instead of adding ice to the hot coffee, cool it in a pitcher or covered dish—and chill in your refrigerator. Do not add ice until ready to serve—for ice dilutes the delightful, bracing flavor. Serve with cream if desired, and sweeten to taste.

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . .

a little at a time

. . . so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—the exclusive process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . "a little at a time."

The vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness—the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can—it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh. No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it FRESH ALWAYS!

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—To train officers to guard our coasts against the soon to be forgotten rum running racket, the government has just built another $2,500,000 marble palace, the United States coast guard academy at New London, Conn.

In addition the late session of congress appropriated $396,670.17 to maintain the school and pay for the instruction of its cadets, at an average of $3,250 per head a year, for the present fiscal year.

Maintenance costs next year are expected by coast guard officials to approach $500,000 because the cadet officer personnel is to be increased drastically despite the fact that the country is preparing to repeal prohibition, which the coast guard admittedly spends almost half of its entire time and strength attempting to enforce.

Seeks to Rival Academy.

Long before congress began to hear the growing demand throughout the country for economy in government, about the time both the senate and house were so preponderantly dry that few there seriously thought of repeal, the government decided to give the coast guard, right wing of prohibition enforcement defenses, an academy that would rival the naval academy in every detail except size. Now, with the eighteenth amendment doomed, it faces the dilemma of accounting for half filled dormitories after probably not more than another two or three years.

In pay, allowances and privileges, the coast guard cadet and officer now rates with the navy's midshipmen and officers.

Prohibition's part in bringing the coast guard up to the point of an organization which requires an annual appropriation of 28 million dollars is shown in its growth by leaps and bounds between 1917 and 1931.

Grew with Prohibition.

In 1917 when its duties were limited to iceberg patrol work, protection of the country against dope and other smugglers from the sea, rescue work and the few additional missions it was organized to perform, it consisted of 229 commissioned officers, 404 warrant officers, 3,478 enlisted men and 20 cadets.

By 1924, when public revolt against prohibition began, the enlisted strength jumped to 4,078 men. A year later it went to 7,315 and in 1926, when rum row was a busy business street off New York's coast line, it was increased to 8,627 men.

On June 30, 1931, with the demand for liquor in the United States making rum running a lucrative and highly satisfactory business, the strength of the coast guard stood: Commissioned officers, 418; chief warrant officers, 54; warrant officers, 791; enlisted men, 10,615, and cadets, 86.

Since then the number of cadets has been increased to 122 and with the opening of the new academy it is expected to be increased to close to 200. Despite the fact that every other department of the government has been ordered to cut personnel wherever possible, the strength of the navy has been reduced drastically and every government employé has taken a pay slash, either directly or through an obligatory payless furlough.

An Expensive Experiment.

The average pay of a coast guard enlisted man is $1,286, including board and allowances. A warrant officer gets from $153 to $189 a month and a chief warrant officer has received as much as $5,000 a year with base pay and allowances. The rate for commissioned officers runs from approximately $1,800 to $9,700 a year, including base pay and allowances.

To more than triple the coast guard strength in the prohibition era, therefore, has proved to be a highly expensive step in the interests of the "experiment noble in purpose." The 28 million dollar appropriation voted by this congress substantially represents an increase of 200 per cent over that of 1917 before Volstead became law.

Back in the same period, when twenty earnest young men were learning to become navigators to win commissions in one of the most honored of government services, the small academy that is about to be abandoned served the purpose ideally. With the enlisted personnel skyrocketing, however, new officers were required and finally their number demanded the dignity of another of those marble government palaces that have been springing up all over the country.

Here is how the cost of maintaining the new academy is divided for this year:

Instructors, civilian and officer	$ 35,256.64
Civilian labor	1,380.00
Warrant officers on duty at school	18,662.80
Enlisted men on duty	81,762.24
Rations	17,678.00
Repairs to vessels	100.00
Clothing	30,224.64
Fuel and water	9,969.41
Outfits	8,920.22
Rebuilding and repairing	2,460.00
Communications	382.97
Contingent expenses	5,037.49
Cadets pay [based on 122 cadets]	97,116.36
Commuted rations	37,719.60
Total	$396,670.17

When the cadet personnel is increased most of these expenses will increase proportionately, unless a chastened congress returns from the polls next December and uses a blue pencil in the future as liberally as it has wielded the red pencil in the last decade.

With increased power has come increased dog in the coast guard. Just as all naval officers must be graduated from Annapolis, so all officers of the coast guard must be graduated from New London. In the two big marine arms of the government the officer on the bridge no longer represents the romantic bewhiskered old sea dog who took his licks as cabin boy to win his way to a mate's berth. The day of the old salt is over in the American services.

Admission by Competition.

Admission to the coast guard academy is based strictly on competitive examination. An applicant must be from 18 to 22 years old and have the equivalent of four years' high school training. A man in the ranks having these qualifications may take the examination, but with a $5,000 a year chief warrant officer's post beckoning him few find much incentive to go after a commission. The term of study at the academy has just been increased from two years to four years.

"A sound body, suitable preparation, good natural capacity and aptitude for study, industrious habits, perseverance, an obedient and orderly disposition, and a correct moral deportment," are essential qualifications to admissions. Young men knowing they are lacking in any are warned that if they seek appointments they are only likely to cause themselves and their friends future embarrassment.

As set forth by Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of customs and the coast guard, and formerly of prohibition, the mission of the academy is:

"To graduate young men with sound bodies, stout hearts, alert minds, with a liking for the sea and its lore, and with that high sense of honor, loyalty and obedience which goes with trained initiative and leadership."

Naval academy physical requirements are demanded.

Once admitted, the cadet finds his studies as stiff as at Annapolis or West Point, as a matter of fact, practically the same. His first year includes high mathematics, astronomy, chemistry, seamanship, foreign languages, drawing, laboratory work, communications and drill. To these there are added in the second year navigation, heat engines, physics and mechanics. Electrical engineering, boilers, and ordnance and ballistics are added the third year. In his last year he takes on service regulations and military law, compass compensations, tactics, steam engineering, navigation laws surveying, turbines, and radio in addition to the others.

Between times in all four years he adds physical education and military training. An annual cruise is thrown in, too.

MAUDE ADAMS MUST ANSWER QUESTIONS ON INCOME, COURT RULES

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Maude Adams must answer questions relating to her income while she was appearing in "The Merchant of Venice" during the season 1931-1932, Supreme Court Justice Shientag decided today.

At the same time, the court instructed John D. Williams, theatrical producer who applied for permission to examine Miss Adams before trial of his $203,000 suit against her, to detail the nature of his claim.

Williams claims to have earned the money while working four and a half years to bring Miss Adams back to the stage.

COUNCIL GROUP TO CONSIDER "L" BILLBOARD PLEA

The city council local transportation committee will meet today to consider a request by the Chicago Rapid Transit company that it be allowed to construct billboards and electric signs on the exterior of "L" structures.

The elevated lines already sell advertising poster space on platform rails facing their tracks. The ordinance which they have submitted would authorize them to put up the billboards and electric signs on the outside, so as to be visible from the streets below.

A. L. Gardner, general attorney for the "L" lines, drafted the ordinance, which was submitted to the committee. It would give the city 3 per cent of the gross receipts in return for the billboard privilege.

WANTS RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR OLD COLONY LIFE

Mrs. Theresa Stengel, 1825 Orchard street, asked that a receiver be appointed for the Old Colony Life Insurance company, 186 West Jackson boulevard, in a bill filed yesterday in the Superior court. The bill alleged that the company is insolvent and unable to pay claims of $100,000.

The bill stated that the company has issued more than $27,000,000 in insurance and that its assets at present are less than $3,400,000, most of which are in real estate. The company lost $99,000 in 1930 and $219,000 in 1931, the bill said. So depleted are its cash resources, the bill alleged, that when Mrs. Stengel applied for a loan against her policy she was refused.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

FAILURES IN DEMOCRACY.

When a democratic form of government begins to ignore some of its essential limitations and requirements it begins to get into trouble. That has been seen in the United States, or if it has not been seen it is not because the facts are not there. It is revealed in the German elections very strikingly. A requirement of democratic government is that most of the people so governing themselves shall be in general sympathy with each other. They must be within call of one another's opinions. They must have in essence a common idea of what is desirable and workable. Then they can have their differences. The differences will not shatter them into uncompromising groups, but will permit a division into major parties.

Out of party opposition will come an election which produces a government acceptable to most of the people. It may be a popular illusion that an election is to decide great issues. The truth more likely is that it can't. Security is in the probability that nothing ever will be submitted to an election when a wrong decision cannot be endured. The stability of a democracy is in the ability to take mistakes in its stride.

The American democracy had an issue in slavery which it was incompetent to handle and it was compelled to refer the question to two armies. It was forced to abdicate for the time being and come back on the scene after the armies had reached a decision and retired. In this era great masses of the American people were so out of sympathy with each other that they could not reconcile themselves and find an agreement in political action. They were too far apart.

The German democracy is in that predicament today. Not only is it politically fragmented, but its greatest masses are out on the two extremes. What would be a desirable order of society to one would be abhorrent and unspeakable to another. The government which would satisfy one idea would be detestable to another. From far extremes political thought draws in toward the center, but it does not find the great majority of the people there. A democracy can exist with its masses gravitating toward the center and its nonconformity, eccentricity and irreconcilability thinned out on the margins, but not when this is reversed. Democracies have been going plop because when they were tested there was no foundation under them. If the American people ever load their politics with issues which cannot be handled, make mistakes and get consequences which cannot be endured, they'll also have a better than good chance of going plop themselves.

ONCE A BOARD, ALWAYS A BOARD.

One of the wheat farmers of Kansas, giving the Shannon committee in Kansas City, Mo., his opinion of the farm board, said: "Let us consider just one of these highly paid government relievers, George S. Milnor of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, the farm board subsidiary. Although we find that he was a small miller of small income before he started relieving us farmers, his salary for the government group was quickly ballooned to the startling sum of $50,000 a year."

And there, brethren, is one of a number of similar reasons why the farm board is not abolished. Boards are not abolished. When once they have taken their place in the government structure they are vested interests. The primitive instinct of politics is to protect the job and the pay roll. The job may be anything from useless to ruinous, but it contains the life of the political system and it will be preserved regardless of consequences. The way to get rid of a board is not to create it.

CITIZEN TRAINING FOR DEFENSE.

Two thousand two hundred young Americans are at Fort Sheridan for a month's military training. Thousands more are at similar camps in other parts of the country. Many more would like to be there, but congress has not provided means to take care of them. Every year since the first camp was held there has been a surplus of applicants. In the days of lavish spending, congress' failure to provide for every American boy who wished to take this training was inexcusable. It would have been an investment in good citizenship and a legitimate expenditure of the federal government, which millions of its expenditures were not.

Perhaps next year there will be no provision for the camps because of retrenchment. But they represent a part of the defenses of the nation and they should be among the last of the economies adopted. The camps, like the guard and the reserve corps, are a function of citizenship whose influence is at all times needed, and hardly less in these days perhaps than in war. They are a legitimate activity of the national government, and our policy should maintain them permanently. The federal government has been loaded with innumerable responsibilities which do not belong to it. The training of the citizen for the defense of the country is not among them. It is one of the chief duties for which the national government exists.

This is fundamental in our system of democratic government. A part of the expense of the camps has been shirked by congress and assumed by private citizens. That is a failure of plain duty on the part of congress. In our present predicament it may be fatal to this service, but if the American people realize the significance of the issue they will not permit citizen training to be sacrificed as long as they are taxed to support hundreds of less important activities or any activity that is not properly a responsibility of the federal authority.

BRITISH, BUT NOT EMPIRE.

Ottawa seems in a fair way to become just another conference such as Geneva holds in familiarity, if not in contempt, a scene of delegates checking their hats and then dashing for them. Ottawa has an international conference, not a national, revealing some odd consequences of the event which culminated in the first separation of colonies from the empire. The colonies went into the confederation and from the confederation to the Union which now dominates as an overpowering central organization with the states in its fist, taxing the daylights out of them and feeding them in consequence.

In contrast with this picture of units originally independent of each other, then loosely joined and now tightly held, there is the spectacle of the empire proceeding from a central authority which would not let go of anything into a loose confederation and now seemingly in an assemblage of independent units erecting or lowering trade restrictions against each other as self-interest and profit dictate.

The United States and Great Britain, starting from their dividing point in 1776, have gone in opposite directions, one to consolidation and the other to separation of the constituent parts. An assemblage of the American states could not even discuss what the assemblage of English dominions has as the cause for getting together—tariffs and preferences in trade with each other. If Minnesota and Illinois were trying by negotiations to agree upon terms for the exchange of wheat and meat products, or if Texas and Massachusetts were dickering on markets for raw cotton and cotton prints, there'd be something like an American equivalent of the British commonwealth of states.

The common American bond then would be an occasional message of greeting to Mr. Hoover.

WHAT A GIRL!

Babe Didrikson of Dallas, Tex., nineteen year old marvel, has started out to win the Olympic games single handed, beginning with the javelin throw. Babe is hard to believe even when she proves it. She is a bowler, baseball player, and basketball player. She is a sprinter, hurdler, high and broad jumper and shot putter. She does the hundred yards in eleven seconds, can put the eight pound shot over thirty-seven feet and throw a baseball 296 feet. At Los Angeles Sunday she threw the javelin 143 feet and four inches, nearly ten feet better than the National A. A. U. record, which she held. Recently as a one gal team she won the national woman's track meet. She's a rifle shot, swimmer and diver. Apparently tennis is the only thing missing. She is alone in her category. The only other human being who ever combined so many superlatives in one physique was Jim Thorpe. She may break up the Olympic games and, not being restrained by any lack of confidence or by the girlish diffidence, she says she intends to.

THE UNDERGROUND RAILROAD.

The editor of a large newspaper in replying to a question wrote:

"I do not recall any sensational divorce in our neighborhood since the 1880s.

"When the people who are news reach the end of the marital row they seem to slip out to Reno or Paris or make up some fake story of cruelty and get it over with very quickly and quietly.

"I imagine if two of our best people started out to wash a lot of nasty linen in public that the story would find its way into print."

In England the law requires indubitable evidence of misconduct in order to dissolve the marriage tie. Consequently desperate people no longer refrain from producing the evidence and a scandalized parliament has forbidden newspapers to print it.

This letter seems to sum up the facts of American and English divorces. The American methods may lack considerable of perfection, but they are infinitely preferable to the English, and we hope will be the customary method until humane and modern divorce laws supplant the archaic rules of domestic slavery still in existence.

Editorial of the Day

THE RISING COST OF GOVERNMENT.

[Memphis Commercial Appeal.]

Regardless of what statesmen and pseudo-statesmen may say, the taxpayer knows how ridiculous it is to suppose that he can support a four billion dollar government. He knows that costly and useless bureaus and commissions must be abolished, and that literally thousands of parasites and leeches that live at government expense must be gotten rid of and put to work in legitimate lines of industry, where they will contribute to the support of the government rather than look to the government for support.

The American people must become aroused to what is going on in Washington. It is unfortunately true that the ever mounting cost of the federal government has escaped the attention of the people because, except in war and panics, federal taxes have been more or less indirect taxes. Now that we are in the midst of a great depression, congress has imposed taxes which it takes real money to satisfy. The people must soon become tax conscious and demand that the expenses of government be reduced and public affairs placed on a sound and businesslike basis.

Instead of a bureaucracy we must have a democracy. Instead of more government we must have less government. We need, as Thomas Jefferson, in his first inaugural address, so aptly said:

"A wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall otherwise leave them free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread that it has earned."

ADELAIDE LOVE.

FROM NEWSPAPER REPORTS cabled to this side, challenging American Davis cup tennis players met not only three defending Frenchmen but several somewhat less than neutral linesmen as well. One decision at "match point," called incorrect by a majority of spectators, kept America from lifting the international trophy.

Aside from this unpleasant incident, both France and the United States can find reasons for congratulation in the result. Jean Borotra, spectacular 34 year old veteran, who was drafted into service despite his plea of ageing legs, was the French hero. It was Borotra who upset the dope when he defeated the Wimbledon and American champion, Ellsworth Vines. Again it was Borotra who rallied to win what proved the deciding match against Allison when the set count was 2-0 against him.

From the American viewpoint, the feature was the closeness of the result, in which a disputed point turned the tide. Our young players, generally forecondemned to defeat, came nearer the French stars, now apparently fading physically, than before. Allison, stranger to international singles play, made a gallant fight after his doubles victory with Van Ryn. Vines, in the final match, inflicted on Henry Cochet the latter's first Davis cup defeat since 1927. The Yanks will be challenging again next year.

A sonnet I have vowed to write for you—
A sonnet—quite a meaty order, sir,
To order from my pen point, as it were.
Eight lines! My word, I'm more than half way through!
I'm doing rather well, the lines all rhyme
In sonnet fashion—"a and b, b a";
The words fall quaintly in their places now
And accent nicely at the proper time.
At last thirteen—I really feel quite gay,
'Twas quite an easy thing to keep that vow!

Harve: Contrary to current opinion, it appears to me that the National league pennant race is as nearly over as that of the American league. Pittsburgh is the only team which has maintained a pace that will result in 90 games won at the end of the season and even may exceed that figure. The Cubs' rate of progress indicates 85 games, with not much chance to raise that total unless they make a better showing on the road than for several years. Boston will chalk up only 80 games, a lot of games for that team. Philadelphia, on its recent showing, will fare slightly better than Boston. All the rest, which have won less than half, with the season nearly two-thirds over, are out. It's Pittsburgh, with the Cubs an outside chance. J. D. MERSHIMER.

"SPUNK" WATER FOR WARTS.

HERE is a letter from a young man who wants to know how to cure warts. He specifies that the warts are not his, but they adorn the hand of a young woman. When one considers cures for warts it is well to know who has them, as well as the variety and location.

Dr. Zwick confused and confounded a meeting of his professional associates not so long ago by reading a paper on magic cures for warts. The learned essayist accepted it as proved that warts had been prayed off, as well as removed by suggestion, by voodooism, by magic of many kinds, and by the use of "spunk" water and by a multitude of other remedies of various and sundry kinds.

When Huck Finn and Tom Sawyer removed warts with "spunk" water they had precedent for what they were about. Others had removed warts just that way. Likewise, their method was based on the same principle as removal by drawing a drop of blood from the wart, putting it on paper, and leaving this where some one would touch it. There is even proof, of a kind, that warts can be removed by certain measures at some stages of the moon, but not at others.

It may be claimed that methods that employ physical measures such as bleeding, maceration by soaking in water, and washing are not wholly dependent on magic for their potency.

Warts are very uncertain in their ways. They come without being called and they are apt to go without saying good-by. It is no common occurrence for one to hear: "What's become of my wart? It was right here last Christmas. Now it is gone and no trace of it can be seen. I do not know when it left. I had not noticed before that it was no longer here."

As a matter of fact, warts do not stay with us from the cradle to the grave. On the other hand, they come, stay a variable time, and then go as mysteriously as they came. In these circumstances, of course, there is uncertainty, and cures are as numerous as one could wish.

But a sixteen year old girl with a wart is likely to be impatient. What cares she if the experience of the last six thousand years proves that warts are present pro tem.? She wants hers to vacate with haste.

She can burn them off with either acid, alkali, heat, solidified carbonic, or with electricity. The burning must be deep enough to get the bleeding point that lies in the deeper part of the wart—what some call the root. If she wants to use heat, a red hot needle or pin works well. If she wishes to use chemicals, caustic soda or sulphuric acid—even nitrate of silver—will do. The chemical must not reach any tissue except that of the wart. The corn remedies, composed as they are of salicylic mixtures, will seldom kill tissues deep enough to cure warts. If the wart is stalked it can be tied off with a strong thread.

If the young lady has some patience she should succeed in losing her wart if she will grease it daily with castor oil or will apply spirits of camphor daily and, after the alcohol has evaporated, grease with the oil.

If warts are in moist areas, or if they are in crops, there is a chance that they are due to bacteria. If so, they should be dusted daily with calomel powder or greased with calomel ointment. They should be kept as dry as possible, and for those with more patience and more faith there remain magic and psyco therapy.

AIR COOLED DINING ROOM.

L. A. writes: A group of eight of us went to lunch in an air conditioned dining room in Chicago on July 21, after a morning conference on the 21st floor of a loop building. There was not an artificial cooling device in this office. The temperature in the dining room was 64 degrees F. It was very pleasant. We had cold food and iced drinks. About 1:30 p. m. we left the dining room and walked three blocks back to the office. Within this short distance five of the eight men felt dizzy and nauseated. One was attacked with abdominal cramps and vomiting. I felt "light headed" and very apprehensive. The reaction was more psychic than physical. Four of the men went into a store and sat down for awhile. The clerk said several people had been in in the last few days around noon with the same symptoms. The whole afternoon was lost from work. We all went home, mainly due to fear of the unknown. We did not know what would happen next. The temperature on the street was 103 degrees. The difference between the dining room and the street temperature was 38 degrees. Adaptation to the dining room temperature—that is, from the hot street to the cool air—was a pleasant sensation. The reverse action was decidedly unpleasant and, for people with impaired heart and circulation, it could have been serious.

REPLY.

We have had more than one similar complaint. It is possible to get too much of a good thing. On a hot day the air in a conditioned room should be about ten to fifteen degrees below that of the outside. When it is cooled to a fixed temperature, some thirty degrees below that of the outside, some of the occupants of the room will suffer consequences.

BICYCLING MAY HELP.

S. K. writes: I am 13½ years old and weigh 95 pounds. I am 4 feet 9 inches tall. How could I increase my height? Do you think riding a bicycle would help any?

REPLY.

You should grow in height for four more years. Your height will be fixed by the height of the parent or grandparent from whom you inherit stature pattern. Diet and exercise should help somewhat in increasing your stature. Eat plenty of simple, staple, wholesome foods—meats, breads, cereals, vegetables, and fruits. Riding a bicycle is one of the many exercises that is good for young people.

MUSTARD DANGEROUS.

E. E. H. writes: 1. What effect has mustard on the system? I have a boy who spreads it on meat, potatoes, bread, and everything he eats.

2. He has pyorrhea very bad. Is this caused by excessive use of mustard?

REPLY.

1. The harm done is considerable, although the effects may be long delayed.

[a] Mustard is a strong condiment. People who use large quantities of condiments lose their taste for simple, wholesome foods, such as plain water, meats, breads, and vegetables.

[b] Prolonged overuse of condiments causes indigestion.

[c] It is held to be a cause of liver disorders and various kinds of stones.

2. Pyorrhea is due to other causes.

AUCTIONS AND AUCTIONEERS.

Chicago, July 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Recently I attended a furniture auction. Will you kindly enlighten me on the rules of a public sale? The auctioneer starts the bid, some one bids higher, and if the auctioneer does not get a big price he buys it for some one that is not at the sale. I always thought the highest bidder got the merchandise. This auctioneer has an auction room of his own. Can it be that he buys for himself, using a different name? When he was questioned he said he was buying a carload for a friend of his out of town. M. H.

C. J. 6, chapter on auctions and auctioneers, section 38, page 834, reads as follows: "Until the fall of the hammer an auctioneer is the agent of the seller alone; and, as such, he cannot act inconsistently with the interest of his principal. To sell for one person and to buy for another are inconsistent acts. Hence an auctioneer cannot bid, or be the purchaser of, or be interested in the purchase of, the property which he is selling, either for himself or for another. It has been held, however, that an agency simply to bid a particular sum for a purchaser is not necessarily inconsistent with any duty of the auctioneer and does not enable any one to avoid the sale."

SALESMAN'S COMMISSION.

Chicago, July 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a real estate salesman. Buyer signed a contract to buy certain lots and gave me a check for $500 as deposit. Seller accepted and signed the contract. Now the check comes back marked "payment stopped." The seller is willing to forget the matter and have the contract canceled. Sales contract is faultless. 1. Have I earned my commission when both parties have signed?

2. What steps can I take under the circumstances to collect my commission? G. N. P.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 3, 1916.

WASHINGTON.—The tug Thomas F. Timmins, which accompanied the German merchant submarine Deutschland down the bay from Baltimore, reported to the United States neutrality squadron outside Hampton Roads tonight that the Deutschland had passed beyond Cape Henry and into the open sea at 8:30 p. m. The Timmins' message was picked up by the destroyer Sterrett, which relayed it to the Norfolk navy yard. The Sterrett then was outside the three mile limit to see that the Deutschland's passage out was not interfered with by the allied cruisers off the capes until it had passed out of the territorial waters of the United States.

LONDON.—Sir Roger Casement was hanged at Pentonville jail at 9 o'clock this morning. He was pronounced dead at 9:09. Lord Robert Cecil, minister of war trade, made known to the Associated Press that it was the British government's determination not to reprieve Sir Roger.

LONDON.—According to unofficial dispatches from Petrograd, the Russian advance against Kovel continues. Gen. Kaledines' troops, the dispatches say, have pushed forward ten miles since they crossed the bend of the Stokhod river, which would place them only ten miles from Kovel. It is unofficially reported that the Germans have already begun their retirement from Kovel and are preparing to fall back on Brest-Litovsk, Cholm, and the general line of defense following the Bug river.

BERLIN.—The official statement issued by the German war office says several Russian attacks against the German positions in the Stokhod sector broke down.

LONDON.—Fierce fighting is in progress at various points along both the British and French fronts. Further progress has been made by the British to the east of Pozieres, in the Somme region. North of the Somme last night the French troops took a powerfully fortified German work between Hemwood and Monacu farm.

WASHINGTON.—The White House was informed that there is the gravest danger of a railroad strike of nation-wide proportions and a direct appeal was made to President Wilson to take immediate action to avert the general paralysis which would result if such a strike should develop. Washington has long known of the dispute between the railroads and the 300,000 employés involved, but has assumed that one side or the other would give way.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex.—Members of the First Illinois cavalry are beginning to thank THE TRIBUNE for the exposure of unhealthful conditions that prevailed in the camp and the unnecessary discomforts and lack of equipment which have interfered with the training of the regiment. Many of the men point out improvements that have come in the last two weeks as a result of public attention being called to matters which men in the ranks dared not describe publicly.

CHICAGO.—Capt. Edward W. Morrison and his attorney, James R. Ward, again are in the legal limelight. This time the octogenarian sought sanction for the adoption of two young girls. Petitions for adoption of Margaret Anna Burnstein, 18 years old, and Alice B. Burnstein, 10 years old, whose mother died a few months ago, were filed by Ward in the County court for Morrison. Joseph Burnstein, father of the girls, is part owner of a paper stock house. He signed a consent to the adoption and also requested the change of the children's surnames to Morrison.

THE TAXI ORDINANCE.

Chicago, July 30.—We wish to make our position clear in voting against the repeal of the taxi regulation ordinance. This repeal leaves absolutely no city control over taxicab ownership and operation. A person might be loaded with judgments against him and be thoroughly irresponsible and yet the city would be obliged to issue him a taxicab license. The public's only protection would be a $2,500 bond. In view of this consideration we felt that an ordinance which had been in effect for two years and ten months should at least have committee consideration before it was repealed with nothing to take its place. Legislating on such an important matter by suspension of the rules and without a hearing is what we voted against. The charge was made that the ordinance was improperly administered by the city department in charge so as to create a monopoly. This charge is a serious one and should be investigated. Many persons feel that taxi rates should be lowered. The city has the power to lower them and should investigate this matter of rates. Many drivers are not making a living because there is so much competition. They are at least entitled to a hearing before the field is thrown wide open for unlimited additional cabs as is done by this repeal.

DANGEROUS ROADS.

Fort Atkinson, Wis., July 28.—R. H. L. in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE says, "We are a stiff necked race—we humans—and it takes us a long time to get used to anything new." R. H. L. said it about the fuss made over girls wearing shorts, but it is especially true of some road-makers—they can't get used to the gently sloping shoulders that motorists love to see but prefer the old steep road edge, which is what has killed more people in automobiles than anything else. The steep edge scares cars together in the middle of the road and makes them crash. Less than one foot drop of the steepness popular in Jefferson county with our farmer roadmakers has caused several deaths near here with cars driven at legal speed. Field entrances, bowlder lined, and service poles put the finishing touches on the wreck. Sometimes the victim is scalped in true Indian fashion with a piece of the windshield. But it's the drop over the edge that your car can't recover from that is to blame for the kill. There will be no shrink in the 34,400 annual kill until the steep edge is replaced with the gentle slope.

A PROFESSOR OF LAW.

Chicago, July 28.—T. B., in your issue of today, asks how a man who defends the eighteenth amendment as a proper expression of the American constitutional system, or even as consistent with the nature of municipal law, is a professor in a law school. I'll answer that. It's easy. Because, regardless of his personal opinion and whether he is dry or wet, he is right. Because both the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law have been upheld by the Supreme court of the United States as perfectly legal and constitutional, and more than once. Therefore his stand shows his competency as a professor of law. Talk about your dry "bigots"! A. B. PAUL.

AN EXCELLENT STORY.

Berwyn, Ill., July 28.—Allow me to congratulate you on your excellent story, "I Like You So Much." Also a few words of praise, please, to Mr. Gray, whose drawings make it so very much more interesting. HELEN BURDA.

LABOR'S TAX PROGRAM.

Chicago, July 29.—Your correspondent, "A Builder," wants to know why the leaders of organized labor "have refused to advocate a reduction in real estate taxes."

The answer is that the term real estate is a trick term that includes two different kinds of property—namely, property that is produced by labor, buildings, and property that was here long before man appeared upon this planet. To scramble these two things together and call them real estate is as unscientific as it is dishonest in any one who poses as an instructor or advocate, and organized labor will denounce the fraud whenever it is given an opportunity.

Furthermore, taxes are payment for services rendered by society and through its organization, the government. We hold that these services should be paid for by those who are financially benefited by them, just as people pay for other services, such as shoes, clothing, food, and building services. In buying any of these, people pay for what they receive. Why should they be required to pay on a different basis for government service?

The value of government service, city, state, or federal, is reflected in the value of land, nowhere else. Things produced by labor owe their value to the service labor has rendered in producing them. To permit the income from $130,000,000,000 of land value in the United States, that is due to the activities, coöperation, and expenditures of the whole people, to be diverted into private channels and around 80 per cent to be pocketed by some of the people instead of being used to defray the expenses of government, and then for the payment of these expenses to take from labor what it produces in lieu thereof may appeal to "A Builder," but it certainly does not appeal to organized labor.

We are for exempting from taxation all things produced by labor, and if "A Builder" has learned something from this reply he will join us and the Manufacturers and Merchants' Federal Tax league in encouraging the production of wealth and discouraging speculation in land.

One helps to employ labor, the other forestalls opportunities to employ labor.

E. N. NOCKELS,
Secretary, Chicago Federation of Labor.

HE CALLS IT ROBBERY.

Chicago, July 27.—Late last evening at South Boulevard "L" station while waiting for a train a woman with a small child put a penny in the chewing gum slot machine, but failed to receive any gum. The writer, feeling sorry for the youngster, then put another penny in the slot with the same abortive result. Shaking and jolting the machine failed to recover either the pennies or obtain chewing gum.

A short while since I read of the arrest of some youths for attempting to rob a slot machine, and I fail to see any difference between the owners of the slot machines who rob little children [as well as grownups] of their pennies and the youths who were arrested for attempting to rob the machines. FAIRPLAY.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

Chicago, July 29.—For the sake of THE TRIBUNE'S reputation for fairness I think the management should avoid unkind attacks upon Col. A. W. W. Woodcock and his assistants. Even if the law is bad, it is their duty to do their best to enforce it. If you had decided views about a certain law case you wouldn't blame the opposing counsel for doing all he could honestly to help his side. Fairness never hurts any cause. Be fair to those who are only doing their duty. HENRY R. CORBETT.

GRANT HEARING ON BATHHOUSES AT OAK STREET

Proponents of Beach Plan to Address Park Board.

Proponents of bathhouse and comforts facilities for Oak street beach will be given a hearing at the meeting of the Lincoln park board next Tuesday afternoon, President Warren Wright said yesterday.

Corporation Counsel Sexton, State Representative Robert M. Woodward, Congressman Fred A. Britten, Ald. James B. Waller [43d] and others have been urging conveniences for bathers at the beach. Sexton has been acting on a resolution adopted by the city council.

Draft Plans for Structures.

At a meeting last Friday it was determined to draft plans. Hugh Young, consulting engineer of the Chicago plan commission, and H. Otto Weege, superintendent of Lincoln park, undertook the task of designing structures that would not meet legal obstacles.

The terms under which Lake Shore drive property owners made grants for the development of the drive prevent the erection of bathhouses or comfort stations, but Corporation Counsel Sexton said he believed underground or temporary conveniences could be constructed in such a manner as to meet the approval of the property owners and still solve the beach problem.

The danger of contamination because of the absence of comfort stations is one objection to present conditions at the beach. On some nights this summer the noise has continued until sunrise and there have been complaints from tenants and property owners. The propjects for bath houses may meet these complaints.

Would Keep View Clear.

Mr. Sexton said that the beach is now three to five feet below the sidewalk along Lake Shore drive and that he believed it feasible to erect temporary structures which would not obstruct the view of residents along the drive.

Mr. Wright did not indicate what attitude, if any, the park commissioners have in the matter of beach facilities, merely saying that the proponents of the plan would be given a hearing. Other park officials expressed the opinion that erection of any structures would require the permission of all the riparian rights holders and pointed out that it is getting late in the bathing beach season.

The Rt. Rev. Benjamin Brewster, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Maine, performed the ceremony. The wedding was changed from Cramerton, N. C., the home of Mrs. Woodman's father, Stuart W. Cramer, to Portland due to the recent accident of Mrs. Woodman's father-in-law, Edward Woodman. The wedding was solemnized in the presence of relatives.

One of the bride's six children, Caroline, and one of the bridegroom's two children, Prof. James W. Angell of Columbia university, were the only attendants.

A wedding breakfast was served to the family at the residence of Edward Woodman on Vaughan street.

Mrs. Angell is the widow of Paul Woodman of this city and her mother was Bertha Berry Cramer of Portland.

The bride is a granddaughter of John W. Thomas, one of the founders of Thomasville, N. C., and her father is a North Carolina manufacturer.

HORNER ADMITS A VIRTUE; HASN'T FARM PANACEA

Cites Cycle to Prove He'll Be Next Governor.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Judge Henry Horner of Chicago, Democratic nominee for governor, told the citizens of Bloomington this noon that "he was the only candidate in captivity who is not an expert on the farm problem." He admitted he knew no panacea for the farmers' ills, but stated he would find one if he possibly could.

He forecast a victory for himself in the fall and pointed out the cycle in which Altgeld, a Chicagoan, a judge, and a Democrat, was elected governor in 1892. Twenty years later Dunne, a Chicagoan, a judge, and Democrat, was elected governor in 1912. Now, twenty years after Dunne, he said, Horner, a Chicagoan, a judge, and a Democrat, should be elected in 1932.

His most startling statement was that Abraham Lincoln was a Democrat. His proof for this assertion rested on the fact that the first three positions held by Lincoln were under Democratic administrations, that Lincoln's chief studies were the works and life of Thomas Jefferson, that he was elected by the Democratic leaders of Illinois to his first administration, and that he ran on a Union platform and not a Republican for his second term of office.

Horner based his platform on that of Lincoln's. He said he would try to reduce the cost of state government, which had increased 350 per cent since Lowden's administration, from 35½ million to 128 million dollars, but that he would make no promises other than that he would do all he could for the betterment of the state.

DRAW UP BEER BILL IN PENNSYLVANIA TO GET READY IN TIME

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Anticipating modification of the Volstead act by the next session of congress, the house today adopted a resolution instructing its ways and means committee to draft a bill permitting the manufacture and sale of four per cent beer in Pennsylvania in the event congress actually approves modification. The vote was 86 to 68.

The resolution was sponsored by Representative Haws of Philadelphia.

The resolution orders preparation of a bill so that Pennsylvania "should be in position to take instant advantage of any modification of the federal law in order to secure revenues from this luxury, as soon as the Volstead act is amended."

SOPHIE TUCKER SUED ON NOTE BY MOE ROSENBERG

Neither Sophie Tucker, singer of blues, nor Moe Rosenberg, Democratic committeeman of the 24th ward, cared to say much yesterday about a suit that grew out of a loan of $5,000 he is alleged to have made her on Jan. 3, 1928.

According to the law firm of Epstein and Arvey, which filed the suit, Sophie hasn't even paid the interest of 6 per cent, although her promissory note was to mature in sixty days.

"No suit has been filed. I know nothing about it," Sohpie said yesterday from her room in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

"There's nothing to it," said Rosenberg. "It'll be settled all right." He said he couldn't remember the purpose of the loan nor the circumstances under which it was made. The case was continued to Sept. 23 by Municipal Judge Frederick W. Elliott.

ROB LOOP STORE AND EVADE POLICE IN TRAFFIC CHASE

Three gunmen yesterday took $2,500 from the Royal Crown Hosiery company, Inc., 229 West Washington street, an escaped in their automobile from two mounted policemen after a chase through crowded loop streets.

The robbers entered the front door of the shop with drawn revolvers. They rounded up 15 women employes and customers and forced them to lie on the floor of a rear room. Manager Max Goldberg and the cashier, Miss Louise Larson, were forced to hand over the contents of the cash drawer.

As the bandits ran to their automobile an assistant manager, Thomas Challos, followed and called for help. Mounted Policemen George Tambling and John Connors responded and pursued the car in Washington street to Wells street, south to Madison street, west to Canal, south to Monroe street, and west to Clinton street, where the bandit car disappeared in traffic. Tambling and O'Connor obtained the license number of the bandit car and sought the registered owner for questioning.

WOMEN DISCUSS NEW FASHIONS IN CHILDBIRTH

Doctor Raps Unneeded Cæsarean Operations.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Changing fashions in childbirth were discussed yesterday, along with changing fashions in women's apparel, at a program sponsored by the Chicago Woman's club and the Century of Progress committee, in the Navy pier auditorium.

DR. EFFA V. DAVIS.

After women had displayed the corseted waists, bustles and padded busts, the leg o' mutton sleeves and sweeping skirts which were fashionable at the World's Columbian exposition in 1893 and modern women in their simple clothes had followed them on the platform, Dr. Effa V. Davis talked on maternity.

She pointed out that although the women of today have excellent hospitalization, and the best of prenatal care and post-natal care they have followed certain unwholesome fashions unfamiliar to women of 1893 which increase maternal mortality considerably. The reference was to Cæsarian operations.

Mortality Statistics.

A survey by a committee of the Chicago Council of Medical Women, of which she was chairman, Dr. Davis revealed, showed that of the 260 maternity deaths occurring in Chicago from May, 1930, to May, 1931, 40 were due to abortions, and 41 resulted in cases where Cæsarian operations were performed.

"Our maternity mortality statistics should be revamped," she said. "As they are now, they are frightening to women. It should be made clear that for the woman who wants a baby in the normal manner and is willing to behave reasonably, there is little danger.

"As our statistics are now, this 260 deaths of women in childbirth made a mortality rate of 4.5 per thousand births.

"But take out the 40 deaths due to abortion, and we have 3.5 as our mortality rate."

Survey in London.

"A recent survey in London brought this conclusion by a medical committee: 'Too many Cæsarians,'" Dr. Davis added. "No Cæsarian operation should be performed without a consultation of physicians. There are cases when they are necessary to save life, but they should be performed only as a last resort. "The woman who teases her doctor for a Cæsarian because she will be spared some pain, or because they are popular, may face disastrous results."

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Nicholas M. Schenck, wife of the president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture corporation, became the mother of a seven pound daughter. It is their second daughter.

NO PARKING LAW ENFORCEMENT TO BE INVESTIGATED

The city council traffic committee is to investigate enforcement of the loop no parking ordinance, including the parking privileges granted public officials around the city hall and county building, Ald. John A. Massen [48th], announced yesterday.

"I have been told," the alderman said, "that public officials and friends of officials have been parking where they shouldn't. All privileged parking in the loop should be stopped. If the no parking ordinance is to be enforced it should be universally enforced.

"I am going to make a survey of parking in violation of the provisions of the no parking ordinance. The survey will show just how efficiently the police are enforcing the ordinance."

DEADLY BATTLE IN PROGRESS AT INDIANA MINE

cut down by the pickets or broken down by the afternoon rainstorm. Officials of the company said, however, that among them are several cool headed leaders who probably would marshal their forces in such a way as to resist to death any concerted assault. This was indicated, it was pointed out, by the manner in which the men conserved their fire.

"The men are probably conserving their ammunition so in case of emergency they will be able to defend themselves to the limit," said one observer.

Governor Refuses Troops.

Officials could not confirm reports that three of their men were slain, but many of the pickets declared that they had seen three bodies of miners or guards lying near the tipple.

Efforts to break up the siege were started almost as soon as the pickets gathered. Leading the peace movement was Sheriff Joe Dreher of Vigo county. When he saw that his efforts were futile, he wired Gov. Leslie for troops. Later, after he and his men had been fired upon, he sent a second message, this time asking for a military plane equipped with bombs, in addition to troops.

Late tonight Gov. Leslie still withheld aid, repeating his previous comment that he would act "when the time comes." He has urged repeatedly that the union officials and operators reach an amicable understanding.

Although the union men have been picketing the mine since last week, no noticeable disorders had occurred on that account, although last April a group of them assaulted several miners and officials. The union men permitted the nonunion workers to go about their tasks yesterday without molestation.

Illinois Miners Warned.

Benton, Ill., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Illinois miners attending a mass meeting at the Franklin county fair groupnds today heard a warning from John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, that unless the miners ratify the $5 basic wage proposal approved by the state policy committee the operators "might run the mines without you."

Union officials estimated the meeting was attended by approximately 10,000 miners.

Lewis charged that opposition to the proposal was inspired by communists and pleaded with the miners to accept the new contract in Saturday's referendum, contending the wage was the best obtainable.

"You have a chance now to approve this tentative agreement and regain losses," Lewis said. "If you abandon it you pave the way for complete destruction of the miners' union in Illinois."

Despite early indications of opposition demonstrations at the meeting, the miners were orderly. As a safeguard against disorders, 300 special deputies and 40 state highway police patroled the fair grounds.

John H. Walker, addressing miners at Taylorville, urged ratification of the proposed wage scale to "save the miners' union in Illinois from destruction." Rejection of the proposal, he said, would cause a breakdown of the Illinois union such as has occurred in southern Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, and other states producing coal in competition with Illinois.

Millions of Butterflies Hinder Lassen Park Travel

Lassen National Park, Cal., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Millions of orange winged butterflies invaded Lassen park and the surrounding country today. The insects were so numerous they hindered motor travel, obstructing the vision Otis F. Gleen and the Washington reof drivers and clogging up radiators.

Chicago's worst public enemy is the quack who preys on victims of these ailments!

Those quacks who claim to specialize in "diseases of men" are far more dangerous to Chicago than all its gangsters and racketeers combined. Largely by means of pamphlets describing "symptoms" that almost anybody might have, they frighten into their clutches thousands of men who may or may not require treatment.

The most criminal thing of all about these quacks is that they often treat men who are entirely free from infection! Or if the patient is actually diseased, they frequently scare him by threats of "I'll tell your family or employer" into continuing treatment much longer than necessary and paying an excessive price for it. In many instances the treatment given is absolutely worthless and does more harm than good!

It is quite true, according to the American Social Hygiene Ass'n, that syphilis is the most deadly of all diseases. Unless properly treated, it may result in heart disease, locomotor ataxia, apoplexy, paralysis, Bright's (kidney) disease, epilepsy, blindness or even insanity! Furthermore, it has been proved to be directly responsible for the majority of stillborn and defective babies.

And it is also true that mistreated gonorrhea may lead to sterility, crippling rheumatism, prostate troubles or other serious complications. In addition, gonorrhea is an outstanding cause of infantile blindness, and is to blame for the greater part of the mutilating pelvic operations that are performed on women.

But both diseases can be cured at reasonable cost by the qualified physician. Even long-neglected syphilis can often be arrested and tragic results prevented. Thus every man who has an active social disease, or who has reason to suspect that an early infection has not been completely cleared up, should go at once to his family doctor or come to the Public Health Institute.

Founded by prominent Chicagoans NOT FOR PROFIT but solely for the protection of the community, the Public Health Institute specializes in the treatment of venereal diseases at fees that are amazingly low considering its high standard of medical service. A complete examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including Wassermann and Kahn blood tests, costs only $3.00, while six consecutive treatments for gonorrhea cost but $4.00. Even those lacking immediate funds will be cared for.

The Public Health Institute possesses every necessary scientific facility for the cure of social diseases. It maintains separate departments for men and women, where treatment is administered in complete privacy by a staff of experienced physicians who have been licensed by the State Board of Medical Examiners. Almost four million treatments have been given during the last 12 years!

When leading Chicago newspapers have repeatedly exposed the quack, and have proved again and again that his only concern is to get as much of your money as possible, why run the risk of entrusting your health to such a charlatan? You can be sure of absolute privacy, reliable treatment and fees within your means when you go to any reputable physician or come to a recognized clinic such as the Public Health Institute.

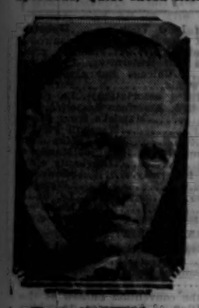
W. B. Maxwell Book's Ending Is 'Too Sweet'

'Amos, the Wanderer,' Is Unreal and Yet Attractive.

"Amos, the Wanderer," by W. B. Maxwell [Dodd Mead].



W. B. MAXWELL.

W. B. MAXWELL, a prolific author of novels, among which are "Spinster of This Parish" and "The Concave Mirror," has written a gentle, inconspicuous, quiet faced little tale in his latest novel, "Amos, the Wanderer."

The hero is an assistant to his father in a small village, but he dreams great, sweeping, glamorous dreams of far away lands. Finally he severs all his connections in the village, including the one with the young and adoring girl who asks to go with him, and sets out with a pack on his back to see the world.

A few miles outside his village he runs into a sick and pathetic looking man who needs his help. He intends to stop only long enough to help him, but is later detained by the man's sudden illness. Soon Amos' affection for the man deepens into love and he feels he cannot desert him and his impecunious sister. One obligation after another descends upon him and he is soon settled in this neighboring village, beset with the troubles of others, anxious and eager to help every one who needs him, cherishing in secret his dreams of wandering over the world.

Elsie, the lovely girl he deserted, tortures his conscience and he vainly tries to find her. She has disappeared, leaving no address. So Amos tries to forget, fulfills his every day duties, revives the industries in the village, makes friends with every one, saves the village from the dreaded invasion of the railroad, and slowly becomes a local celebrity. His life is sacrificed to the happiness of others.

The end of the story tries the patience of the reader sorely. It is simply too sweet, too sentimental, too unreal, too coincidental, too obviously and inappropriately symbolic to be effective. On the whole, however, the novel is attractive. The writing is quiet and unobtrusive, the characters real enough to bear the burden of the plot, the wisdom superficial but pleasing, and the theme not unworthy. The author leans heavily upon sentiment and not enough upon humor. He concentrates more upon his plot and philosophical intention [which seems somewhat thin] than upon careful characterisation, which is the basis of all convincing novels and which, in "Amos, the Wanderer," had it been more brilliant or more thorough even, would have balanced the book's other inadequacies.

Published Monday was "The London Omnibus" [Doubleday Doran], with an introduction by Carl Van Doren. It is a splendid book to take away with you on your vacation, and it is a book that any one would be grateful to have on his library table to pick up from time to time. It contains, in 1,500 odd pages, A. P. Herbert's popular novel, "The Water Gypsies"; Edgar Wallace's complete mystery tale, "The Man at the Carlton"; Aldous Huxley's complete book, "The Cicadas and Other Poems," and a short story of his from "Brief Candles"; Noel Coward's deliciously amusing play, "Private Lives," in its entirety; a short mystery story by Max Beerbohm, and a part of Arnold Bennett's last and unfinished novel.

Virginia Woolf has contributed "Mr. Bennett and Mrs. Brown," an essay from the "Hogarth Essays," a brilliant and subtle example of her literary criticism in which she evaluates and compares the Edwardians [Wells, Bennett, and Galsworthy] and the Georgians [Lawrence, Strachey, Joyce, and Eliot], giving her own personal reactions and beliefs toward the function of the novelist and the importance of his art. Rebecca West is represented by "Uncle Bennett" from "The Strange Necessity," in which she, in a wise and witty fashion, captures the significance of Arnold Bennett's genius and which is perhaps in its acidity and its penetration one of the most skilled interpretations Arnold Bennett has ever received.

T. S. Eliot writes of "John Dryden," from "The Hogarth Essays," in his usual brilliant and ascetic manner. The gresdy reader may well wonder why his poems, "Wasteland" or "Ash Wednesday," were not included since lavishness is the tenor of the book and T. S. Eliot's poetry is of equal magnitude with his criticism.

There is the short story, "Rain," by W. Somerset Maugham, from which the popular play was made, and Hugh Walpole's short story entitled, "The Tiger." P. G. Wodehouse contributes many pages of swell laughs in "Jeeves and the Impending Doom" [from "Very Good Jeeves"]; Havelock Ellis with "The Function of Taboo," and Julian Huxley, H. G. Wells, and G. P. Wells are offered to represent scientific thought in England. Richard Aldington and William Roughead are given their due. "The London Omnibus" contains rich and varied selection from some of the best contemporary literature in England. It is the August offering of the Literary Guild.

'De Lawd' Back in Harlem from Green Pastures

Box Office Records Broken by Play on Tour.

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—The fat angel and the thin angel, old man Noah, the old King Pharaoh, De Lawd and the Angel Gabriel, the custard maker and the king of Babylon, the bad boy, Cain, and the children of the fish fry—all of them—were restored today to their native harlem. "The Green Pastures" is home from the road.

At 8:45 a. m. today a ten car special of the New York Central, which had borne them east from Chicago, thundered into the 125th street station and disgorged 103 Negro players, big and little, old and young, all of them tricked up in unbelievable finery. They were home again after forty-seven weeks of triumphant touring, the only prosperous troupe of actors left in the western hemisphere.

There were scenes of wild excitement as the players, ranging in age from 4½ years to nearly 80, stepped on to the station platform. All Harlem turned out for the reception and made it a memorable one. Welcomers swarmed over the platform, choked the stairways and jammed the sidewalks below. Private cars by the score were parked in the vicinity and every taxi in sight was put into immediate service.

The troupers of "The Green Pastures" have played Marc Connelly's and Roark Bradford's remarkable fable 1,028 times. They have a brief vacation before they open in Boston on Labor day. Boston has not seen it. Nor has Washington. Nor has Baltimore. And the entire south is yet to be covered. So "The Green Pastures" will surely run through another season, its third, and may carry on into a fourth.

It was a remarkable adventure, that cross-county jaunt of "The Green Pastures." In town after town the play broke box office records in the middle west and on the coast.

"The Green Pastures" players returned agleam and aglitter. They are back to the bright lights of Lenox avenue with new shoes on their feet and new clothes on their backs. All of them earned money; most of them still have money. However, they spent their dollars in the tradition of the profession. They bought cars, and cameras, and trunks—$1,800 worth of trunks in St. Louis alone.

Richard B. Harrison, whose performance as De Lawd established him as one of the outstanding actors of his race, is back from the long trip without having missed a performance since that February opening in 1930.

Three deaths cut into the ranks of the company during its long run. Charles Wesley Hill, the first Gabriel, was killed in an automobile accident here in December, 1930. His successor, Sam Davis, died in Indianapolis and Howard Smith, the company's manager, died in Denver last Saturday.

The present Gabriel is Dodo Green.

August Shows to Make New Fur History

Styles, Workmanship, and Prices All Attractive.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Each August the already heated atmosphere becomes considerably more torrid with caustic criticisms by the male population in regard to our rather capricious buying of fine furs during the hottest and most sweltering days of the summer.

Regardless of the fact that other males capitalize generously on such perversity, discreet shoppers never mention that fact and continue to dash about the shops while these fur fashions are new.

It takes lots more than masculine disapproval to keep a good clothes hound from shopping for furs during these last summer days, for the newest fashion trends will be displayed, new sleeves, a new waistline, flattering new collars and other details that change and even date all other fur coats.

This year, you'll linger over the new gray kidskin coats, sleek patrician beauties that are shaded from pale silvery gray high around the collar down to the lower edge of the straight, simple skirt in one of thick frosty-oxford gray. Expert designers have cunningly matched pelts so flawlessly as to defy detection and the dramatic long, dark lines blend without any sign of joining.

You will find ample street and sportslike models of gray kidskin, with pockets, a wide buckled belt and small tailored standup collar, with double breasted closings with rows of silver gray bone buttons.

Another coat is as slender as a pencil with a straight up and down silhouette and the yoke is almost Vionnet in effect, with a long diagonal swerve slashing directing across the front. A semi-circular collar buttoned snugly high and a narrow, gray suede belt complete the picture. Unusual linings are featured in these kidskin coats, including Rodier fabrics in dull grays with flecks of silver woven casually throughout and madonna blue tinted silk and wool fabrics with borders of silver bars in close formation. Ascot scarfs sometimes also are made of the lining and sewed to the neckline of the coat.

The prices on all fur coats are amazingly modest. In many cases fur models cost much less than lavishly fur trimmed cloth coats. This surely is the year to buy a fur coat!

Kidskins in gray are perhaps the lowest in fur history. One shop is showing a coat and hat of extraordinarily beautiful gray tones. The coat has the new elaborate sleeves pouched or puffed at the elbow and buttons well at the side in a military manner with fur covered buttons. The hat is a draped affair with a perky little bow well above the right eye.

This same shop should be complimented on the swagger leopard sports coats they are showing. They are quite the smartest models of the year; slender fitted silhouettes with smart upturned collars and simple slightly puffed elbow in the sleeves.

The exceptionally marked pelts distinguish these models. In one instance a full 50 inch pelt is unmarred the full length of the back of the coat and the inspecting shopper is unable to tell where the craftsman sewed it to other skins. It is a perfect example of the exquisite workmanship and artistry that marks the fashionable fur coats from this shop!

Government Stamps on Paris Garments to Combat Copyists

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Beginning today, milliners and fashion houses may place a government stamp issued to them by the bureau of patents and copyrights on labels bearing their own names which are sewn into all their style creations.

This privilege affords greatly increased protection against style copyists and counterfeiters, who will be liable to imprisonment if, in the future, they use the government stamp in a garment or hat represented to be a product of any famous house.

Widow of Edwin Culver Reported Wed in Paris

Culver, Ind., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Announcement has been received here of the marriage of Mrs. Alice W. Culver, widow of the late Edwin Culver, and Maj. The announcement said the newly weds are honeymooning in Paris, and will travel in Europe for a year. Mrs. Parker's late husband was president of the board of trustees of the academy from 1897 until 1930.

Daughter of Ohio's Governor Weds Today as the Result of Crash

Columbus, O., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Miss Charlotte White, daughter of Gov. George O. White, who bumped into romance in an automobile accident, will be married to Dr. Frank E. Hamilton here tomorrow in the most brilliant social event of the season in the Buckeye capital.

An automobile accident last January, in which Miss White received severe cuts and bruises, brought an acquaintance with Dr. Hamilton.

British Claim Film Market in Far East Is Captured from U. S.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 2.—An important film contract capturing the far eastern markets from American producers has been signed here. E. G. Osborn, managing director of the Associated British Picture corporation of Shanghai, said the contract covered the entire output of British Gaumont pictures for five years.

"It means," he said, "the releasing of British pictures over a chain of 175 theaters in Japan, China, Siam, Malay countries, and the Dutch Indies, reaching an audience of 150,000,000. While heretofore the films have been 100 per cent American, the proportion now will become 80 per cent British and 20 per cent American."

BY ANNA NANGLE.

If you like westerns and go for tap dancing the State-Lake's the place for you this week! Apparently a lot of people have such tastes, because I had to climb innumerable stairs to find a seat there recently.

George O'Brien, Cecilia Parker, all kinds of villainous men, rangers, and speedy horses figure in "Mystery Ranch." It's the usualy manly hero lady-in-distress stuff, but you can sit through it if you're not too fussy. The splendid scenery makes up for a number of things.

Mr. O'Brien, as the hero, does miraculous tricks—such as overpowering six or seven men unaided—in a calm, unruffled manner. The technique of the thing, as I understand it, is to jump on the opponent and fall down and roll over with him—the first man up wins. It's no fair for the loser to get in the fight again. He plays dead. In case of an infraction of this rule I guess they don't let him play in westerns any more.

The tap dancing I spoke of is performed by the old champion, Bill Robinson, and how he does it! A gray suit, a derby of the same color, a cane, and a pair of magical feet are his tools. He trips nonchalantly up and down stairs and on and off the stage, grinning widely, and holding his audience entranced. He's accompanied by an entire company of colored singers and dancers, but, as far as I was concerned, Mr. Robinson was the only pebble on the beach.

Offer 12 Weeks Opera Proposal for Auditorium

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Still another plan for Chicago opera this season was made public yesterday. In addition to the Cosmopolitan Opera company headed by Max Rabinoff, which is making plans to come here after seasons in New York and Boston, Isaac Van Grove, conductor of the former Chicago Civic Opera company and artistic director of the Cincinnati Opera company, now about to close its summer season, offers a twelve weeks' season at the Auditorium.

Under this system the stars will appear not on salary but for a percentage of the box office receipts, a minimum deficit will be assured through efficient business practices, and a guarantee from civic leaders not exceeding $200,000 would be sought.

A number of Civic Opera singers have been appearing with Mr. Van Grove this summer, among them Coe Glade, Sonia Sharnova, Forrest Lamont, and Chase Baromeo. These and others of the Civic company's forces are expected to be members of the new company.

Adelaide Anderson, pianist, gave a recital yestereday morning at the Punch and Judy theater in the final week of the Chicago Musical college summer artist series. Miss Anderson is a talented and highly trained artist, technically able to cope with works of such dimensions as the Franck-Bauer Prelude, Fugue, and Variation, and the Liszt Sonata in B minor, and playing them thoughtfully, sincerely, and logically. The second part of her program consisted of works by Debussy, De Falla, Tcherepnine, and Strauss-Tausig.

Society Plans for Busy Days in September

North Shore Calendars Becoming Crowded.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IN a little less than a month hence the north shore will have lost its summertime inertia and the annual procession of fall debuts and weddings will begin. September and early October provide ideal settings for outdoor affairs and the brides and debutantes of those months always take advantage of the autumnal garden blooms as backgrounds for their receptions.

The social calendar for Saturday, Sept. 10, is already well marked as one of those days when society will have to rush from one affair to another, for there are two debut parties in Winnetka, a wedding in Kenilworth, and an Evanston wedding scheduled for that afternoon.

The latest announcement for that date is that of the wedding of Miss Ann Ashcraft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Ashcraft of Evanston, to Raymond Otis Mitchell, which is to be solemnized at 4:30 o'clock at St. Mark's Episcopal church. The wedding will be a small affair, for only the families and a few friends will be invited to the church, but there will be a large reception afterwards in the gardens of the Ashcraft residence. The bride-to-be hasn't heard from all the vacationing friends she has asked to be in her wedding party, but if they all accept she will have a large retinue of attendants to precede her up the church aisle.

Miss Darling's Brother-in-law Will Perform Marriage.

At the same hour in Kenilworth Miss Dorothy Darling, daughter of the Ira C. Darlings, will be married to Lieut. George V. Holloman in the Church of the Holy Comforter. The bride's brother-in-law, the Rev. Leland Danforth, rector of the church, will perform the ceremony, which will be followed by a small reception in the Darling gardens. The list of invitations to the church will be small also.

Mrs. Danforth will be her sister's matron of honor and Jane Darling will be matron of honor. Miss Georgiana Fowler and Miss Katherine Roach, both of Winnetka, will be bridesmaids. Lieut. Samuel Harris of Wright field, Dayton, O., will serve as best man for the groom. There will be no ushers.

Miss Darling and her father spent last week-end in Dayton, where Lieut. Holloman is stationed, and where she will reside after her marriage. Lieut. Holloman will arrive in Kenilworth around the first of September, in time for the prenuptial parties that will be given for him and his bride. The young people are not revealing where they plan to go for their wedding trip, nor whether or not they will travel by plane.

The debutantes who will make their bows on the same Saturday afternoon are Miss Frances Bell, daughter of the Laird Bells, and her cousin, Miss Lucy Fairbank, Mrs. Dexter Fairbank's daughter, who are to be presented at a joint tea and reception in the gardens of the Bells' residence in Winnetka, and Miss Betty Gillies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Gillies, who is also to be given an outdoor party by her parents.

Owen B. Joneses' Guest Lands Autogiro on Lawn.

The Owen B. Joneses had a caller Sunday afternoon who, although he literally dropped in on them, wasn't unexpected, for they knew that he was coming and they and some of their neighbors were out on the lawn to greet them. The caller was Duncan Hodges, who flew from the Palwaukee field in his autogiro and landed in the front yard of Owls, the Jones' Lake Forest estate.

With Mr. and Mrs. Jones on the lawn at the time were Mr. Hodges' wife and her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, whose estate, Covin Tree, is just north of Owls—the Judah place is between Covin Tree and Owls—and their guests, Lord and Lady Hastings, the Max Epsteins, and the Clay Judsons.

Lord and Lady Hastings, by the way, are a charming young English couple whom the Brewsters met in California last year and who are in Glencoe now visiting the Morris R. Glasers. Lord Hastings is a painter and is doing a mural for the Glasers which will keep him and his wife here for several weeks more.

Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard are in town for a brief visit and are staying at the residence of Mrs. Hubbard's father, Harold F. McCormick, at 875 Rush street. Their visit is primarily for the purpose of seeing Mrs. Hubbard's mother, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, so there will be no opportunity for the former Muriel McCormick's friends here to meet her husband until autumn when the Hubbards plan to return here for a longer visit.

Harold Byron Smiths in Barrington After Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Byron Smith [Polly Hart], whose marriage took place on June 25, returned last Sunday from their wedding trip and are at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillson Hart, in Barrington, to be with Miss Betty Hart while Mr. and Mrs. Hart visit their other daughter, Mrs. Dennis L. Harmon [Miriam Hart], and while the house the Smiths have taken is being gotten in readiness for them to occupy it on Oct. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Hart sail tomorrow from Montreal for Cherbourg and from there will go directly to Zurich, for their only purpose in going abroad just now is to see Mr. and Mrs. Harmon and to make the acquaintance of their first grandchild, four months old, Denise Harmon. Mr. Hart will return in about a month, but Mrs. Hart plans to remain away about two months.

The Smiths are to be year around residents of Barrington and the little house they will live in is not far from Hartwood, the Harts' beautiful estate. Mrs. Smith's aunt, Mrs. Evan Evans, is planning to give a Sunday breakfast party for her early in September after the girls who attended pretty Polly Hart at her wedding have re-

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indulgent, dependent, young half brother. The doctor offers to give Harney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who summoned the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doris Hathaway, a widow "keen" of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralizing influence of Doris. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doris meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Gip Alen, Gold's half brother, slows away on the boat and threatens to disclose his identity unless Gold does as he bids. Pierce, who overhears Gip's threats, unknown to Gold, arranges to get him third class passage on condition he doesn't bother Gold. Dorrance offers Gold a position as his secretary on the Havana trip, which she gladly accepts. Doris invites a good looking youth from steerage to dine with her and give an exhibition tango. The youth is Gip Alen, earney again takes Gip in hand and arranges to give him a six months' tryout in his Texas lumber camp.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

PROUD DESOLATION.

"Gip, are you sure you're safe?" Gold asked.

The old softness, the old love, welling up in her, making her ask that question—that silly question—which any listening male ears would hear with contempt! But she was not a man; she could not take the man's viewpoint; she was woman all through, yearning and suffering for her own. She felt, rather than saw, Elverton make a sharp movement.

Gip saw the movement. He knew well how to interpret it. This doctor, so compassionate when it came to dealing with women, had a different code for men.

"Say what you've agreed to say," Elverton's movement reminded him.

That Pierce fellow, whatever his code for women—and he did not look easy—had a stiff code for men, too.

Again Gip's gesture appeared splendid and disdainful, and only she, who knew him so well, might have guessed at the frightened quivering of his heart. But tonight she did not guess. Indeed, Gip Alen had been well primed; Barney had put in some fierce work with him conversationally; Elverton had added his quota; he had been up again before the captain, and treated to a stiff homily by the chief purser himself. Orders, which he dared not disobey, had been issued.

But though he might not, they had informed him frankly, trouble his half sister any further with his misfortunes at this juncture, he knew impishly that he could "trouble" her another way.

He had hurt her before; he knew how. He could wring her heart.

"I! On your shoulders. I!"

Yet she could not laugh. The hurt was too sharp.

It was probably another gesture of Elverton's, unseen by Gold, that turned Gip on his heel, still grandiloquently, and made him walk away.

The doctor touched her arm.

"Come along."

He was glad to see the fire through the tears in her eyes. She was angry? If she were only angry enough!

"Aren't you satisfied about him now?" he asked bluntly.

"If all that is true——"

"It is true. I'll guarantee it." His steady eyes met hers. "Come along. Be satisfied now."

"If I can have an address."

"What for?"

"To write to him. So that he will know where to find me if he needs me."

He gave her an address taken from his notecase, in which he had a card of Pierce's. He did not show her the card, only dictated, standing beside a writing table as she noted it down. "Write to him in care of 5000 Madison avenue, second floor office."

"Will he be there?"

"No," said Elverton definitely. "I think not."

. . . . . .

There was a great deal to do for Doria in the morning. They docked at midday. Try as she did, she could catch no sign of Gip on the deck. As she moved about looking after Doria's multifarious baggage, though, she saw from a distance Barney Pierce watching her. His valet was dealing with his cases. So he came from his place under the letter P in the customs shed, and joined her where she opened trunks under the letter H. Her own suitcase and hatbox were not so far away.

"All right, Miss Franklyn?" she heard him saying. It was a business-like voice of a man expecting to be imminently busy, a man of little leisure; and as she heard it, bending over Doria's furs and laces, beside the customs inspector, she felt a queer desolation like a heartache. Yet why should she be desolate at thinking, as she thought: "He's going out of my life. I'm gind—— I'll never hear him say again, 'I like you so much!'"

"All right, Miss Franklyn?"

But it was Doria, suddenly close to them, who held out both hands to his.

"O, yes, we're all right, Barney. Thanks so much, dear. She'll get the things through quite easily. And Barney——" a break of uncertainty in the warm voice, for the voyage had, after all, given her so little of his companionship, and that little of the most unsatisfying kind—"Barney, you know where I'll be. At the Vanderbilt. You'll give me a ring later on today?"

"And where is Miss Franklyn going?"

It was the question he meant to have answered, the question he had been trying for an opportunity to ask, all yesterday and this morning. Gold Franklyn had been so elusive, so evasive in any reply to any interrogation. But here and now, Barney meant to be answered.

It was Doria who answered him, drawing aside as if to make room for a hurried searcher of lost baggage, so that he drew aside with her, too. Some yards separated them from Gold and a very meticulous official.

"O, she is coming with me for the present," Doria said.

"The Vanderbilt?"

"I said so, Barney!"

"You are looking after her a bit, then?" his eyes softened.

"Of course I am. What do you take me for?" the warm voice murmured indignantly.

Barney Pierce glanced towards the baggage he had left. His man was signaling to him that all was cleared. "I must go," he said, "I've half a dozen appointments."

"But you'll call me up?"

"Yes. I'll call you up, at the Vanderbilt."

He was going. "Good-by, Miss Franklyn," he called.

The girl looked up. Why had she that air of proud desolation? He started towards her.

"Good-by," she called back coolly.

Doria looked after him, her moon face a little set. It was not often that she looked so hard. But she was confirming to herself now that unwelcome thought which had come to her during the voyage more than once: Barney Pierce was attracted by Gold Franklyn.

"Mrs. Hathaway," said Elverton at her elbow.

The doctor's steady eyes scrutinized her.

"Where will you be staying?"

"At the Vanderbilt," she said again.

"I may call you?"

Doria repudiated the joyful rush at her heart as she said lightly, "Why, do."

"We shall be fellow voyagers again very soon anyhow."

"Tomorrow."

Gold locked the trunks. Their porter stood near. Dorrance hurried by, bowing to Doria, pausing for a word with Gold. "The Tree hotel, then, near Washington square. Little place. Just right for you. I'll call you up there this afternoon."

"Thank you."

He, too, was gone.

How they melted away, these fellow travelers of an enchanting journey; these fellow citizens of a small ship world; these neighbors who were all at once strangers again. But she need not feel so desolate: there was a future.

"Now we can go," said Doria heartily.

They were in a taxicab together, driving away.

"I was telling Barney Pierce you were lunching with me," said Doria.

"O, Mrs. Hathaway, am I lunching with you?"

"Of course, dear. At the Vanderbilt. I thought you'd enjoy it. And then after lunch you can go right off to wherever you're going."

Vice President Curtis Guest of Film Stars

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—During his stay here for the Olympic games, Vice President Curtis has been lionized by nabobs of the film colony, but one movie star refused to be impressed and, in fact, had to be urged twice to attend a party to meet the Vice President. This exclusive actor was Jackie Cooper, who attended a party in honor of the Vice President at the Santa Monica seaside summer home of Louis B. Mayer, head of M. G. M. studio, last Sunday.

"Have you met the Vice President, Jackie?" a friend of the hostess asked. "Yeah," said Jackie, who was pressing inquiries as to where he could change into a bathing suit in order to go swimming in the seaside pool with the 11 year old daughter of Conrad Nagel, who was the only other person near Jackie's age at the party.

Pressed to go shake hands with the guest of honor again, Jackie bestowed a grip on the Vice President, and said: "Glad to meet cha; hope you'll excuse me; I got to be going," and in another minute was in the pool. He and little Miss Nagel were the only ones at the rather formal party who swam, and they had fun making the party as informal as possible, snorting like a couple of grampuses when Constance Bennett blew in in chiffon glory, and playfully splashing water on Carmel Myers, Diane Kane [Mrs. George Fitzmaurice] and Mrs. J. J. Murdock.

Carl Laemmle Sr. made his first trip away from home since his recent major operation in Baltimore to do honor to the Vice President at Mr. Mayer's party.

The Vice President showed his generous and thoughtful side by calling up Mr. Mayer, who is one of the Los Angeles committee conducting the Olympic games, and asking what means need be taken to present a permanent pass to the games to Jim Thorpe, Indian athlete who was America's all-around hero in the Stockholm Olympics in 1912. "It's not because Jim Thorpe and I are both Indians," Vice President Curtis said, "but because I was deeply moved to be informed that the man who was Uncle Sam's greatest athletic hero in his heyday could have been so far forgotten that he was forced to stand on the sidelines and watch the athletes of the present generation go by into the stadium where he himself lacked even a seat."

Thorpe has been playing minor parts in the movies for the last year, his last film being in a picture with Jackie Cooper at the M. G. M. studio.

Special Class for the Gifted Is Criticized

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Whenever anything new where children are concerned sails over the horizon and into view there always arise the enthusiastic pros, and the coolly critical, or even antagonistic cons. This is true where the question comes up of creating special classes for gifted children.

It is well for us to be able to see both sides, because: "Although the special class for gifted children is enthusiastically upheld by those who have tried it, yet there remain people who raise what they believe to be more or less serious objections to such a plan."

One of these objections is made on the score of democracy—that it is not democratic to pick out a few of the best children and give them special privileges in a nation which is based on democratic ideals.

The answer is that such an objection is based on a mistaken idea of what democracy is—also on a mistaken idea of the nature of these gifted children and special classes. Democracy doesn't mean that we're all alike; it means that we're equal in the sense that we shall have equal opportunity.

Well, we give our handicapped children, whether they're physically or mentally handicapped, the most special kind of treatment, classes and teachers. You would realize that if you could see the proportion of reading matter in this report. Over 480 pages are devoted to handicapped children and exactly 14 pages to the education of gifted children. We don't think of that special treatment as undemocratic.

The report of the special section on education of the White House conference has this to say on the subject:

"It is as important for the welfare of the group as for the happiness of the individual that the bright child should have the opportunity to exercise his intelligence and attain the highest achievement possible as it is that the dull child should have an opportunity to learn the simple things that his limits of intelligence can encompass. Instead of being undemocratic, it is claimed that the special class is the only truly democratic procedure."

Mrs. Webster Finds Artist in Own Family

Son Studying Architecture Copies Old Portraits.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

MRS. Henry Kitchell Webster didn't mind the interruption that occurred the other day when she was entertaining at luncheon in honor of Miss Madeleine Clapp of Boston. For it was the arrival of her two young sons, Stokely and Roderick, from an eastern vacation.

In fact, the arrival was perfectly timed. For Stokely brought with him copies of portraits of his great-great-grandparents that he had just finished, and all of the guests had an opportunity to see and admire his work.

As yet Stokely hasn't taken his painting seriously. He is a student of architecture at Yale. But in the opinion of several persons who have seen his work he has a bright future ahead as an artist, that is, if he wants it.

Stokely started painting when he was about ten years old. Stopping in Paris with his family he asked for a color box and with his paints made a number of charming boyish impressions of the gay capital city. Then two or three summers ago he returned from Provincetown with a half dozen canvasses that his mother persuaded him to let her frame and hang in the dining room of their Evanston home. The young artist didn't think much of them for he has a way of minimizing his own abilities. In fact he told his family at the time that he had left some 20 more pictures under a wharf in Provincetown.

He happened on portrait painting more or less by accident. For several years Mrs. Webster had wanted copies of portraits of her great-grandmother and grandfather on her father's side and has often looked about for an artist to do the work. She couldn't have the originals, as she explained, for they belong to the men of the family.

When Stokely came home one day with a copy he had made of a Rembrandt portrait, she knew at once who her artist was to be. This explains the real purpose of the present trip east to Frederick, Md., to be exact, though as Stokely says, the portraits could have been done in half the time if it hadn't been for the fine southern hospitality.

Mrs. Webster had heavy gold frames ready and waiting for them here so they have already been hung, opposite portraits of her grandparents on her mother's side of the family.

A number of fine portraits have been hung in Chicago homes the last few years. Society has not yet forgotten the visit of Frank O. Salisbury, who made such delightful paintings of Margaret Carr, Mrs. Calvin Smith, F. Edson White, and Arthur Reynolds among others. More recent are the portraits Boutet de Monvel made on his visit to the city, in particular those of Mrs. Howard Linn and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf.

A portrait has been called a materialization of an individual soul. And well spoken, for the pleasure derived from it is due both to its value as a likeness and its esthetic qualities. A cast taken from life is not a portrait, nor is a photograph, nor any painting, drawing, or sculpture that does not possess the harmony of line and color that can alone give it esthetic value.

It is like a composer who wants to give the impression of the song of birds but does not imitate them. He invents notes which harmonize with his music. Alone they have no meaning but as part of the composition they convey the sensation of birds singing. And so with the colors and lines of a picture. They create an esthetic quality. In combination with the physical and mental characteristics of an individual, they produce a portrait.

The beginnings of portraiture are buried in the tombs of the ancient Egyptians — statues representing the dead so that the Ka might find his earthly habitat in them. It is because of the amazing realism of these figures that they are mentioned as portraits as well as sculptures.

The old masters—Rembrandt, Rubens, Frans Hals, all of them—excelled in their portraits of men. But today it is a different matter, most any artist will explain, for harsh collars, drab colorings, the standardized cut of attire have united to ruin the effect of even the finest masculine head. As the result women are the subjects of many of the finest modern efforts in portrait painting.

200 Music Festival Dancers to Aid Free Ice Fund

Two hundred girls who will take part in the dance pageant to be given at the Chicagoland Music festival on Aug. 20 will give THE TRIBUNE ice fund a boost this morning when they bring their pennies to rehearsal at the Edgewater Beach hotel ballroom. With these pennies several of the families desperately in need of ice to keep their milk supply from spoiling will be made happy by unexpected visits from the ice man.

In the mail yesterday, accompanying a gift of $6.25, Shirley May Madsen, 11 years old, sent a typewritten account of the ice fund benefit given recently in the basement of her aunt's home at 4710 Austin avenue.

"My Uncle George Johnson of Oak Park brought his movie projector and some funny films, and my Cousin Buddy Kittredge helped run off the films. Some of the little girls who danced and sang were La Verne Foster, Barbara Ann MacLeod, and myself. We also had community singing with the victrola for the orchestra.

"Really it was great and the basement was crowded, many standing in the rear. We even had to borrow chairs from the neighbors and ask our relatives to bring folding ones. Today every one is asking when we are going to have the next show. Here's hoping you receive many more dollars from the boys and girls who get up shows in their basements."

The gifts arriving yesterday were sent by:

Member Calls "U" Women's Conference "Balaklava of Talk"

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt of Mills college, Oakland, Cal., today described sessions of thirty discussion groups in connection with the world conference of university women as "a Balaklava of talk."

"There was talking to right of them and talking to left of them," she said. The subject under discussion was whether higher education fits women for contemporary life and the consensus seemed to be that it helps.

Dr. Winifred Clara Cullis, physiology professor at the University of London, said discussions by small groups helped teach women to talk. She frequently had noticed that phenomenon, Dr. Cullis added, and each time she mentioned it to men they laughed.

Dr. Kinley, an authority on finance, has been busy with the reorganization of the First National bank of Champaign. He has not been active in university affairs since he was succeeded by Harry Woodburn Chase nearly two years ago.

The marriage of Miss Mary Louise Dreyfus, the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus of 3330 Lake Shore drive, to Samuel Rosenthal, was solemnized quietly last Saturday in the gardens of the estate in Winnetka which the Dreyfus family is occupying this summer. The ceremony was read at 7 o'clock in the evening, with the sunset glow softening the beauty of the outdoor setting.

Only relatives and close friends of the families were invited to the service and the small reception that followed. The bride wore a gown fashioned entirely of rare lace and a lace veil which fell from a coronet cap. She carried a white prayer book instead of a bouquet. Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal will return from a Canadian wedding trip about the 24th of this month. Mr. and Mrs. Dreyfus will move back to their town residence in late September.

Young Girl Is Cheating Self of Nice Height

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There's a certain young lady of my acquaintance whose desire above everything else is to be tall. Only tall girls come within her definition of beauty, no matter how ravishing the looks of a smaller girl. She's five feet two and a half as she walks around. That would be your guess if you saw her. Perhaps because she thinks there's no use reaching for a moon she'll never reach [five feet seven, we'll name it] she shrinks herself down an inch and a half less than she need be. By actual count, I discovered this.

I lined the young woman up against the wall and got out the ruler, put her back against the wall, and measured her height—first in her usual, slumpy standing position. Then, with her chest up, her abdomen flat, her head erect, and believe it or not, by the ruler count, she had cheated herself out of an inch and a half. In the slump position she was five feet two and a half. In the erect position, five feet four.

And five feet four is a nice height. With the usual high heeled shoes you can go up another inch or two. I might add that said young lady is walking differently since the day we measured.

Often I'm asked by correspondents if there is any way to make one taller. Envying small women myself I wonder why they go out looking for trouble that way. They can wear such adorable things—and, besides, Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Janet Gaynor, and dozens of other movie stars come not much higher than a man's heart. But if girls must have height and nothing but, first I advise the measuring rod just to see if they're cheating themselves of an inch or more. It's probable many of them are.

If they're in their early 'teens they can help stretch themselves taller by participating in games like basketball and tennis that call for stretching. Also, they can do stretching exercises. They can do dancing work calling for stretching exercise.

But the main thing they should do is to pull up that chest, flatten the abdomen, and hold the body tall every minute they're on their feet.

Worth Features New Suit with Jacket That Flares from the Shoulder Line

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Everywhere in the Paris fashion field, jackets and coats that are loose from the shoulders are appearing. The fitted jacket and coat are die hards, and are still more worn than any other kind of wrap, but the new loose wrap is growing in style importance every day.

Keep this style in mind. It looks promising. Autumn may bring about a general revival of nonfit wraps.

Worth, among other great French dressmakers, is featuring suits with jackets that flare from the shoulder lines, and one of these suits is shown today. It is made of red transparent wool crêpe, with the jacket short, just reaching to the hip bone. It is also so young as to be girlish, with its childish turn over collar of red crêpe and its ties of red and white striped silk. The long sleeves are loose at the wrists. Tucks trim the collar and the front of the jacket.

The skirt is straight in line, with a wide panel, having a knife plait at both sides, set on in a diagonal line at the hips in front, and giving width to the skirt from hips to hem.

A double belt of red crêpe at the waistline makes the skirt high at the top.

The blouse is made of the same red and white striped crêpe as the scarf, with a diamond shaped plastron in front, buttoned on two red buttons, and with a youthful turn over collar.

Try Sauerkraut in Delightfully Piquant Salad

Refreshing Tang Welcome on Warm Days.

BY MARY MEADE.

Have you been watching sauerkraut—that good old German standby—turning aristocrat in the last few years? You may find its juices greeting you at the most elaborate and swanky of functions, alone or blended with frosty tomato juice in the most appetite inspiring cocktail. Or at that smart luncheon where you can rely on everything appearing in the height of good taste, sauerkraut will turn up in a delightfully piquant salad with a refreshing tang that is coolly irresistible.

Especially in summer, when three meals a day seem to be slave drivers created to chain us to hot kitchens, sauerkraut finds friends, both because of its appetite luring qualities and because of its newly understood health boosting properties.

Lactic acid sounds like a chemistry class, but it happens to be the ingredient in our cans of sauerkraut which turns the trick in injecting health into this peppy cabbage food. This acid in the raw kraut does away with system impurities, and acts as a disinfector for our digestive tracts. The vitamins—there are A, B, and a large quantity of C—protect against troublesome summer colds and double warm weather appetites. Served raw, either alone or in combination with other non-heating foods, sauerkraut makes a splendidly tasty and satisfying reducer for the overly plump.

A "light" salad, yet one that is high in food value, comes from a happy inspiration of kraut blended with salmon or tuna fish. It makes the best luncheon salad ever and needs just a plate of tempting ribbon sandwiches, a bowl of berries, and a long, cool drink to complete a perfect light summer meal.

This salad should be just a starter—a score of other combinations should pop into mind as you contemplate your icebox and run through your recipe files. Mayonnaise and French dressings seem to be the most tasty on kraut salads. Substitute lemon juice for vinegar.

SAUERKRAUT AND TUNA FISH SALAD

Blend two cups of finely flaked tuna fish or other cooked fish with one cup of finely chopped celery, two cups of raw sauerkraut, two tablespoons onion juice, three chopped, stuffed olives, and two tablespoons minced parsley or water cress. Moisten with a tart cooked dressing and serve on crisp lettuce leaves. The lucky cook with a fisherman member in the family will find left over cooked trout or other fresh fish a perfect companion for kraut.

Or, if summer means tomatoes to you—and yet there seem to be more tomatoes than ways to serve them—a stuffed sauerkraut-tomato salad should appeal.

STUFFED SAUERKRAUT-TOMATO SALAD.

1 quart sauerkraut.
1-3 cup salad oil.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
1 tablespoon sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
Lettuce.

Peel the tomatoes carefully and cut out the core and seeds. Chill. Blend the oil, lemon juice, sugar, salt, and paprika, combining with an egg beater. Toss the sauerkraut in the dressing and fill the tomatoes with the mixture. Chill thoroughly and serve in crisp cups of lettuce.

SAUERKRAUT WITH SOUR CREAM DRESSING.

With sour cream dressing, sauerkraut is delicious; and as for time saving—name me its equal in tantalizing tastiness. To prepare the dressing, simply whip one cup of heavy sour cream until stiff, adding the lemon juice gradually while beating. Season with a dash of salt and a sprinkle of curry powder. Blend a little of the dressing with chilly raw kraut and serve on lettuce with more dressing atop.

Feminine Tears Won't Bring Back Wandering Mate

BY DORIS BLAKE.

After eight years of seeming content with home and his wife, husband "H." is developing symptoms! Evening after evening out! Short, sharp and crabby with the wife! Doesn't like the home cooking as he used to! Isn't interested in Junior any more. Scolds the youngster if he lets a peep out of him.

Tells the wife she can do what she blinkety blank pleases with her evenings, but he's going out! He has to meet a fellow. The "fellow," the wife's sleuthing discloses, has hennaed hair, dresses flashily, and is a divorcée with a no good reputation.

"He lies to me and I know it!" the wife writes. "But I can't give him up. I love him. He's my man. He always will be, nobody else. What shall I do? I've cried 'til I can't see straight. He even taunted me because I cried. Said it made him laugh to see my crying. What gets into men nowadays? One woman doesn't seem enough for them!"

What gets into them heaven only knows! Perhaps it's that they just get bored coming home to the same scene, the same actors therein, night after night! Perhaps they don't hear enough applause there. Perhaps they don't hear any!

Perhaps it isn't any of these things at all! Maybe there's no explaining how a henna tressed divorcée can lure a man from his home, his wife and child! But there is this to be said. You will never get that kind of wanderer back with tear stained eyes! Not if the hennaed one is greeting him with bright ones!

Better stiffen the backbone, sister! Look cheerful and sit tight! You know your husband now. You know the tears don't work. Well, try something else! Try fussing up and wearing an air of mystery about yourself and your feelings! Set him guessing! It may work. It may not.

Mrs. McLaughlin's Dogs to Seek Homes at Cook County Fair

The orphans of the storm, homeless dogs which are given shelter by Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin until she can find permanent homes for them, will be featured along with the blue bloods of dogdom at the Cook county fair which opens Friday at the new fair grounds, North avenue and River road.

Mrs. McLaughlin's dogs will be given a booth outside the big tent which houses the blue bloods, and she expects to find homes for many of her dogs. Her Saint Bernard, Peter, will move about in the crowds with a coin box strapped to his shoulders, collecting money for the orphans.

The dogs will be only one of many features of the fair, which is to be a real old-fashioned county fair in every respect, with everything from prize pigs and pumpkin pies to tatting and crocheting, but which will also include such sophisticated goings on as polo games and steeple chasing.

Letters Show Popularity of Circus Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

From the manner in which letters pour into my office from all the boys and girls in and around Chicago who want to attend our party at Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus on Aug. 11, I would say that the big show's popularity knows no bounds. It isn't surprising, though, for it's about the only known entertainment that appeals to young and old alike. It's the only show one never tires of.

One of the features you'll enjoy most this year—that is, if you feel about the circus the way I do—will be the aerialists and the trapeze workers. They've always been excellent, but this year in addition to the old thrillers there are a lot of new ones. The Flying Codonas, foremost of aerial star, will grace the center ring of the vast arena. High above the heads of the audience they fly from one trapeze to another, gracefully, fearlessly performing seemingly impossible acts.

The Concellas, another flying trio, are recent additions to the list of trapeze stars the circus boasts. Their breath taking feats will amaze you, as will those of the Harolds, another group of trapeze workers, with whom they share honors.

In addition to these, there will be, of course, that huge aggregation of stars who make up the cast of the circus, appropriately called the "greatest show on earth." Trained animals, riders, wire walkers, clowns, acrobats, jugglers, comedians and so many others I can't even being to think of all of them.

You'll enjoy all this with me on Thursday, Aug. 11, if you write a winning letters, boys and girls. And you'll have to concentrate long and work hard if you expect to be one of the lucky hundred, for the letters I've received so far are extremely good ones and it's plain to be seen that their writers are real circus lovers.

All the letters must be in tomorrow, so if you haven't written yours you had better get started at it immediately. Don't forget to tell me your age when writing, and don't forget that you must not ask for an invitation for any one except yourself.

AL SMITH NEPHEW AS OFFICER KILLS FLEEING YOUTH

Had Warrant for Arrest on Alimony Charge.

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Deputy Sheriff Vincent Glynn, nephew of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, today shot and killed a young alimony case defendant for whom he had a warrant charging contempt of court. He told police his victim had resisted arrest.

The man, Walter E. Webel, twenty-two, had been ordered in contempt for failure to pay $10 weekly to his wife and child.

Charged with homicide, Glynn told police his prisoner broke away and that he fired three shots after him as he ran. One bullet pierced the youth's head.

A former policeman who resigned after shooting another man and wounding himself in a Brooklyn speakeasy in 1928, Glynn has had a stormy career.

Facts Not Cleared Up.

Today a clear version of the shooting was difficult to obtain. It occurred in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn. It was the second day the deputy had been looking for Webel.

In an automobile with Glynn was Jack Murray, the 18 year old brother of Webel's estranged wife. Murray espied Webel and pointed him out. Then, according to the story told by Glynn to the homicide squad, the deputy approached the youth, who "resisted."

"He started to run and I fired three shots in the air," Glynn said.

Glynn and another man picked Webel up and took him to Bay Ridge sanitarium. He was dead.

Glynn declared that his would-be prisoner had "struck me on the jaw with his fist."

"I didn't want to do it," he kept saying over and over. "But he resisted. It was my duty."

Previously in Trouble.

Glynn, whose father was a retired police lieutenant and whose brother, Alfred J. Glynn, is now a member of the department, was appointed a probationary patrolman in October, 1925. In July of that year, he was arrested for failure to stop after his car collided with a truck, slightly injuring a woman. It was charged that Glynn was pursued then for nearly a mile by a patrolman.

Finally suspended from the department, charged with felonious assault, Glynn was taken before a magistrate, who dismissed the charge.

The suspension remained in effect, however, for two weeks. Then Commissioner Warren reinstated the patrolman, who resigned immediately.

Within a short time Glynn was made a deputy sheriff and on Oct. 1 was in trouble once more, charged with beating a clerk and threatening the manager of the Pierrepont hotel, where he lived, with a pistol.

WALKER DENIES HE'LL RUN FOR GOVERNOR IF OUSTED AS MAYOR

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Returning to the city hall this afternoon after a week-end rest, Mayor James J. Walker said he knew absolutely nothing about any plan for him to be a gubernatorial candidate should Gov. Roosevelt remove him from office in answer to the Seabury charges.

"There's absolutely nothing to it," the mayor said. "I don't know where the story came from or what inspired it."

He said he never talked to any one on the subject and no one ever suggested it to him.

U. S. DRYS BARE A NEW TRICK IN BEER HUSTLING

Prohibition agents under Chief Investigator Eliot Ness yesterday arrested two men, confiscated two half barrels of beer and a small truck, and exposed a new subterfuge in the transportation of alcoholic drinks. The men held, captured after a foot race through several blocks of alleys, are Henry Carpen and Fred Wagner, both reputed employes of Joe Saltis.

At 52d and Rockwell streets Ness and the agents stopped a small truck which was marked "Fulton Sausage Company." The truck drivers watched as Ness uncovered two large barrels plainly marked "sausage." The agents knocked in the heads of the barrels and found sawdust. When Ness started poking the sawdust the truck drivers ran. Hidden in the sawdust in each barrel was a 25 gallon keg of beer.

VERDICT BY CORONER'S JURY.

U. S. WINS 2 OLYMPIC TITLES; RECORDS FALL

SOX DOFF PALE HOSE BUT LOSE, AS USUAL, 4 TO 1

Errors Give Senators Series Final.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Bill Chamberlain, a left handed youth recently acquired by the White Sox, discovered yesterday that all the weaknesses of his new mates are not centered in the pitching department. As a fitting major league debut the kid southpaw produced a four hit eight inning performance, but his good hearted fellow workers gave away runs with prodigal abandon, so the Washington Senators were almost forced to accept the decision in the final of the series. The score was 4 to 1.

If Chamberlain had been properly backed in his maiden effort he might have convinced the visitors that there was no such thing as a home plate on the premises. Three of the Senators who reached that important station did so only because of such little mishaps as the dropping of a throw by Frank Grube, and common garden variety of errors by Jack Hayes and Luke Appling. And even the lone run recorded legitimately could have been cut down if Carey Selph hadn't fondled a gentle grounder long enough to lose an easy play at the plate.

Sox No Longer White.

This day's consolation for the Sox, who incidentally for the first time in history discarded their solid white hose for a snappy variety bearing a red horizontal stripe, was confined to the collection of more hits than the four surrendered by Chamberlain and the one given up by Faber in the ninth. They nicked the ancient Gen. Alvin Crowder six times. Three of these were bunched in the second, the only time the veteran was actually in a tight spot, and the Sox ruined this themselves. One of them was nipped off second with one out and a run already home. After that Crowder permitted only one south sider to see second base.

Chamberlain retired the first two men in the opening inning before being given proof that his new found mates have their moments. Manush singled to left. Cronin boomed a long fly to left and Fothergill displayed no inclination to bring himself into possible contact with the brick wall. The ball bounced off the barrier for a double but Fothergill caught up with it and tossed to Selph at third. Manush was tearing toward the plate, so Selph pegged to Grube, and the runner was out but the Sox backstop made the mistake of tagging Heinie on the foot. The result was that Manush kicked the ball out of Grube's hand, thus making a run where there should have been none.

Fothergill Cracks One.

Fothergill redeemed himself by opening the Sox second with a two bagger to the left field score board. Appling's infield out shoved him to third. Kress shoved a single between third and second and Fothergill registered. Then the customary Sox luck prevailed. Blue slapped a single to right and Kress rounded second. When he determined that it was advisable to return to that bag he slipped in the heavy going and was tagged before he could crawl to safety. Grube died to center to conclude the affair.

Kuhel blew open the third with a single to right and in a few minutes this, with outside assistance, became a run. Myer was given a pass. Both men advanced on Manush's bunt. Selph immediately did his bit for the visitors. Cronin pushed the softest kind of a roller toward third and Kuhel could have been thrown out at the plate without undue exertion, but Selph fumbled momentarily and lost the chance, so had to throw to first. Harris' popup recorded the third out.

Hayes picked the seventh as his

Olympic Champions

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 2. — [Special.] — Champions crowned in today's Olympic track and field events follow:

BROAD JUMP—Edward Gordon, U. S. A.

800 METERS—Tom Hampson, Great Britain.

WOMEN'S 100 METERS—Stella Walsh, Poland.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 2.—You could hardly hear the eagle's shrieks for the roaring of the lion and the lion's cubs as British and Canadian athletes combined with Americans to carry off world records and the bulk of today's first places on the Olympic track and field competition before 53,000 in Los Angeles stadium.

Tom Hampson, English half miler, captured the 800 meter final by a perfectly timed stretch sprint. He was forced to a new world record of 1:49 8-10, superseding the recent record of 1:50 set by Ben Eastman, United States, to beat out two Canadians, Alex Wilson and Phil Edwards, for second and third places. The three American contenders, Eddie Genung, E. T. Turner, and C. C. Hornboestel, swept the last three of the six point earning places.

Wins by Two Feet.

Edwards, who formerly ran for New York university, led for three-fourths of the two lap route, being trailed by Genung and Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany, with Wilson gradually pushing forward. Wilson made his bid on the final turn and overtook the Negro flier at the start of the stretch. Hampson, who had used Wilson for his pace setter, flew past Edwards, and then past Wilson, whom he led by two feet at the tape, with Wilson seven feet ahead of the fading colored boy.

Stella Walsh, American resident competing for Poland, won the finals of the women's 100 meter race in 11.9, thereby for the third time in two days equaling the new women's world record time in which she did each of her heats. Hilda Strike of Canada was second and Wilhelmina Von Bremen of the United States third.

Two American girls alternated to dominate the competition in the women's discus throw with world record performances. First was Ruth Osburn, a Shelbyville, Mo., schoolgirl, who flipped the saucer 131 feet 8 inches to top the qualifiers, and next came Lillian Copeland to outdo Ruth with an effort of 133 feet 2 inches, in the final round of throwing. The former women's world record was 129 feet 11 9-16 inches, which also stood as the Olympic record.

Gordon Wins Broad Jump.

Miss Copeland's effort made her the Olympic champion, with Miss Osborn in second place and Jadwiga Wajsowna of Poland third.

Eddie Gordon, Negro athlete from Gary, Ind., won the broad jump championship with a leap of 25 feet ¾ inch, closely pressed by another American, Lambert Redd of Bradley Tech, Peoria, Ill., at 24 feet 11⅝ inches. Chuhei Nambu of Japan, present world record holder at 26 feet 2¼ inches, finished third, and Dick Barber of Los Angeles, the third American entrant, swelled the United States point total with fifth place behind Eric Svensson of Sweden.

New Olympic records came so fast

SHIRES BALKS AT TRIP TO MINORS; FACES DISCHARGE

Boston, Mass., Aug. 2.—(AP)—With an unconditional release hanging over his head, Art [What-a-Man] Shires today appeared doomed to some more minor league experience. The Boston Braves' colorful first baseman, who was benched last Sunday, was fired by Manager Bill McKechnie today when he objected to the pilot's disposal plans. The manager intended to use Shires in a trade with an unnamed minor league club and the great one voiced strenuous protests.

McKechnie notified President Emil Fuchs, on the road seeking another first baseman, of his action and was advised to hold off until Fuchs returns tomorrow.

Injury Handicaps Art.

Shires has been handicapped by an injured left knee most of the season. He was badly spiked by Joe Stripp in a game with Brooklyn and, despite the injury, insisted on playing. He was later forced to retire from the lineup and since his return he has failed to measure up to the major league standard.

Shires was purchased from Milwaukee, where he had a big season last year, batting .385. Before entering the American association he played with the Chicago White Sox and Washington Senators.

Friction Is Rumored.

Reports of friction between Shires and the Braves' management, always denied, have been circulating here for several weeks. It was no secret the club was in the market for another first baseman and that Shires would be replaced as soon as a satisfactory replacement was obtained. The Braves' utility man, Randy Moore, is now holding down the position.

Cubs' Managership Climaxes 16 Years in Game for Grimm

Appointment of Charlie Grimm to manage the Chicago Cubs marks a boost up the baseball ladder for one of the game's greatest first basemen and one of its most popular figures. In the National league continuously since 1926, first with the Pittsburgh Pirates and then with the Cubs, Grimm long has been known as a brilliant fielder and a timely if not a particularly hard, hitter.

The new manager of the Cubs was born in St. Louis, Aug. 25, 1899, and began his career in organized baseball with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1916. He was farmed out to Durham in the Carolina association the following year. After a brief trial with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1918 he was sent to Little Rock of the Southern association for further seasoning.

Joined Pirates in 1919.

The Pirates grabbed him in 1919 and he became their regular first baseman the following year. He spent six full seasons with the Pirates and reached a high water batting average of .345 in 1923.

In November, 1924, when the Pirates instituted a thorough housecleaning, Grimm, Maranville, and Cooper were traded to the Cubs for Aldridge, Grantham, and Niehaus. Of these, Grimm, Maranville, and Grantham still are playing regularly in the big leagues.

Latest batting averages for this season credit Grimm with a .299 average. Most of his hits have been timely, as shown by his total of 55 runs batted in.

CUBS LOSE, 4 TO 2

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 2.—These here Brooklyn Dodgers don't seem to be properly askeered of our boy Lon Warneke. They hopped on Lon something fierce in the eighth inning this afternoon to turn a prospective 2 to 1 Warneke triumph to a 4 to 2 blistering.

Now here is a good lad who has lost only five games while winning 16 and the last three of those five setbacks have been registered by the Dodgers, including two in the last two games. Some senator from Arkansas ought to pass a law.

The eighth inning blast was mostly a matter of three doubles, and the first two of said devastating doubles were knocked by those stocky expatriots, Danny Taylor and Hack Wilson.

Lon Escapes for a Time.

In the seventh inning, with the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Cubs, Bud Clancy made a triple, his third hit of the game and his ninth in three games since he joined the Dodgers. The triple came with one out, so every one thought the chips were just the same as cashed in when Bud died on third because Warneke made Lopez tap to Jurges and struck out Heimach, who is a much better batter than the average pitcher.

Then along came the eighth. Taylor bounced a double off the right field wall, which is about as far distant as the screen in Wrigley field. Stripp sacrificed, putting D. Taylor on third. O'Doul, who hadn't made a hit all afternoon, failed to make one this time, but he did send a long fly to

Cubs' Officials Issue Statements on Pilot Change

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 2. — Statements of the principals in tonight's upheaval in the Chicago Cubs' management follow:

President William Veeck—Hornsby is leaving the Cubs tonight. Charley Grimm is the new manager. Hornsby is a free agent, but his salary will be paid up to the expiration of his contract on Dec. 31, 1932.

Rogers Hornsby—I'm leaving for my home near St. Louis in the morning. The Cubs have my best wishes. I hope Charley leads 'em to a pennant. I'll begin to think about my future after that contract date comes around.

Charley Grimm—For years I've had an ambition to manage the Cubs, but I think Joe McCarthy and Rogers Hornsby will say the only way I went about realizing this ambition was to give everything I had to playing first base for the team. I know that I have the friendship of all the other 22 active players on the team and I am confident they will give me their support in my ideas about how the team should be handled. I also count on cooperation from the coaches, Charley O'Leary and Johnny Corriden, who will continue as my assistants. I have no idea of becoming a bench manager and will be out there every day as long as I physically am able to play first base.

Cuyler which enabled Danny to score the tying run.

That brought up Wilson. He took two strikes, fouled off five pitches and then slammed a double against the center field wall. Cuccinello was given an intentional pass and Frederick batted for Wright. Frederick took a strike, then doubled off the right field wall. Hack came home with the winning run and Cuccinello followed him with a velvet counter. The score was 4 to 2 and Lon had lost No. 5.

Same as Previous Visit.

The Cubs have visited this strange city twice this year and this time as the time before they are limping out with a record of three losses to one win, whereas they entered confident of winning by at least the same ratio.

The reversals this time, however, have been especially depressing in view of the Pirate suffering at the hands of the Phillies, the Cub foes of the morrow. And if you don't think the situation is grave, bear in mind that these Phillies, whom we all have been cheering so lustily, are now only a game back of the Cubs.

Herman Doubles, Scores.

The 2 to 1 ratio by which the Cubs led the greater part of today's game was established in the third inning, the two part being almost entirely due to Billy Herman's long range slugging.

Bill opened the game with a double,

MY DANDY PUTS ON WATERWINGS AND SAILS HOME

BY FRENCH LANE.

My Dandy, the one eyed flyer of the turf, is out on another winning spree. Look out for him. He won a heat at Arlington the other day on a disqualification. He won the La Grange purse at Hawthorne yesterday on his speed—so much speed on a muddy track that close to 10,000 spectators were dazzled. He won it by five lengths just as he pleased and threw mud into the eyes and brows and nostrils of some of our leading handicap performers.

And he received an old time My Dandy cheer as he came splashing down the home stretch, his rivals dizzy after trying to keep pace with him. And why shouldn't he? For about seven out of every ten persons in the gathering had wagered on him and when it came time to pay off he was an odds-on favorite, paying $3.94 to win, $3.12 to place, and $3.48 to show.

Annimessic Poor Second.

Annimessic from Maryland was second. Just second, mind you, for he was so far behind all the way it would be a good safe bet that My Dandy didn't even know that he was in the race. Kibitzer, from Abraham Bartelstein's barn, was third. He was so far back he would have been charged long distance tolls if he had wanted to say anything to My Dandy at any time during the stretch run. Kinczen and Valenciennes, two 5 year old mares, were even a greater distance away, and the only way they could have communicated with My Dandy would have been by cable.

A cablegram would have been entirely appropriate for the overnight rains left the Hawthorne running strip filled with water, and at times during the afternoon, while the track superintendent with his drags squeezed the water out of it, the racing course looked like a young lake.

My Dandy, breaking not far from the rail, beat his rivals away from the gate and was a length in front by the time he reached the club house turn. Valenciennes was right after him and it looked like this once famous mare was going to run one of the kind of races that made her famous a few seasons back. But she soon began to drop back and, starting down the back stretch, it was Kibitzer which moved into second place and took after the flying My Dandy.

Kibitzer Makes Strong Bid.

Kibitzer did quite well for the next half mile and as they hit the last turn he was up within about two lengths of the pacemaker. It looked like Kibitzer was going to do things at this stage and all the Bartelstein followers began to cheer.

They didn't know how My Dandy could run in this kind of mud. They gasped as he put on new speed. In an instant it seemed My Dandy had pulled away into a lead of seven lengths. He could have lost Kibitzer and all the others at that rate of speed, so Jockey Johnny Leyland took

California Looks at World with Gold Colored Glasses

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 2.—There is just the slightest feeling of impatience and something like hurt around here because the eastern part of the country, and especially New York, did not contribute very liberally to the fund for the Olympic games. But California, in this part of the state at least, does not seem to suffer from any intimate knowledge of the problem of depression and the difficulty of raising a pleasure dollar in New York, Chicago, and other eastern cities.

Neither does Los Angeles seem to sense the rather gloomy suspicion current in the east that if California should happen to need some money to pay off a deficit on the Olympic games, or for any other purpose, California would collect the money in the familiar way, from the national treasury, by act of congress, the sum to be met largely by eastern taxes.

It's Local Responsibility.

Of course, the Olympic committee represents the country as a whole, but I do not think the eastern people made any distinction in their minds between the needs of the Olympic committee and the other costs of production, which have been prodigious and a local responsibility. Money was requested for a show to be held in Los Angeles, and the east, expecting to fout much of the bill as usual, decided to make California come and get it.

Regardless of whether this prosperity in Los Angeles is substantial or just a phantom, it is distinctly cheering to come from the east into a land where the haberdashers still have the naïve gall to ask $15 for a ready made shirt [marked down from $25, to be sure] and $35 for a ready made beach robe [male], and, for all I know to the contrary, also have the luck to collect these prices. I don't suppose there is a ready made shirt in all Chicago or New York now at more than $5.

Signs of Easy Money.

There is in Los Angeles and the general neighborhood just now more dressing up for evening, more sitting around in places at night, more swank and vanity, all significant of easy money and a joyous frame of mind, than I have observed anywhere since the winter of 1929 in Palm Beach and Miami.

My hotel is prosperous, the help have a confident, optimistic manner contrasting with the rather gloomy mien of waiters and such whom I have seen in other places of late, bespeaking a fear of being laid off, and the music in the garden goes on and on at night. In a summer resort close to Chicago ten days ago, roulette chips were down to a dime apiece, but in Los Angeles the minimum price is 50 cents and a customer who laid a quarter on the bar before one whirl the other evening was politely desired to remove the same and not dirty up the pastime with anything less than an initial investment of $10 for a stack.

Is It the Rebound?

There always are contrasts in communities where money is on the flow, and the fact that garden truck is selling for a cent a pound in some of the food stores in Los Angeles may mean no more in this case than was meant by the price of common labor in West Palm Beach three years ago, when stranded laborers from the north tried to shovel their way home by toiling at the scoop in the sand pit for 15 cents an hour, not two miles from the Colony club and Bradley's gambling house. The sights that meet the eye in Los Angeles, particularly in the suburbs just now, suggest either that this section has yet to get her come-uppance or has hit bottom and rebounded.

There were 100,000 spectators in the Olympic stadium at a top price of $2 per head on the opening day and the attendance since then has been about 50,000 a day at the same scale. Distances are long and taxis expensive, but the crowds go and the mood of the place seems not much different from that of the Florida resorts in the winters when the boom was going.

The Californians tell me that it costs much less to live here than in New York or Chicago, but I doubt that either of these cities would be as playful as Los Angeles if the cost of living there were reduced to the same level. From observation of the crowd rather than by particular research the situation implies that here is one place at least where the people regard tomorrow without dread or forlorn hope, but just with pleasant expectancy.

Tramps in Desert.

Out in the desert along the railroad line the bums are thick in the sunburnt hamlets, hitching their way on the freights and the blinds, their baggage slung in light bundles over their shoulders by string. They seem young. A family, which drove to New York last year, tells me they would not try it now because the bonus army estabilshed a custom of traveling the roads in gangs, imposing good naturedly on travelers. Other gangs might not be as good natured.

But Los Angeles seems immune to the problems of other places and the bums are on the other side of the mountains where they cannot offend the scene of easy security and apparent contentment. It would be good for other communities if they could for a few days breathe as easily as this region where the Olympic games are the sole concern of the present.

Miss Georgia Coleman of the American diving team, a California girl, summed it all up the other day when a hundred Mexicans were cheering madly for a Mexican runner who was straggling far behind in a long race at the stadium. She presently turned her blonde head to the excited Mexicans and with a calming gesture of her brown arms exclaimed, "Boys, boys, for God's sake, relax!"

Carnera Wins, but Leaves New York Crowd Cold

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Primo Carnera, Italian ring giant, scored his third straight triumph in his current American campaign tonight at the Queensboro stadium at the expense of Hans Birkie, California, in a ten round bout. The huge Venetian, however, failed to impress a crowd of about 3,000 as a heavyweight title threat.

CONGRATULATIONS, CHARLEY—MANAGER GRIMM AS FANS KNOW HIM

Charley Grimm, newly appointed manager of the Cubs, comes out of the dugout swinging bats that worry many a pitcher. He's hitting .299.

. . . A musician, too. Manager Charley, as he'll be known from today on, entertains his family in the off season at their St. Louis home with tones from his banjo. He is one of the most jovial of the Cubs.

Always a hard worker and a close student of the game, Grimm studies the delivery of an opposing pitcher before picking a bat.

How Grimm cuts at the ball. He's a dependable hitter, as Cub fans know.

Old My Dandy Swims Home at Hawthorne

My Dandy in hand and forced him to take things a little easier.

My Dandy, however, kept far out in front and Kibitzer was so done up by the dash My Dandy had made at the head of the stretch he faltered long enough to let Annimessic snatch second money away from him, and Kibitzer was just able to beat Kinczen out of fourth money by the length of his head.

My Dandy's time over the muddy track of 1:47 4-5 for the mile and a sixteenth was quite remarkable. The old fellow has been out of training most of the summer, but he has come back. And the Hawthorne track has always been his happy hunting grounds.

Well Shod Scores in First.

Speed horses were winning most of the afternoon. Not many were able to come from behind, for mud was flying in all directions from the start of every race until the finish.

Morris Vehon's blue and cherry jacket was carried to its first victory of the year in Chicago when his good looking 2 year old Well Shod won the first race. This colt is a big chestnut son of Polymelian and liked the sloppy track. However, he started from an extreme outside post position and it took all the skill Jockey Steffen possessed to race him up into the lead going down the back stretch.

He rounded the last turn by going very wide, but was running like the wind by this time and he pulled out into a long lead in the final furlong. He beat Stately Lady by five lengths with Chrysostom, a field horse, which had been well up all the way, saving third money.

Well Shod never had won a race, but there was quite a tip out on him and this coupled with the fine way he looked brought a plunge on him. However, he paid $9.70 after winning like a 1 to 2 shot.

Hampson Sets World Mark in 800 Meters

in the second qualifying round of the 200 meter dash that the four successive announcements of "a new Olympic record" sent the 53,000 spectators out of the stands in a roar of chuckles.

Metcalfe and Tolan, America's colored flyers, started it by capturing their two starts in identical times of :21.6, which cut down Archie Hahn's original American record of :21 3-5, set in the 1904 games in St. Louis. Then came C. Luti of Argentina and Arthur Jonath of Germany to win the last two heats in :21.4. George Simpson, third American, conserved his strength for the 200 meter semi-finals and finals tomorrow by loafing to a third place in the first trial and to a second place in the second round.

Saling Leads in Hurdles.

George Saling, University of Iowa timber topper, led the three American entrants through the two qualifying rounds of the 110 meter high hurdles with a new Olympic speed mark of :14.4 in the semi-final heat. The former record stood at :14.6. Jack Keller of Ohio State won the other semi-final heat and Percy Beard of the American team placed second to Saling. England qualified two for this final. Lord David Burghley and D. Finlay. The final will be run off tomorrow.

Jack Van Bebber of Perry, Okla., a welterweight wrestler, gained a decision over Borge Jensen, Denmark. Van Bebber sent Jensen to his back twice, but because they were partly off the mat the falls did not count.

Edgar Nemir of the University of California disposed of H. Rowland, Canadian featherweight, in 8 minutes, 39 seconds. Robert Hess of Iowa State college, the third American to compete, lost a decision to J. Tunyogi, Hungary. Hess will get another chance.

Finn Wins Twice.

H. Pihlajamaki of Finland scored his second victory, eliminating C. Schack of Denmark in the featherweight division. Daniel MacDonald of Canada and E. Leino of Finland advanced on falls in the welterweight class.

Canada, Denmark, and Japan lost two representatives each and Mexico and Sweden one each. Those eliminated were: Middleweights—Stockton and Rowland, Canada; Schack, Denmark; Hatta, Japan, and Arellano, Mexico. Welterweights — Kohno, Japan; Lindblom, Sweden, and Jensen, Denmark.

France won the Olympic foils championship from Italy. The judges ruled the French fencers had scored 62 points to 58 for the losers.

Accidents in Pentathlon.

A series of accidents, one serious, befell contestants in the 5,000 meter equestrian steeplechase, first event of the modern pentathlon.

Anguiano De La Fuente, veteran Mexican horseman, suffered a possible skull fracture and severe cuts when he was pitched on his face as his mount stumbled over the seventh hurdle.

Baron Sebastian de Freitas Branco de Heredia of Portugal received a badly wrenched leg. His horse reared and fell as they were approaching the starting post.

PHILLIES DEFEAT PIRATES FOR 4TH STRAIGHT, 11 TO 6

Win Brings Team Within Game of Cubs.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP)—In a battle of booming distance drives, the Phillies defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 11 to 6, and swept the four game series over the league leaders.

Seven home runs featured the heavy hitting, four going to the Phillies and three to the Pirates.

Chuck Klein cracked out his 31st of the year. Hal Lee and Les Mallon hit homers and Cliff Heathcote, substituting for the injured Don Hurst, clinched the game by clouting a four base driver over the right field wall in the eighth.

By stretching their winning streak to five straight games, the Phils cut the Pittsburgh lead over them to six games, and are in third place, one game behind the Chicago Cubs. Elliott was credited with his second victory of the series. Score:

GIANTS WHIP REDS, 3 to 2.

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Although he was hit freely, Waite Hoyt pitched well in the pinches today and carried the Giants to a 3 to 2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. The Giants got only seven hits off Benny Frey, but one of them was Mel Ott's 21st homer, which gave them the lead in the sixth inning, and four others came in pairs for their other runs. The deciding run came in the seventh, when Lindstrom and Terry singled and the former scored on a force-out. Score:

Boston, Mass., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Boston Braves rallied in the ninth inning today to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 3. A double by Wally Berger, Fred Leach's single and Wes Schulmerich's fly, all made off Dizzy Dean, put over the winning run.

Socks Seibold held the Cards scoreless until the eighth when three runs were scored on Jim Collins' single, a pass to Jim Wilson, a two bagger by Jake Flowers, pinch hitter, and two long flies. Ben Cantwell relieved Seibold during this flurry and received credit for the victory. Score:

BROWNS WIN 3D IN A ROW FROM RED SOX, 6 TO 4

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns made it three in a row from the Boston Red Sox by capturing the final game of the series today, 6 to 4.

The Browns bunched five of their 10 hits off two Red Sox pitchers in the second, making four runs. Durham, relieving Welland, held St. Louis scoreless until the seventh, when he went out for a pinch hitter. The Browns made two runs in the eighth off Boerner, third Boston pitcher. George Blaeholder went the route for the Browns. Score:

DICK TRACY—They Meet Again

Hornsby Out; CharleyGrimm Cub Manager

infielders, but that he did not rate them as boy wonders or as pennant winning material.

Has Difficulty with Cuyler.

He was critical of Cuyler, it is said, and spoke to him pointedly about his failure to field a ball hit by Earl Grace which decided a game in Pittsburgh on July 23. Cuyler apparently knew of Hornsby's waning authority, for he is reported to have returned an impertinent answer. When Hornsby questioned Cuyler about his poor work in last Sunday's double header he got little satisfaction, it is reported. Cuyler and other players were said to have been informed that Grimm's appointment was imminent.

Hornsby is said to have had the warmest personal regard for his successor, Grimm, but it is rumored that Hornsby felt the Cubs greatly needed a more agile man than Grimm on first base. In the one game lost in Boston last week Grimm let a decisive hit get past him on what seemed an easy chance and later, in the ninth inning, failed to knock the ball out of the infield when Stephenson was waiting on third base with the tying run and one out, a situation in which an outfield fly would have tied the score.

Impatient of Others' Weaknesses.

Hornsby's fault of expecting ball players to approximate his great attainments during his active years, caused him to "burn up" at failures such as the aforementioned.

Hornsby doubtlessly pointed out some of these shortcomings to Veeck and asked for somebody who could hit.

In any event it has been apparent on this trip, especially in Boston, that Veeck had tired of hearing Hornsby tell what the Cubs couldn't do and Hornsby had tired of hearing Veeck's pennant predictions. They ate alone at widely separated tables, but simultaneously in the same dining room in the Hotel Somerset, the Cubs' Boston headquarters.

Started Career in 1914.

Hornsby, generally recognized as the greatest right handed batter of all time, broke into organized baseball in 1914, when he was only 18 years old. He started out with Dallas of the Texas league, but his trial was brief, the Steers releasing him only a few days after the season opened. He then went to Hugo of the Texas-Oklahoma league but lasted there only a few weeks before he was traded to the Dennison club of the same circuit.

His start was anything but auspicious. Although he played shortstop in 113 games that season, he batted only .232. He improved a little the following year, batting .277 for Dennison before he was sold to the St. Louis Cardinals on Aug. 20 for a reported price of $500.

In 1916, his first full year in the majors, he played every infield position except first base for St. Louis and began to show a little of the hitting prowess that later carried him six times to the top of the National league batting averages, hitting at a .313 clip for the year. In 1917 he settled down to one position, shortstop, and remained there for two years.

Six Times Batting Champion.

The season of 1919 saw him flitting about the infield again and lifting his average up to .318. The next year he was assigned to second base, the position which he played throughout the best years of his long stay in the majors. That season also saw him start on his record breaking batting streak which made him champion slugger of the National league for six successive years.

Three times during his reign as batting king he batted more than .400 and in 1924 set the league record with an average of .424.

On June 1, 1925, he was appointed manager of the Cardinals, succeeding Branch Rickey. He piloted the club, notoriously a second division outfit, into fourth place and, besides leading the league in hitting with an average of .403 he was voted the most valuable player in the circuit. In 1926 he brought St. Louis its first pennant after a four way battle with the Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates, and Cincinnati Reds, and then went on to win the world championship in a dramatic seven game struggle with the New York Yankees.

Traded to Giants.

In December of the same year, however, after a disagreement with the St. Louis club officials, Hornsby was traded to New York for Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring. He remained with the Giants only one season, having been traded to the Boston Braves early in 1928 after rumored differences with John McGraw, then manager of the Giants.

On May 28 he was appointed manager of the Braves, who finished the season in seventh place.

The following November he was traded to the Cubs in one of the biggest baseball deals of all time, for a reported price of $200,000 and players Freddy Maguire, Percy Jones, Cunningham, Leggett, and Socks Seibold. His acquisition was regarded as the most important factor in the Cubs' drive to the championship in 1929, and he was, for the second time, voted the National league's most valuable player award.

went to third while English was beating out a bunt and scored on Cuyler's fly. Stephenson forced English and stopped at second on Demaree's first major league hit, a single to right. Grimm forced Demaree. The score was tied in the second on a double by Cuccinnello and Wright's single.

Herman started the third with a triple, paused while English fouled to Wilson and Cuyler was hit by a pitched ball, and came home on Stephenson's fly to O'Doul. Wright threw out Demaree.

Cuyler and Demaree singled in the sixth, but there was no production, although Ki's effort started the inning. In the seventh Jurges tripled to start the session, but had to stand there while Warneke, Herman and English supplied easy outs. Cuyler led off the eighth with another single, but made no progress because of a force out and a routine infield double play.

All of which leads you right up to that terrible Dodger eighth. We are quite sure you don't want to talk any more about that.

Jones Defeats Bickett in City Tennis Upset

Play for the Chicago tennis championship moved into the fourth bracket yesterday at the Oak Park Tennis club, with seeded stars advancing for the most part with little opposition.

Battling today will be for admittance into the quarter final round in the men's singles, while 32 women are scheduled to open their quest for the feminine crown.

The lone upset on yesterday's card saw the rout of Andy Bickett, former Cornell university tennis ace, and the seventh seeded player, when Wilfrid Jones scored on accurate placements to win, 6—4, 8—6.

Following his unexpected victory, Jones, who is the defending champion in the national open lawn tennis tournament at Washington park, defaulted in the next round to Wesley Allen in order to appear in defense of his title this week.

John James, who put George Crowley out of the running in the first round, came through again yesterday to eliminate Amos Alonso Stagg Jr. in the hardest fought match of the afternoon. He won finally in a three set match, 9-7, 9-11, 9-7.

Other favorites, Leo Lejeck, Jack Harris, Frank O'Connell, William Parkhill, and Thane Halsted advanced easily.

George O'Connell, who led the field into the fourth bracket two days ago, took a day off yesterday, but will meet Lloyd Wallace of Elkhart, Ind., today in the feature match.

Catherine Wolf, also of Elkhart, will be seeded first in the feminine rankings and will be followed by Jackie Ayer of Chicago.

inning to make a contribution. Kingdon led off with a walk and Berg sacrificed. Crowder grounded toward second and Hayes gave the ball a healthy boot. Kingdon went to third on the error and counted on Kuhel's fly to Seeds. In the next inning Appling did what he could to cause young Chamberlain further annoyance. With one out Cronin survived on Appling's fumble, after which Harris walked. West drilled a single past Hayes and Cronin scored. Chamberlain avoided more trouble by starting a double play on Kingdon's tap.

The little trouble given Crowder after the second wasn't enough to make the old fellow fret. Seeds singled in the third and was swept up in a double play. Appling ripped off a one baser with two gone in the fourth and didn't get beyond the front door. There was only one real chance after this. Fothergill signalized the inaugural of the seventh with a single and Lyons ran for him. The next two men popped out and Blue walked. Grube made this fadeout complete by looping a foul into Kingdon's hands.

Crow Defeats Dawson, 1 Up, inMidwestGolf

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Gus Fetz of Mid-City, the medalist, and Al Andereggen of Jackson park, the defending champion, were still among those present last night at the end of first round match play in the fifth annual Midwest public links tournament at the Lincoln Park Golf club, but Sterling Dawson, the home club's pride, was on the missing list. Dawson, who holds the Lincoln park club championship, succumbed to R. M. Crow, a club mate, 1 up, after a battle lasting 20 holes.

The Dawson-Crow argument was only one of a series of matches in which battles were waged to the 18th green, if not beyond. Seven matches went the full route, while two others were settled only after an extra hole. In one of these N. Gustavsen of Lincoln park defeated a teammate, George O'Brien.

Gus Goes 1 Up on 16th.

Fetz, who won the title in 1929, had a hard time advancing, winning only 1 up from Tom Jones of Lincoln park. He was 2 up at the end of the first nine, but Jones won the 12th and evened the match on the 14th. Gus won the 16th with a par four and they halved the remaining two holes. The card for the match follows:

SHOW SHRINKAGE IN THE ESTATE OF MICHAEL ESPERT

Inventory Lists Securities and Real Estate.

Securities and real estate comprising the estate of Michael Espert, president of the Monarch Refrigerator company, were listed in an inventory filed yesterday with N. J. Bonelli, assistant to Probate Judge Horner.

N. J. BONELLI.

Although Mr. Espert swore in federal court in 1930 that he was "worth at least $25,000,000," the inventory showed his estate now amounts to $2,524,305. Of this $524,305 is in cash, securities, notes and claims. The remainder includes 34 parcels of Cook county real estate. Bonelli set Sept. 13 for hearing of proceedings for approval of the list.

Bonds and Stocks Shrink.

Cash on hand at the time of Mr. Espert's death last Feb. 26 in St. Luke's hospital amounted to $95,983. Bond holdings which had a total par value of $840,000, are now worth only $292,000 it was shown. Stocks which had a par value of $300,000 have shrunk to $119,322. Notes and claims considered good amount to $16,400.

Mr. Espert made the statement of his wealth on Dec. 31, 1930, when he appeared before United States Commissioner Edwin Walker to post bond for a friend charged with dry law violation.

In his will Mr. Espert left his daughter, Mrs. Mary Louise Ortseifen, 327 Essex road, Kenilworth, an annuity of $3,000 from the income of his estate in trust. Her daughter, Marian, 14 years old, is given a similar annuity until her mother's death, when she will divide the entire principal with her father, George. The will was approved. Mrs. Ortseifen has appealed to the Circuit court, asserting that her father was not of sound mind when his will was executed.

Rail Man's Will Filed.

Wills filed and approved yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, included that of Louis Richardson, 7321 South Shore drive, general superintendent of motor power for the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad company. His estate amounted to $34,500, of which he left $54,500 to his widow, Mahala. His son, Louis, and daughters, Dorothy and Mrs. Mary Holland, divide the remainder equally.

The will of Mrs. Annie S. Coburn, widow of Louis Coburn, first president of the Union League club, and the owner of one of the finest art collections in America, was approved yesterday. The will made public several weeks ago when it was filed left cash and art bequests to several universities and gave the Art institute 23 paintings and a $165,000 trust fund for their upkeep.

RELEASE SOUGHT FOR TRIO AN HOUR AFTER ARREST

3 Pickpockets Seized on Street Car.

Cruising yesterday in Ashland avenue, Detective John Griffith, Patrick McInerney, and William Hosna saw three pickpockets, each with a long police record, on the front platform of a street car.

The men were Harry Fish, 48 years old, an alumnus of Sing Sing, whose record dates back to 1911; Joe Berkovitz, 57 years old, whose record includes an arrest for vagrancy in Boulogne, France, and Abe Schippman, 54 years old. Schippman received his first prison sentence, one to ten years, for larceny last December when a victim whose loss he had made good surprised him by appearing in court. He is out on bond pending an appeal.

The detectives drew alongside the car at Lake street and took the three pickpockets into their automobile. No one saw the arrest, they are sure, yet in just one hour and eleven minutes police were informed that Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher had received an application for writs of habeas corpus for the trio.

Chief of Detectives Shoemaker explained the speedy legal action on behalf of the prisoners. Criminals, he explained, frequently arrange to call a lawyer every hour. If they fail to make their hourly "pull," the lawyer is to assume that they are in jail, and take steps to obtain their release.

KATVAN RETURNS; LODGE CANCELS FUNERAL FUND

John Katvan, 45 years old, appeared yesterday at the offices of the Loyal Order of Moose, 123 West Madison street, and denied that he is dead. On July 18, the story goes, a man was killed in an automobile accident in Ashtabula, O. The name of Ned B. Neesan, a tailor at 67 West Huron street, was found on a card in the dead man's pocket. Neesan told Chicago police that the dead man might be Katvan, a laborer, and member of the Moose.

Members of the Moose identified the picture of the body as that of Katvan. The detailed description of the dead man tallied with that of Katvan. Last Saturday lodge officials notified Ashtabula police that $100 would be forwarded for burial.

Yesterday B. W. Johnson, secretary of the lodge, looked up from his work to see Katvan standing before him. Johnson listened at Katvan's explanation that he had been out of the city seeking work. The secretary wired Ashtabula that the $100 burial fund would not be forthcoming.

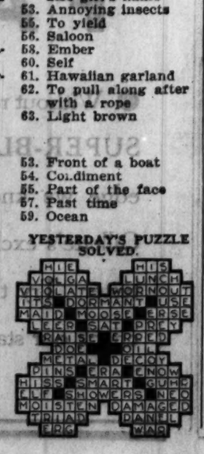
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED.



DRIVER IS KILLED, WOMAN INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

T. A. Sens, 40 years old, 1948 Washington boulevard, a chauffeur, was killed yesterday when the automobile he was driving skidded on wet pavement and crashed into a street car at Cicero avenue and Thomas street. Mrs. Alice Kopelin, 38 years old, 4608 Superior street, who was riding with Sens, was seriously injured.

Police said they found a gallon can, containing a quantity of alcohol, lying in the street near the wrecked automobile. They learned that Sens' wife is on a vacation somewhere in Wisconsin, they said.

The inquest was continued until Sept. 8 to allow Mrs. Kopelin to recover from her injuries in St. Anne's hospital, where she is suffering from a fracture of the arm and shock.

The death of Sens and two others increased the 1932 motor toll for Cook county to 681. The other victims:

George Brennan, 40 years old, 13 South Sangamon street. Died at the Mother Cabrini hospital last night of injuries suffered Monday when he was struck at Jackson boulevard and Racine avenue by an automobile driven by Richard Rohner, 25 years old, 2130 North Hamlin avenue.

John Moran, 64 years old, a casual living at municipal lodging houses. Died at the county hospital from injuries received last night when he was struck at Peoria street and Canalport avenue by an interstate truck driven by John Gayer, 19 years old, of Kansas City.

2 YOUTHS IN AUTO MEET TRAIN, SEIZE A SACK OF MAIL

A sack of mail, tossed from a Chicago bound Rock Island train to the Grove Hill station in Blue Island, was seized and carried off yesterday afternoon by two youths in an automobile.

Blue Island's postmaster, J. Floyd Smith, learning of the theft, notified postal inspectors in Chicago and a search for the thieves was started. Mr. Smith said that the mail was unregistered and probably contained no money.

The mail truck which usually meets the train at 3:40 p. m. was about two minutes late, and the men in the car seized the sack while it was unguarded. A Negro watchman described them as about 20 years old. The car in which they escaped was a small coupe.

MINNEAPOLIS JUDGE RESERVES RULING ON FREEDOM OF PRESS

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—The appeal of Arthur Kasherman for an order to enjoin Minneapolis and Hennepin county officials from interfering with the circulation of his paper, the Public Press, was taken under advisement by District Judge Paul W. Guilford after a hearing today. Judge Guilford's decision will not be made for a few days.

Kasherman asked a restraining order against County Attorney Ed J. Goff, Superintendent of Police William J. Meehan and Mayor William A. Anderson. He was refused a temporary restraining order last Friday.

Action of the weekly newspaper editor followed seizure last Thursday of copies of the Public Press from newsboys, when it made its reappearance on the streets after having been silenced for more than a year following a previous police confiscation. The police are upheld in their action by an ordinance which forbids the sale of newspapers on the streets. Thus, the sale of any publication by newsboys becomes a matter of police sufferance and gives them a powerful club to prevent matter objectionable to them being sold.

Kasherman's contention is that other newspapers have not been molested, and that he is arbitrarily being made the victim of police persecution. The Public Press has as its chief policy the exposure of vice and alleged corruption of public officials.

WIFE OF STANLEY M'CORMICK SUES TO OUST DOCTORS

Santa Barbara, Cal., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—A prolonged dispute over care of Stanley McCormick, multimillionaire, was renewed today when his wife, Katherine Dexter McCormick, filed a petition to remove his personal physician, Dr. Robert L. Richards, and two consultants, Drs. Milton Lennon and W. W. Boardman. Their contract was renewed for a year last week by McCormick's board of guardians, the wife being outvoted.

The matter will come up soon before Superior Judge E. S. Crown here.

Mrs. McCormick declares Dr. Richards gets along with his wealthy patient by letting him "run his own case." She declared that McCormick is allowed to go long periods without a bath or even washing his hands and face. She also charges the physicians have failed to restrain the patient and that he has frightened neighbors by breaking into their houses.

TOMMY MALIE IS SAVED FROM PAUPER'S GRAVE

Tommy Malie, armless composer of popular song lyrics, was saved from a pauper's grave yesterday by the intervention of the Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, of which he was a member. Erwin Barg, a friend of Malie, acted for the society and had the body moved to the Roberts undertaking rooms, 3616 Broadway. Funeral services will be held today at St. Vincent's Catholic church, Webster and Sheffield avenues, with burial in Calvary cemetery.

Malie, who was said to have made more than $100,000 on his songs, died penniless Monday of alcoholism in the county hospital. Friends said he had squandered his earnings in cabarets and speakeasies. Among the better known of his song hits were "Looking at the World Through Rose Colored Glasses," "Jealous," and "Highways Are Happy Ways."

Eight Chicago song writers and friends of Malie will serve as pallbearers. They are Egbert Van Alstyne, Bert Sibemore, George Little, Joe Goodwin, Harry Harris, Billy Baskette, Walter Hirsch, and Frank Magine. Malie's burial was assured yesterday when a telegram to Gene Buck of New York, president of the Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, brought the response that the society would pay the expenses.

Simon, said his client had been hired as a publicity director by Miss Roth during her stay in Chicago, where she was making appearances at motion picture theaters. Miss Roth left for New York City yesterday.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Millicent Rogers Ramos is now in Paris seeking a divorce from her second husband, Arturo Ramos, rich Argentine. This was learned today when her seven year old son, Peter Salm von Hoogstraeten, by her first husband, Count Salm, was operated on at the American hospital for appendicitis.

The child is doing well and is being tended also by both his grandmothers, Countess Salm and Mrs. H. H. Rogers, divorced wife of Col. Rogers.

Count Salm came to Paris last week to watch the Davis cup matches and left last night without knowing of his son's illness. The divorce granted him custody of the child part time. The former Millicent Rogers received her divorce here in 1927, marrying Ramos the same year. She also had a son by her second marriage.

REPUBLIC HONORS EX-KING MANUEL, WHOM IT OUSTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 2.—Portugal's exiled king, the late Manuel, who died in England on July 2, was welcomed home by his people today but with tolling bells, chanting priests and acolytes and the deep boom of guns from the British cruiser Concord, which brought the body from England. Portuguese destroyers acted as escorts to the cruiser when it steamed up the Tagus river and a squadron of hydroplanes droned overhead.

British sailors bore the coffin from the ship to the pier, where it was handed over to Portuguese sailors. Waiting to receive the remains were members of the Portuguese government, the British ambassador and other officials.

The coffin was transferred to a gun carriage and, passing in a solemn procession, was witnessed by huge crowds. Funeral services were held in St. Vincent church. The cardinal patriarch and President Carmona attended.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1932.

START SALE OF $18,000,000 EDISON BONDS

Official Offering Begins Today.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The reception accorded the preliminary announcement of the offering of $18,000,000 Commonwealth Edison bonds yesterday brought more encouragement to La Salle street than any other development in months.

Formal announcement of the offering will be made today. The bonds bear 5½ per cent interest and will be offered at 93 to yield about six per cent. They are dated June 1, 1932, and mature June 1, 1962.

These series G bonds are redeemable in whole or in part at the option of the company at any time on forty days' notice at 105 and accrued interest until 1942, thereafter at a point less for each five year period until the last year and then they are redeemable at par.

Expect Speedy Sales.

Convinced that the issue will be heavily oversubscribed, dealers throughout the country yesterday were clamoring for the bonds. No large offering for two years has attracted more widespread interest among dealers and investors.

The general reaction to the preliminary announcement yesterday brought to the financial community vivid recollections of the old era of financing. The efforts of dealers, institutions and private investors to get small or large blocks of bonds became unavailing early in the day and some of them turned their attention to the over-the-counter market, bidding as high as 94½, or 1½ points above the offering price.

Demand Exceeds Supply.

An executive of one of the banks that underwrote the issue said yesterday that his institution already had orders for about twice as many bonds as it could supply, and that it had refused a request from a New York bank for additional bonds.

All the bonds that this institution had to sell were spoken for early in the day and before noon one salesman alone had received requests for more than $300,000 worth.

"We expected a very favorable reception for the Commonwealth Edison bonds," said an official of another underwriting bank, "but indications are that this issue will be more heavily oversubscribed even than we had anticipated.

"Among the customers who have been placing advance orders are people who have been out of the market for bonds for ten or twelve months."

Commonwealth Edison is one of the three former Insull operating companies operating in the Chicago district which recently obtained 60 million dollars from Chicago and New York banks to enable them to meet maturities on July 30 and Aug. 1. The banks took five months' options on bonds of each of the three companies, to be sold as the market permits. The proceeds of the bond sales will be used to retire the short term bank credits.

Seems Favorable Sign.

Favorable reception yesterday of the preliminary announcement of the Commonwealth Edison offering led to the belief that the offering of Peoples Gas Light and Coke company and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois bonds would follow shortly.

Substantial improvement in the bond market during the last few weeks has favored the offering of the Chicago utility bonds at the present time. Prices for all of the better grade issues have advanced materially since July 1. Unlisted issues have shared in the upward movement led by bonds listed on the New York Stock exchange. During the last few weeks the better grade municipals have firmed considerably and trade in them has become brisker.

DEALERS IN 'GAS' CHARGE GOTHAM OIL CONSPIRACY

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Gasoline Dealers' association, Inc., today petitioned United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, through its counsel, Bernard Cohen, to obtain an injunction restraining certain "major gasoline companies" from "practices, agreements, conspiracies, combinations and understandings expressed or implied in restraint of trade and commerce." Medalie forwarded the petition to Washington.

Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 68,350 barrels in the week ended July 30, 1932, totaling 2,137,500 barrels, the American Petroleum institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California decreased 65,650 barrels to 1,668,300 barrels. Daily average cracked gasoline by refineries representing 95.6 per cent of total charging capacity was 458,900 barrels. Daily average the previous week by refineries representing 95.6 per cent of total was 465,100 barrels.

Suspend New Rail Rates for the Illinois Soft Coal

The interstate commerce commission has suspended for sixty days operation of new rates on soft coal in the Illinois field by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Minneapolis and St. Louis, and the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroads. The tariffs were filed in an effort to meet an order made by the commission on March 14. They applied both to intrastate and interstate traffic. The commission, in ordering the suspension, said some of the schedules increased rates and others decreased them and that it felt the public would be injuriously affected. During the sixty days an investigation of the justice of the rates will be made.

Bright Spots in the Day's Business News

An upward movement in the business situation was noted yesterday by the department of commerce.

It called attention to the cessation of the outward flow of gold in July and a moderate return movement, a general strengthening of the bond market prices, a halt in the urgent liquidation in the stock market, and an advance in prices of a number of important commodities.

Some business and financial experts have pointed out that previous hard times had ended during the summer months when gradual upward movements had started in commodity prices, industry had begun to manufacture and sell at a profit, even if slight, and the movement of farm products had brought about an increased buying, but the change toward improvement in the past had not been noticed until six or seven months after it began.

The Republic Steel corporation announced resumption of operations in eight mills at the Niles, O., plant.

Chrysler Motor company at Detroit will let a $5,000,000 contract for steel frames. The order is said to have gone to the Midland Steel company.

At Albany, N. Y., it was reported yesterday that records of the river port commission show 50 vessels arrived up to Aug. 1, compared with 11 in the same period last year. The shipping was from foreign countries as well at Atlantic and Pacific coastal points.

At Jacksonville, Fla., figures just made public show July imports of 26,665 net tons and exports of 30,862 tons. The June total was imports 23,403 tons and exports 19,516 tons.

Rubber workers who walked out on strike last week went back to work today at the mills of the Mishawaka Rubber and Woolen Manufacturing company.

It is reported that buyers are finding it increasingly difficult to obtain copper at 5¼ cents a pound. In the import market copper is reported in better volume on the basis of 4.80 cents.

A canvass of important textile divisions indicates that producers are beginning to benefit from the small inventories and restricted production. Cotton goods, silk goods, rayon and raw wool divisions are said to be experiencing a moderate revival which promises a further expansion of orders with any general lift in general business.

RAIL CREDIT CORP. O. K.'S $28,388,464 LOANS TO ROADS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Railroad Credit corporation, up to yesterday had promised to carriers loans totaling $28,388,464, as reported today to the interstate commerce commission. Of that $20,445,441 actually had been advanced to meet fixed obligations. Collections from recent rate increases, the corporation said, totaled $26,034,210 the first five months of this year, the May return reaching $5,250,961.

The commission authorized the Marquette and Bessemer Dock and Navigation company to abandon operation of its car ferry 59 miles across Lake Erie from Conneaut Harbor, O., to Port Stanley, Ont.

The commission approved a loan of $4,575,000 by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to the Wabash railway to pay 50 per cent of the outstanding banks loans due at various times. The Wabash had asked a total of $18,500,000. The commission approved a loan of $7,173,800 on Feb. 10 and a second loan of $1,576,000 on May 17.

U. S. CALLS NINE IN COAL CASE; DEFENSE STARTS

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Moving swiftly, the government today rested its anti-trust suit against Appalachian Coals, Inc., and 136 coal operators, after seeking to establish the organization was a combination in restraint of trade, and therefore in violation of the Sherman act. Nine witnesses were called by John Lord O'Brien, assistant to the attorney general, to prove the government's claim before a three judge federal court. He may call on more.

Defense witnesses testified that the proposed selling agency plan is necessary to save the coal industry from its present chaotic situation.

James D. Francis of Huntington, W. Va., president of Appalachian Coals, Inc., denied the marketing organization seeks to control the production, distribution and sale of coal in the area. He said it offered tangible relief to a distressed industry.

Rail Commission to Reopen Hearings on Six Hour Day

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission announced today it would resume hearings in its investigation of the six hour day for railroads on Sept. 19. Express companies and sleeping car companies subject to the interstate commerce act will be the first to present evidence on the effect a six hour day would have on them.

LUMBER TRADE OFFERING PLANS FOR STABILITY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Common management of production and marketing operations by lumber companies as an emergency measure was recommended today to the timber conservation board by its special survey committee. The committee also urged that banks give consideration to policies intended to stabilize the lumber industry and that lumber companies' stocks be reduced by an additional 3,750,000,000 feet.

The committee said that stocks have been cut by more than 4,000,000,000 feet, but that consumption also has declined from a total of 35,500,000,000 in 1929 to an annual rate of 12,400,000,000 in the first six months of this year.

R. F. C. Official Meets Rail Heads on Unemployment

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance corporation today began a series of conferences with railway executives and officials of the interstate commerce commission in an effort to find a way to put a large number of men to work on the railroads. No conclusions were reached at a three hour conference this morning. Another will be held tomorrow. Although corporation officials, the railroad men and interstate commerce commission representatives declined to be quoted for publication, it was learned that efforts were being made to work out some plan to finance maintenance and repair work on the railroads.

U. S. TREASURY DEFICIT IN JULY $263,290,620; INCREASE, $62,000,000

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The government ended the first month of the present [1933] fiscal year with a deficit of $263,290,620, which was 62 million dollars greater than for July a year ago.

Of that deficit 100 million dollars was due to money paid to the adjusted service certificate fund from which world war veterans draw their bonus.

During the month the government collected from all sources $87,764,206 and spent $351,054,827.

The receipts were approximately 32 million dollars less than collected in the first month of the last fiscal year and the expenditures 30 million dollars greater than those of July, 1931.

The effect of the economy program was reflected in a decrease in the general expenditures of the government as compared with last July.

Income taxes brought in $16,703,252, compared with $23,209,291 a year ago. Miscellaneous internal revenue amounted to $42,426,582, as compared with $51,335,670.

The public debt at the end of July amounted to $19,611,765,838, compared with $19,487,002,444 at the end of June and $16,801,624,349 at the end of July a year ago.

TRUST REPORTS GAIN IN VALUE FOR ITS ASSETS

Continental Chicago Corp. Gives Data.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Investments of the Continental Chicago corporation, one of the big investment trusts organized during the bull market, have increased approximately 25 per cent as a result of the upturn in security prices in the last month. This was disclosed yesterday in connection with the issuance of the concern's report for the six month period ended June 30.

Directors of the corporation meeting late yesterday authorized the distribution of a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the preferred stock. This is the same dividend paid three months ago. In the first quarter the company made a distribution of 75 cents a share, the rate at which the preferred dividend is cumulative.

Assets Gain in Value.

The statement showed the asset value of the preferred stock to be $24.19 a share at the close of the six month period. This, however, does not reflect the appreciation which has taken place since that time which increased the asset value of the stock to $29.14 a share. The approximate market value of the concern's investment on June 30 was $12,150,000, exclusive of notes receivable and cash. By Aug. 1 these investments showed an appreciation of approximately $3,500,000, or nearly $5 a share on the preferred stock.

The income account for the half year period showed earnings in excess of dividend payments. Net income was $904,614 before losses on the sale of securities or writedown on other securities.

Loss on Stock Sales.

The concern disposed of substantial blocks of securities during the February rise in the market. Prices obtained, however, represented a loss of $7,353,987 from prices paid for the securities. This loss represents the cumulative depreciation which had taken place in the securities sold over the last two years. Other writedown in securities amounted to $2,208,074. Both these losses were charged directly to investment reserve account.

The June 30 balance sheet lists assets at $22,260,000 as compared with $57,621,991 at the close of last year. The latest report carries investments at cost less than investment reserve, which arose as a result of the reduction in the corporation's capital. This accounts for the reduction in assets. The $57,621,991 asset figure carried on the Dec. 31 balance sheet was a nominal one and did not reflect the deflation in the value of the holdings.

Reveals Many Changes.

The company's portfolio as of June 30 discloses many changes during the six months' period. Preferred stock holdings were materially reduced and switches were made in the railroad bond holdings. The aggregate holdings of railroad bonds showed little important change, but several holdings were sold out and other securities acquired. Among the new holdings are a total of $188,000, par value, of Erie Railroad company bonds, and $44,000 Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville liens.

One of the features was the increase in the common stock investment in the Chicago utility companies. The firm purchased an additional 4,783 of Commonwealth Edison, bringing its total holding to 14,583 shares. An additional 4,900 shares of Peoples Gas was acquired, increasing its investment to 9,000 shares. The concern also bought 4,175 shares of Public Service of Northern Illinois common. The company had no previous investment in this issue.

Holdings of Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company stock was increased 8,125 shares to 32,096 shares.

Dividend News Mixed; Some Cuts Are Made

The board of the Ingersoll-Rand company yesterday authorized a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, payable Sept. 1 to holders of record Aug. 12. This declaration represents a cut from the previous rate of 75 cents quarterly, which, in turn, was a reduction from the $1 quarterly basis in force last year. C. C. Hay was elected secretary to succeed F. S. Overton, deceased.

Another indication that leading oil interests believe the industry has definitely improved is found in the announcement that directors of Socony-Vacuum have declared the quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share, the same as in the previous quarter. Three months ago the rate was reduced from 25 cents a share.

The board of directors of Union Tank Car company declared a quarterly dividend of 35 cents per share on the outstanding capital stock of the company, payable Sept. 1, 1932, to stock of record Aug. 15.

Hires Pays Dividends.

Charles E. Hires company voted dividends of $1 a share on the class B and management stocks, compared with 50 cents paid on each class Nov. 7, 1931. The board also declared two regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents each on class A stock.

Directors of A. G. Spalding & Brothers voted to omit the quarterly dividends of $1.75 a share on the first preferred and $2 on the second preferred due at this time. It was indicated after the meeting that the board thought it advisable to suspend payments of all dividends until such time as the current earnings of the company are sufficient to cover them.

In declaring a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, compared with 37½ cents in the preceding quarter, the Timken Roller Bearing company released its earnings statement, showing net profit for the first half of 1932 of $417,520 after all charges, equal to 17 cents a share on 2,411,638 no par shares of stock. This compares with $2,462,714, or $1.02 a share, for the corresponding six months of last year.

For the June quarter net income was $199,903, equal to 8 cents a share, against $217,617, or 9 cents a share, for the previous quarter, and $1,148,075, or 48 cents a share, for the same 1931 period.

Jewel Tea Pays.

Jewel Tea company declared its regular quarterly dividend of $1 a common share, payable Oct. 15 to stockholders of record Oct. 1.

Sales of that company for the first twenty-eight weeks of 1932 totaled $6,064,486 from an average of 1,336 routes, as compared with $7,589,239 total from 1,298 routes in the corresponding period of 1931. Sales of the eighty-two stores of Jewel Food Stores, Inc., a subsidiary, for the four weeks ended July 16 totaled $301,282, as compared with $320,543 for eighty-one stores in the preceding four weeks.

SELLING ORDERS HALT ADVANCES IN WALL STREET

Trading Slackens as Prices Decline.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 2.—Wall street's unbelievable young "prosperity" stock market nally came to judgment today. Professional bears who had been on the sidelines for the better part of two weeks fell upon the list in the early trading and belabored it with heavy selling orders right through to the close. Realizing by traders, long skeptical of the recovery and convinced that a reaction was thoroughly overdue, helped the operations of the short sellers along.

FORECLOSURES IN JULY SHOW GAIN OVER JUNE

Total Amount Claimed Is $50,155,565.

BY AL CHASE.

Foreclosures for July, made public yesterday by Kenneth E. Rice, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company showed approximately a 50 per cent increase in number over the same month of last year, but registered a drop of more than $4,500,000 in amount claimed. The 1,577 foreclosures for July, 1932, totaled $50,155,565, as compared with 1,024, totaling $54,696,313, for July, 1931. Comparisons with June, 1932, disclose a gain in both number and total amount claimed. June's figures were 1,386, totaling $44,889,683.

The number of masters' sales in July, 1932, was 501 with a total consideration of $6,775,047. This was less than June, 1932, which had 584 sales totaling $7,639,264. The comparison of July, 1932, figures with July, 1931 shows a tremendous increase over last year. There were fifty-five masters' sales in July of last year with a total of $1,862,950.

Masters' deeds filed for record dur ing July, 1932, were 175, compared with 218 of June, 1932. Release deeds filed in July, 1932, were 2,707, and in June, 1932 were 3,020.

Finance 125,000 Homes.

Units comprising the United States Building and Loan league financed the homes of approximately 125,000 American families during the first six months of the year, with total loans during this period of slightly more than $300,000,000, according to Morton Bodfish, executive manager of the league. The size of the average loan was about $2,446, which shows he pointed out, that the building and loan associations have continued their role as financing institutions for the small home.

"There's no doubt that in a number of areas there's a definite demand for the building of new homes," said Mr. Bodfish. "Money made available to the associations through the home loan bank system should stimulate this phase of the business as well as assist in supplying refinancing and remodeling needs.

Used for Refinancing.

"Accompanying this trend has been an unusually large proportion of the building and loan association loans for refinancing of loans previously made by private lenders and short time mortgage lending institutions who have been calling their loans when the money was most needed by the home owner. As a result, 82.48 per cent of all the loans made from January to July were to refinance such mortgages, to assist families in purchasing some of the bargains that are on the market today, or to remodel at the bargain prices now available.

"Altogether, in view of present conditions, the building and loan business has been most satisfactory during the last six months. The establishment of the new federal home loan bank system, which will be developed largely through the associations, undoubtedly will lead to even greater development in the business. The results will be reflected in the monthly reports soon after the system is in actual operation and it's expected that the report for the 1932 will show an even better record than for the first six months of this period."

in the pinches, but some of them looked pretty ragged nevertheless at the close. United States Steel, which has been out in front during the bull parade, was borne down nearly 2 points from its closing level of Monday. It managed to recover a part of its loss in the last thirty minutes or so of trading, however, closing at 28¼, off 1⅝ points on the day.

Telephone Stock Dips.

American Telephone suffered a net loss of 2 points after being lower. Auburn Auto dropped 3, but likewise retrieved a part of its loss. Railroad shares were rather hard hit, Norfolk & Western winding up with a drop of 5¼ points to its score, and Delaware & Hudson being off more than 5. Some of the utilities which, like the carriers, had been prominent on the advance also came in for a rather severe drubbing.

Losses in the more active issues averaged from 1 to 2 or more points.

Activity slackened somewhat as the reactions gained headway, the turnover falling to around 1,400,000 shares as compared with yesterday's total of approximately 2,100,000.

Nobody Surprised.

The setback took nobody by surprise. Wall street has been looking for it for days. Brokerage houses had been advising clients to be wary in future commitments and many of them have gone so far as to counsel profit taking for all the traffic would bear. Probably a majority of the letters in this morning's mail hinted at the advisability of just such a precautionary measure if they did notn advise it in so many words.

Moreover, many brokers and others concerned with an active market have been yearning for some sort of technical reaction in order to keep the list healthy. Things have been moving entirely too fast, proponents of this view hold, for its own good.

In spite of the widespread conviction that a halt was in order, however, the reaction was interrupted by two sizeable buying flurries, both of which succeeded in attaining a scope that threatened to turn the decline into a resumption once more of the advance which had gone on for five days without interruption. One of these got under way around noon and restored numerous issues that had been bear targets in the early trading to the plus column and the other took form in the final hour and gained momentum enough to restore probably a third of the losses recorded early in the day.

Helped By Wheat Break.

Like the recovery which it interrupted the reaction was without basis in news development. The 2 cents a bushel break in wheat helped grease the ways to some extent, probably, but the ups and downs of grain and other commodities have been among the least of the market's troubles for so long that the influence could not have been very considerable.

The only group to offer effective resistance to the downswing was the coppers, which was helped by signs of stiffening metal prices and pool rumors. Anaconda closed with a fractional gain to its credit and Kennecott held unchanged from yesterday.

Various preferred stocks kept up the new reputation of their kind by moving contrary to the trend for net gains of from 1 to as much as 8 points. Among them were Abraham & Straus, Commercial Credit, Public Service, General Printers' Ink, West Penn Electric, and Westinghouse. A few others of the group, however, suffered rather acutely. Mullins Manufacturing preferred dropped 3¾ points, McCrory Stores preferred 7¾, and Kresge preferred 7 points.

FRANCO-BELGIAN TRADE PACT HITS AMERICAN GOODS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 2.—United States exports to France, which already suffered many serious checks, were curtailed again yesterday by two important measures.

The Franco-Belgian import tax convention went into effect, giving Belgium a reduced transfer tax rate and thus permitting that country to undersell competitive United States products, particularly copper. The second check was a quota restriction issued against shipments of American fresh fruits.

There are indications here that Washington is seriously considering invoking Article 338 of the tax law permitting President Hoover to take retaliatory action against countries discriminating against the United States. That belief is encouraged here by the success of Belgium's retaliation, which is directly responsible for the favorable treatment France is now giving here.

The market for heavy grades of hogs yesterday came back as abruptly as it broke on Monday's session.

The kinds that were hit hardest on the break were the strongest on the rise.

Advances of 10@15c were general in stock exceeding 250 lbs in weight, while light and light butchers held largely in line with the highest spot on Monday's session. Closely sorted late winter and early spring pigs topped the list at $5, showing no change compared with the peak of the preceding session, but the general average moved up 10c to $4.35, the highest since last Thursday.

Raises Heavy Hog Prices.

In contrast to buying at the opening of the week all interests converged in the market for the relatively low priced weighty hog in hopes of holding down costs. Before the market closed some big weights were selling as much as 20c above the low spot of Monday. Reports from the wholesale market indicated that heavy pork loins were not so draggy, and this added zest to the buying of stronger weights. Eastern orders were only fair, but the supply of strictly fancy light and light butchers fell short and some outside buyers were unable to fill. Few of the 4,000 left were being offered on the market.

Better Steers Higher.

Weakness prevailed in the market for the rank and file of cattle yesterday, but the small contingent of highly finished beef steers were wanted at strong to higher prices. The latter recovered most of what was lost Monday, the top going to $9.70, within 5c of the season's peak. A long string of 76 steers averaging 1,265 lbs billed east for slaughter sold at the top of the market.

Prime 1,368 lb averages reached $9.50, but a smaller proportion was eligible to $9.00 and above. The bulk of all beef steers sold at $7.00@8.75.

Native grassy cattle and poor quality southwesterns were hard to move. Several large strings of the latter averaged 1,121@1,180 lbs and sold at $5.65. Montana grass cattle brought $6.15@6.50, but odd lots of thin, ill-bred lightweights had to be peddled out at $5.00 and below, some going for a lower class trade at $2.50@3.50. Only a small share of the receipts came into the butcher stock division yesterday. Prices there were unchanged, but trading dragged slowly all day. Calves sold steady to strong.

Lambs held firm and some called the market slightly higher considering the lighter sorting of natives yesterday. Bulk of best natives sold at $6.00@6.25, although city butchers handpicked a few lots up to $6.75. Packers obtained most of the western range lambs at $6.50, a steady price and took part of the culls at $4.50@4.75, but country buyers advanced their bids to $4.75 on the latter and obtained a few for feeding on that level. Yearlings sold at $5.00 and light aged ewes reached $3.00.

EXCHANGE BAN IN AUSTRIA HALTS BOND INTEREST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 2.—As a result of the moratorium decree of July 11, restricting transfer of funds to foreign countries, the Austrian government has failed to maintain service payments on the 7 per cent international loan of 1930 to the Bank for International Settlements, trustee of the loan, an announcement made at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. today said. The statement added that the equivalent of the service charges is being paid into the schilling account of the trustee at the Austrian National bank.

The amount of the loan outstanding in the various countries among which it was apportioned is 55 million dollars. The American quota of the loan was 25 million dollars.

Today's announcement follows one last Friday to the effect that the Austrian government had failed to keep up its service payments on its external guaranteed 7 per cent loan of 1923 and also had not paid in full the funds needed to meet interest due on Dec. 1. No default has been made on interest due to date on either loan.

NATIONAL ENAMELING AND STAMPING.
For the six months ended June 30 reported a net loss of $216,892 after taxes and charges, against a net loss of $270,921 in the first half of 1931. Sales for the period aggregated $3,104,536, against $3,583,030 in the first six months of 1931.

OFFERS 2 PLANS FOR PAYMENT BY GERMAN BANKS

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Inability of the Deutsche bank and Disconto-gesellschaft of Germany to meet payment of a $35,000,000 five year 6 per cent note falling due Sept. 1 because of inability to obtain foreign exchange was announced today through Dillon, Read & Co. Two alternative offers, however, are to be made holders of American participation certificates in the note.

The first proposes immediate payment in "blocked" reichsmarks, the only medium of payment available to the bank under existing regulations of the German government. Such "blocked" reichsmarks would have to be deposited or invested in Germany, with the provision that only interest or dividends may be transferred abroad at present.

The other offer proposes payment on Sept. 1, 1935, in dollars, with an immediate payment in dollars of a cash premium of 2 per cent of the principal to holders who agree to a three year extension of their participation certificates. Both offers will expire Sept. 15.

AMBITIOUS MEN.

FREE INSTRUCTION. IMMEDIATE, STEADILY INCREASING EARNINGS THROUGH PRESENTING THE WORLD'S FOREMOST SERVICE IN ITS FIELD.

Our extraordinary product has grown steadily in sales since its introduction in 1924. 1932 is so far our biggest year, and our men are making more money than ever before. They are real business men without investment in merchandise or overhead expenses, and usually without experience. For example, Frank Briggs, former potato farmer, made $1,003.36 his first 6 months with us; $6,401.77, his next year; Isaac Nolt, paid cash for car and home; A. Orvis, former aviation instructor, made $79.00 his first month with us; $500.00 his second month, $607.65 third month, and $7,641.89 during next 12 months; a former chauffeur, who has been earning $150.00 to $200.00 every week, told us: "Electrolux has paid for my car—Electrolux paid for furnishing my home—Electrolux will buy my wife a trip to Europe this summer."

Six great factories manufacture this remarkable dry mental specialty (an electrorefrigeration) in America and Europe—with this invention easily leading in sales and commanding public esteem that is world-wide. It has attracted the highest type of energetic, ambitious, dependable, adaptable men with character determination to succeed, and given them permanent, unlimited opportunity to advance themselves. No deposit required—but full days and hours and earnest work demanded. Must live on North Side and have good references. For interview, call between 9 and 12 a. m., Monday morning, at 215 McGraham Bldg., 1046 Wilson-av.

If you are adaptable to this work, if you have the disposition to study and strive to acquire skill in what you do, and if you have good reputation and the will to succeed, we will employ you and back you in permanent work that is regularly paying qualified men in all parts of this country and throughout the world, $5,000, $6,000, $7,000, $8,000, $10,000 per year and more. These incomes are cash, and just as stable and permanent as any business or professional positions. They must be. Such incomes represent success, and they are available to men who can think and work successfully.

This company is now in the greatest success of its history. This has been its most progressive year, and its men throughout the nation have consistently grown stronger, happier, and more and more prosperous. 1932 will be our third consecutive record sales year.

Those who are inexperienced in specialty sales work must take the necessary time to learn and to acquire skill. During this time they must be willing and satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125 to $200 per month if necessary. We cannot tell you how long it will take you to do this—whether one month or six months—but we do know that if you have the qualifications to satisfy our requirements to secure a position with us, you can, with reasonable study, practice, good character and diligence with these things you can be genuinely assured of making a success which will afford you the higher incomes.

We are not interested in men satisfied to get along on part time earnings. A minimum schedule of 40 hours work per week is required, with several hours additional for instruction. No deposit or expense of any kind.

If you feel you can qualify, and if you really would like to learn how to do this work and to make the kind of money successful men in this company are making—call for personal interview at our Chicago office tomorrow morning, 9:30 to 12 at 327-333 Madison-Keeler Bldg., 9 S. Keeler-av.
